Dam Cost Jumps $300M

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Hydro's Revelstoke dam now is expected to cost $1.5 billion or $300 million more than originally estimated, Elwood Veitch, chairman of the legislature's Crown corporations committee, said Wednesday.

He said that the new estimate for the dam comes from preliminary investigations of costs and other factors related to the project by staff members hired by the committee.

The committee is expected to resume hearings into the Crown corporation within a few weeks, Veitch said.

The chairman said $13 million in extra Revelstoke dam costs, run up in a little more than a year's work, "are certainly cause for concern."

Veitch said he could give no breakdown of the $300 million increase but said the figure, as well as other information on current Hydro operations, has come to the attention of staff members.

A subcommittee meeting likely will be held next week to plan summer activities, and "I hope the committee will agree to go up to Revelstoke as soon as possible to look at the problems there," he said.

4 DROWN IN ELEVATOR

Thousands Flee Rochester Flood

United Press International

A flash flood swept through Rochester, Minn., today, killing elderly patients in a nursing home elevator, sweeping cars off roads and sending thousands of persons fleeing for high ground.

At least five persons were killed by the rampaging Zumbro River and Bear Creek in Rochester and authorities feared the death toll could mount as rescue crews searched flooded streets and buildings for more victims.

Authorities said there were reports of houses collapsing under the rivers' onslaught and being swept away in the current.

Five deaths were reported in Rochester. Four persons — three elderly nursing home patients and a nurse's aide — drowned in a flooded elevator at the National Health Care Enterprises Centre, a nursing home.

Authorities said the victims got into the elevator seeking to go up and escape rising floodwaters on the first floor. But the elevator was short-circuited by the water and, instead of going up, went down into the flooded basement. The victims were trapped inside as the elevator filled with water, police said.

The fifth victim was a women whose car was swept off an Olmsted County road by the rampaging floodwaters.

About seven inches soaked the Rochester area, touching off the floods.

Gov. Rudy Perpich called out 50 national guardsmen to help with evacuations and and maintain security in evacuated areas of Rochester — home of the Mayo Clinic. The world famous clinic was not affected by the flooding.

Authorities said they feared the death toll could rise.

Wind or tornado damage was reported in many Iowa communities.

Thunderstorms also battered portions of New Mexico.

Liberal Sweeps In Que.

By PETER HADEKEL
Times Quebec Bureau

MONTREAL — Quebec Liberal leader Claude Ryan claimed a victory over "political extremism" Wednesday as Liberal candidate Reed Scowen swept to victory in a provincial byelection in the Montreal riding of Notre Dame de Grace.

In the first byelection held since the Parti Quebecois government took power 20 months ago, Scowen won 64 per cent of the vote in the predominantly anglophone suburb.

He picked up 12,797 votes to 4,983 for independent candidate David DeJong and 2,347 for Michel Gelinas of the PQ. Union Nationale candidate Albert Brulotte had 341 votes.

Liberal organizers were jubilant that a majority of the 25 per cent francophone voters in the riding voted Liberal.

Although the quiet residential riding is 75 per cent English-speaking and a traditional Liberal stronghold, both

PM, B.C. Talk Constitution

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau arrived here Wednesday for a one-day visit to hear feedback on his proposals to amend the Constitition.

Tomorrow he heads for Calgary for the opening of the Stampede.

Trudeau's officials said he wanted to explain his constitutional proposals to the people of the West.

Youth Welfare Eliminated Except in Special Cases

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Wednesday his ministry has cut off welfare for all persons aged 16 to 18 in B.C except in cases of special need.

Vander Zalm said, however, that if a young person has become destitute after leaving a home with irrevocable domestic problems or after a period of independent employment, he could still be eligible for benefits.

Vander Zalm said in an interview that giving social assistance to teen-agers only encourages them to leave home when they are involved family disputes.

The minister said the new policy has been in effect for about a month, but was not publicly-announced.

Rosemary Brown (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard), her party's human resources critic, said she is opposed to the proposal.

"If he can demonstrate that it is being abused, it should be treated like any other fraud case," she said. "He has no right to make those kinds of arbitrary decisions."

She said most teen-agers receiving welfare are living at home and attempting to supplement their family's income.

"Is that man never going to stop scape-goating poor people?" she asked.

But except for emergency cases, regional human resources officers now must seek approval from Victoria to dispense welfare money to youths 16 to 18.

Hugh Miller, spokesman for the B.C. Association of Social Workers, said today social workers have always weighed carefully any decision to provide assistance to teen-agers, and such cases usually involve serious family difficulties or orphans.

He said as they will continue to exercise this discretion, he doesn't foresee any change in the situation.

"In no way, shape or form is it our policy to encourage kids to leave home," Miller said. "I think it's a case of the minister making it appear he is being really hard-nosed when there really isn't any change in policy."

Vander Zalm said there were about 100 under-18s collecting welfare, mostly in the Vancouver area, when the policy was instituted.

The minister said most of these youths have probably returned to their parents or found jobs, although it is too early to accurately assess the effects of the policy.

Vander Zalm said the policy wasn't publicly announced because he didn't think people would be interested.

"The whole family breakdown thing is a problem these days," he said. "We hope little changes like this might have an effect on improving family unity."

MAGGIE TALKS LOOKING GOOD

A spokesman for the Canadian Merchant Service Guild said today he is optimistic a settlement can be reached today in a dispute which has idled the B.C. government-owned Princess Marguerite.

"Some progress has been made and we are optimistic," he said.

Guild negotiators, representing 17 officers including the captain, resumed talks this morning with officials of the B.C. Steamship Co., which operates the Marguerite for the province.

The officers walked off the job at noon Wednesday when the vessel arrived in Victoria from Seattle with 967 passengers aboard.

The Marguerite was scheduled to make a return trip at 4:30 p.m., but it had to be cancelled because of the work stoppage.

The officers said they would not go back to work until a new contract with the company had been signed.

Some of the passengers stranded in Victoria as a result of the dispute were flown back to Seattle while others were put on buses for a trip home via the Sidney-Anacortes ferry.

It is not clear exactly what the issues are. Management says the crew wants increased leave time rather than more money while the officers say they want year-round employment or some special arrangement which would provide them with an annual wage.

The Marguerite doesn't run during the winter months and as a result the officers' season lasts 146 days. They work six days on and six off and currently get 1.24 days off for each day worked.

Mexico Rattled

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An moderate earthquake centred off Mexico's Pacific coast near the resort city of Acapulco shook a wide area of the country Wednesday afternoon but authorities reported neither casualties nor significant damage.

A BITING DELIVERY

FRANKFURT (AP) — A 4½-foot python wriggled out of a package in a post office today and bit a worker, sending him to the hospital, West German postal officials said.

The 44-year-old man, who was not identified, was reported in no danger.

Officials said the reptile was being sent by a dealer in Bavaria to another dealer in Berlin.

Only 'Guts' Will Solve Tank Peril

Victoria should expect to continue living with the safety risk of oil tanks dotted around the Inner Harbor because "there are not the politicians around with enough guts to move them," Capital Region Board chairman Jim Campbell said Wednesday.

Campbell was explaining why, after five years of trying to relocate the scattered tank farms to a single location outside the city, the regional board is still no closer to a solution.

He said the stumbling block to relocation is that nobody wants them.

"Every time some kind of rational decision is made to relocate them the protesters march forward to prevent any change," he said.

"This is a symptom of the basic problem of society, when political office seems to be such an exciting reward that very few politicians are prepared to offend the vocal electorate."

Campbell echoed the comments of Victoria Mayor Mike Young and city aldermen that Wednesday's early-morning waterfront blaze in James Bay underlines the need to move the oil tanks out of the highly developed urban area.

He said society cannot afford to be constantly prevented from finding solutions to pressing problems by the protests of a vociferous minority.

"If James Bay burns down because of this totally negative response by people in the outlying communities I know where the blame lies," he added.

Campbell and Young both said they had arranged to meet Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis to discuss government assistance in moving the oil installations. The meeting had been arranged well before Wednesday's fire.

Meanwhile, city fire department officials were continuing their investigations into the fire, which caused an estimated $1.5 million damage to shipyards at 130 Kingston, adjacent to a Texaco oil storage plant containing about 1.2 million gallons of fuel.

Deputy fire chief Mike Heppell, who earlier indicated the investigators had a "good idea" how and when the fire started, declined any further comment today.

"Anything I could say would not be in the best interests of the investigation," he said.

A spokesman for Capital City Shipyards said the fire would mean the loss of about 30 jobs for employees of the firm and of Western Boat Builders, also located on the property.

Meatmen Vote Strike

Meatcutters in Victoria and the Lower Mainland have voted 70 per cent in favor of strike action to back demands in a dispute with the major supermarkets.

George Johnston, spokesman for the meatcutters' local of the Canadian Food and Allied Workers union, said the vote was 419-to-180 in eight bargaining units covering Safeway, Supervalu, Stong's, Mark It, Hi-Lo and Shopeasy in Victoria.

Meatcutters at Woodwards Stores have a separate contract.

Johnston said the B.C. Food Industry Labor Relations Council has applied for a mediator who, if appointed, would have a minimum 10-day term. A strike or lockout cannot be held until the mediator reports out.

The base rate for a retail meatcutter is $8.82 an hour.

The main issue, said Johnston, involves the extent of anti-inflation board controls. The union wants a second increase and more benefits after controls expired Dec. 31 but management wants a controlled settlement to extend for a full one-year contract which would expire next March 31.

Kootenay Townsfolk Keep Uranium Seekers at Bay

GENELLE (CP) — Residents of this tiny Kootenay town have vowed to barricade an access road 24 hours a day if necessary to halt uranium exploration in their area by a consortium of mining companies.

Exploration crews have been kept at bay for the last two days by protesters determined to prevent mining officials from reaching a drilling rig brought in when the barricade was dropped to allow road repairs.

The Genelle Concerned Citizens' Committee — 100-strong in a community of less than 500 people — agreed to relax its vigilance only under guarantees from the government that no exploration would go ahead during road reconstruction.

"Now we're going to make sure we stop them from reaching the drilling machinery because there's no way we want uranium mining around here," said group spokesman Tom McKenzie.

A consortium of mining companies claims it has discovered a large body of low grade uranium ore in the area which could be mined in an open-pit operation.

McKenzie said engineer Manny Amendolagine, of Vancouver's Manny Consultants Ltd., was prevented from reaching the site Wednesday and crews from Kootenay Drilling and Exploration Ltd. turned back voluntarily.

Fears that waste rock from drilling will pollute China Creek, which runs through this community 10 kilometres south of Castlegar, motivated local opposition but many residents now say they are opposed to uranium mining in general.

McKenzie said the consortium has frequently violated government exploration regulations, once dumping waste rock from the drilling directly into the creek.

"We will continue to act as policemen," he said. "If there are any violations of known regulations we will enforce them by passive, physical opposition."

But Bruce Lang, local inspector for the ministry of mines, said the citizens' fears are totally unfounded.

"There is nothing there that is dangerous to man," said Lang. "This thing has been blown all out of proportion. They're getting more radiation from the sun than they'll get from the exploration area."

McKenzie responded by claiming staff from the provincial mines ministry and Atomic Energy Control Board, which has been checking the air and water for contamination, is more concerned with promoting uranium than regulating health and safety.

He said the China Creek group is part of a province-wide grassroots movement against the development of uranium mining.

"We are giving an unqualified 'No' to any uranium development in the province. Leave it in the ground."

The China Creek consortium is made of a number of mining companies. Three — Stampede, Groundstar and Northwest Ventures — belong to Toronto stock promoter Earl Glick. Other companies are Nevex, Nomad, Tandem and Golden Granite.

In published reports in April, Glick termed the China Creek deposit "billions and billions of tons of ore with half a pound per ton — worth an awful lot."

Sarkis Ready to Resign To Force Beirut Truce

Times News Services

Lebanese president Elias Sarkis today threatened to resign to force an end to the worst fighting in Beirut since the 1975-76 civil war and a top Israeli official said his country would consider steps to halt the Syrian "massacre" of Christians in Beirut.

Lebanese sources said Sarkis tendered his resignation to Prime Minister Selim Hoss and other officials at a morning "crisis meeting." They said "intensive" efforts were under way to persuade him to reconsider.

The Israeli show of strength was seen as a warning to Syria to ease off the Christians, whose beleaguered positions came under the heaviest night of shelling since the end of the civil war.

In the capital, where fighting between Syrian peacekeeping troops and Christian militiamen intensified overnight, seven Israeli warplanes made two low sweeps, shaking the city with deafening sonic booms.

Terrified residents ran for cover as the Israeli planes flew in from the sea and blazed over the capital in two swoops. The force of the sonic booms was so great they shattered glass in many sections of the city and some Beirutis obviously thought they were bombs.

In Tel Aviv, Eliahu Ben-Elissar, chief of military intelligence and one of Prime Minister Menachem Begin's top advisers, said, "We consider with profound concern and gravity the events in Lebanon."

Non-Metric Labels Knock Head Off Beer Shipment

Beer from the United States is easing the drought in many hotel beer parlors, but B.C. watering holes would be a little more watery were it not for metrification.

Jack Thompson, distribution agent for the B.C. Hotels Association which placed the special order for 100,000 cases of 12 from a Jos. Schlitz Co. brewery in California, said only 72,000 cases could be provided because there weren't enough metric labels.

Leo Leavy, federal consumer affairs inspector, said much of the American beer coming into the province isn't labelled in French as well as English.

"But we've agreed it can all be landed; we're not trying to raise any artificial barriers."

The metric criterion is firm though.

Thompson said some hotels have received their share already and all hotels included in the order should be selling the U.S. brew by the weekend.

Another association spokesman said another order has already been placed with the brewery as beer parlor operators don't anticipate the supply lasting long.

Finding beer has been a difficult task since workers at four breweries were locked out June 8, an industry response to a strike which began May 26 at Carling-O'Keefe in Vancouver.

Stockpiles ran low at most pubs and beer parlors, and the beer-drinking public was forced either to make border runs of their own or to rely on the liquor distribution branch's dwindling supply of U.S. and European beer.

"There's no way we can really meet the demand," said branch spokesman Janet Willson. "It's a peak time of year for beer drinkers. We could use more Olympia, but they and Schlitz are producing at maximum capacity already."

John Langley, business agent for the Canadian Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers which represents the workers, said the union is allowing the distribution of U.S. beer because it feels it may place additional pressure on employers to return to bargaining.

BC Tel Overtime Approved By AIB

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal anti-inflation board announced Wednesday that it will not penalize non-union employees of the British Columbia Telephone Co. whose wage increases exceed the federal guidelines, because "extraordinary overtime payments" were made during a 81-day strike-lockout.

"The board approved the increases . . . on the basis that the increases were within the spirit and intent of the anti-inflation program," a press release said.

The Telecommunications Workers Union (TWU) earlier asked the board to investigate the overtime payments made to supervisory personnel, who worked during the bitter labor dispute.

The guideline figure for 1977 was six per cent but 146 engineers were given an increase of 6.52 per cent, 1,804 management employees were granted a 6.55 per cent raise and 67 employees exempted from the union got an increase of 7.47 per cent.

The board also approved a two-year above-the-guideline increase of 6.1 per cent and 4.23 per cent won by the 9,697 TWU members.

Chretien Firm on Sales Tax, Loto

WINNIPEG (CP) — The federal government has no intention of extending financial aid to the provinces for temporary sales tax cuts beyond October, federal Finance Minister Jean Chretien said today.

Chretien also indicated that Ottawa will not back down from its intention of extending the federal lottery, Loto Canada, beyond 1979. Under a federal-provincial agreement it was to expire next year.

The sales tax measure, part of Chretien's April budget, has been successful in spurring more consumer spending, he said after a morning meeting with provincial finance ministers. But, he said, with a federal deficit of $11½ billion the government cannot afford more financing.

The temporary tax cuts will cost Ottawa about $850 million because it is financing two-thirds of the provinces' revenue loses.

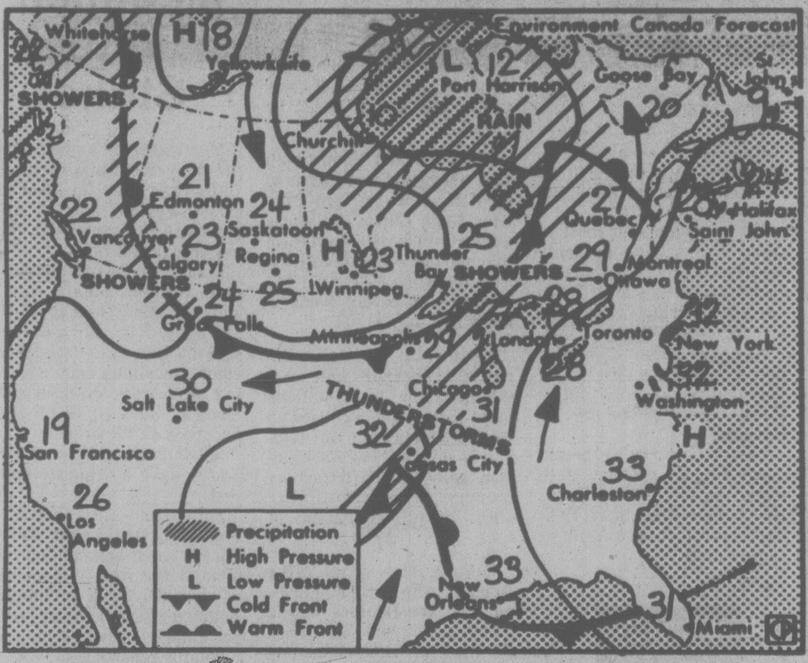
At least one provincial minister, Don Craik of Manitoba, had suggested the meeting should discuss extending the reduction and increasing the federal financing for it.

Darcy McKeough, Ontario's treasurer, said outside the meeting the province would not continue the sales tax reduction in any case.

The provinces feel the federal lottery is an intrusion into their jurisdiction that impedes their ability to raise revenues.

"We're in the lottery business; they're in the lottery business," Chretien said. "They're uneasy now that we are doing well."

the weather



Map valid until noon Friday

A ridge of high pressure near the coast will keep Pacific disturbances offshore today. However, clouds will occasionally cover coastal areas as moist air moves in overnight, then slowly dries during the day. Generally sunny and warm weather will prevail in the Interior except near the Rockies where a weak frontal system will produce some cloud and isolated showers.

U.S. Outlook Discouraging

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration has revised its economic forecast, and the news is bad. The president's economists are now predicting an inflation rate this year in excess of seven per cent, and an economic growth rate barely sufficient to keep unemploynment from rising.

In its annual mid-year review of the economy, scheduled to be released today, the administration will forecast a 7.2 per cent increase in consumer prices in 1978, up from the six per cent the president predicted in January.

The administration has also lowered its growth projections, expecting only a 4.1 per cent increase in economic output this year, compared with 4.7 per cent predicted last January.

Economists say it takes about a four per cent growth rate to generate enough new jobs to keep unemployment from rising. In the mid-year review, the administration predicts that unemployment will fall only a tenth or two-tenths of a percentage point in the rest of this year — to an average of 5.9 per cent in the year's last three months from the 6.1 per cent recorded in May. It will then fall to only 5.6 per cent by the last three months of 1979, according to the new estimates.

The new inflation and growth forecasts come amid fears that the Federal Reserve, the nation's central bank, will continue to drive up interest rates to curb inflation — and may choke off expansion in the process.

In its mid-year forecast, the administration predicts little inflation relief or improvement in economic growth next year.

White House economists anticipate consumer prices will rise 6.5 per cent next year, a sharp upward revision from the 6 per cent inflation rate projected for 1979 last January.

Similarly, the administration forecasts the economy will grow only 4.3 per cent next year, as measured by the so-called real gross national product, the value of the total output of U.S. goods and services adjusted for inflation.

Even the 4.3 per cent growth rate for next year is considered optimistic by many economists.

But the administration does not intend to add to its stimulus of the economy next year, according to the new projections.

The administration predicts spending in the current fiscal year (which ends Sept. 30) will be $452.3 billion, down $1.2 billion from last March's budget update. The deficit is expected to be $51.1 billion this year, compared with the March estimate of $53 billion.

Meanwhile, in Tokyo, the U.S. dollar regained strength against the yen today on the foreign exchange market, snapping a three-day decline, but foreigners living in Japan will still suffer from the drastic slide in the value of the dollar.

The dollar closed at 202.20 yen on the market, up by 1.20 yen from Wednesday's finish of 201.

In reality, however, the dollar was worth only about 197 to 198 yen at banks and hotels, thus hurting foreign residents and visitors who got as much as 300 yen in 1971 and 270 yen about a year ago.

Bloody London Race Clash

LONDON (Reuter) — Two Bengalis were in hospital today following an attack on non-white immigrants by white youths in the east end of London.

Eight Bengalis were injured when three carloads of white youths pulled up outside a brewery and attacked the group with bottles and bricks as they left work Wednesday night.

The gang drove off before police arrived at the scene. Two of the injured Bengalis were taken to hospital, one with rib injuries and the other with a suspected skull fracture.

The incident is the latest in a series of attacks on the 20,000-member Bengali community in the area. Police said the attack may have been in retaliation for alleged damage to a white man's car at the brewery some days ago.

"It was obviously planned like a military operation," said one witness. "The place looked like a battlefield. There was blood all over the road and bricks and smashed glass and crockery."

Police later detained two white youths for questioning.

English officials inspect blackened coaches after Cornish train holocaust

Train Blaze Kills 11

TAUNTON, England (AP) — Fire burned two coaches in a sleeper train in southwest England today, killing 11 passengers and injuring about 30, officials reported.

Authorities were investigating an unconfirmed report that an explosion caused the blaze aboard the train bound from Penzance, at the southwest tip of Britain, to London's Paddington Station.

Officials said 10 bodies were taken from the two burned-out cars. The 11th victim died at the home of Sandra Horne, a Labor party politician who lives near the railway track.

Ambulances carried about 20 persons to hospitals, and at least 10 others were given first aid at the wreck. Ten were admitted to hospital for burns and other injuries.

None of the casualties were immediately indentified, and it was not known whether any were foreigners.

The fire started about 2:50 a.m. just before the train reached Taunton, 225 kilometres along on its 488-kilometre trip to the British capital. Authorities said the blaze was confined to two of the cars.

"The train was stopped and I could see fire in the coaches," said Keith Jacobs, whose home is near the tracks. "The train was in flames and they were really high."

Mrs. Horne said one of the injured came to her door in pyjamas, covered with dirt and blood.

Red Satellite Bill Touches $12M Mark

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada told the main UN space body Wednesday that 100 kilograms of debris—some of it dangerously radioactive—has been recovered so far from the Soviet Cosmos satellite that disintegrated over the Northwest Territories last Jan. 24.

The cost of the widespread search covering an area of approximately 80,000 square kilometres has reached $12 million, Canadian delegate Eric Wang said.

In an interview, Wang indicated that it may be at least a couple of months before Canada presents a bill to the Soviet Union for the clean-up, but it will be much lower than the total cost.

The bill presented to the Soviet Union probably would be in the range of $3 million to $4 million, depending on what the final costs are and how long the clean-up goes on, he said.

He also said there might be further co-operation between the two countries on the disposal of the satellite's radioactive debris.

But it would be premature at this stage to pursue the disposal question because pieces are still to be uncovered in the search, he added.

NEW CASINO RAKES IT IN

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The Eastern U.S.'s only legal casino is winning an average of $534,627 a day and will take in more than $192 million in its first year if gamblers keep up their frantic betting pace here.

Wednesday, officials of Resorts International Hotel Casino released figures for June showing their new casino won $16.04 million in its first full month of operation.

The new average daily win figure is 22 per cent higher than the average daily win of $438,504 for the casino's first six days from May 26 through May 31, which includes the Memorial Day weekend.

"Those were pretty good figures," chairman James M. Crosby conceded. "It's attracting other people to town to build their own casinos, which is the point of it all."

The casino's win is similar to a business' gross revenues before capital costs, operating expenses and taxes.

YOUTH GANG BATS STROLLERS

NEW YORK (UPI) — A gang of youths roaming through Central Park late Wednesday night attacked strollers at random with baseball bats and tree branches, injuring five people, one critically, police said.

The assaults left one man, Revel Lownes, 39, in critical condition at Roosevelt Hospital with a fractured skull. Four others were also treated for head injuries at Roosevelt. Of those, three were admitted to the hospital in satisfactory condition.

Police said the attack involved about seven youths who assaulted the victims as they walked in the park.

Passersby who heard the screams of the victims called police, who chased the attackers on foot but lost them.

New Kosygin Pitch

MOSCOW (WP) — One week after Soviet secret police released an American businessman from 15 days in jail on a currency charge, Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin declared Wednesday that the USSR wants broader trade ties with the United States.

Kosygin made his remarks while reviewing the Soviet economic structure in a speech to the Supreme Soviet, or parliament. He told the delegates at the Kremlin session that at present, only 2 percent of the United States' foreign trade turnover is with the Soviet Union.

Last Wednesday, Francis Jay Crawford, a resident business representative for the International Harvester Co., was released by the KGB from Lefortovo Prison; where he had been jailed after being dragged from his car by Soviet police June 11.

Crawford's seizure was widely interpreted among the foreign community here as Soviet retaliation for the jailing in America of two accused Soviet spies, who were freed at the same time Crawford was released.

The mutual release took place after secret negotiations between the Carter administration and the Russians.

Crawford has denied the Soviet allegation that he engaged in illegal currency transactions.

Park Wins In Walk

SEOUL (WP) — South Korean President Park Chung Hee was given a new six-year term today in the predictable culmination of an election that offered all the suspense of ice melting under a hot sun.

Park was the only candidate voted on by the National Conference for Unification, a sort of electoral college that was elected in May under restrictive rules laid down by Park's government under martial law six years ago.

It operates on the assumption that politics is too important to be left to the politicians. No one who has been politically active in the past three years can be elected to the conference, and that excludes South Korea's weak opposition parties.

Anyone who has violated a law is also excluded, and that takes care of the country's dissidents, most of whom have been jailed at one time or another for criticizing the Park government.

The only surprise was the early timing of today's election, which had been expected to take place this fall. The government announced last Saturday it would be held this week, leaving little time for politicking if anyone wanted to attempt opposition. No one did.

Observers here said the government apparently wanted to avert any build-up of criticism by holding the election today instead of waiting several months.

The New Democratic Party, a weak opposition group, decided last spring not to try fielding a candidate because political activists are excluded.

The party Wednesday issued a statement vowing continued opposition to the election system, demanding an end to Park's proclamations that stifle dissent and calling for "respect for human rights."

Back to First Principles

The debate of the last 20 years over what, for want of a better and more easily understood label, has come to be called in English Canada the "just-what-does-Quebec-want?" question turns more and more to first principles.

Why the hell should we have to learn French? They lost the war on the Plains of Abraham, didn't they? Why is bilingualism being rammed down our throats? Everyone has read or heard variations on these themes lately. No one has answered them more ably than Ian Macdonald, president of York University in Toronto.

In a speech last month to the Canadian Food Brokers Association, he sought to reassure the insecure among English-Canadians that preserving and extending certain rights for French-Canadians does not threaten others.

"To confer on others their rightful language rights does not diminish the rest of us in any way, to be a nation of two official languages is surely an asset and not a liability, to have a special history combining a native population, two founding races, and many cultures should provide a source of strength and distinction as we seek to co-exist with a powerful and culturally aggressive neighbor.

"Unfortunately, the whole language question has been vested with a number of myths, in part to do with policies of bilingualism, and many misunderstandings. In the correspondence one reads in the newspapers, the following arguments are raised:

"(1) The French-Canadians should have no language rights. Surely 27 per cent of the population and the members of one of the two founding races are entitled to such rights.

"(2) Encouraging the French language poses a threat to those of us who are English-speaking. Can anyone seriously believe such a suggestion in a continent of 240 million people, of who more than 230 million speak English, and in a world where the language of commerce is and likely will remain English?

"(3) French-language services will be an unnecessary expenditure. Of course they cost money, but what price are we prepared to pay in the interest of national unity? What would the cost be of Canada breaking up?

"(4) We will all be obliged to learn French. No one has suggested that English-speaking Canadians must or should learn French."

A completely separate matter is the "advisability, the advantage, the added dimension to our life which a capacity in our second language would bring . . ."

O Canada, our national anthem, refers to "our home and native land," he noted. "But a home is a place we can love, and a place where tolerance and understanding should prevail."

When Will They Ever Learn?

Some elected officials just never learn.

For weeks, local governments have been being defended in the press and by some of the clearer-thinking members of the public against the idea of a tax revolt inspired by the success of California's Proposition 13. We have accepted the arguments of politicians that there really isn't that much "fat" in government budgets, that massive tax cuts would have to be accompanied by massive cuts in public service.

But then some officials, notably those on Saanich council, proceed to demonstrate to anyone watching that there's lots of fat to be cut there yet. At a meeting this week, council voted an open-ended expense account for four people from the municipality — two aldermen and two municipal staff members — to go tootling about all over North America looking at tennis facilities.

If that sort of trip isn't a frill that could well be trimmed from the municipal budget, we don't know what is. Some taxpayers, for heaven's sakes, would say that the tennis facilities themselves are a frill, let alone trips to Kentucky, Colorado, and Calgary to see which design would be the best for them.

Since no figures have been given, it's not possible to calculate exactly what the trip will cost Saanich taxpayers. But the cheapest round-trip fare between Victoria to Kentucky would be $450 per person, or $1,800 for the four of them. Add to that detours to Calgary and Colorado, meals and hotel bills, and it seems impossible the trip can be accomplished for less than $3,000.

If Saanich really wants to study the design of tennis facilities, may we suggest, instead of the spending of that sort of money, a trip to Oak Bay where they have a tennis bubble that seems to work quite well, or one far afield to Central Saanich where the private Island Indoor Tennis club built some indoor courts a few years ago? If council really feels the need to look at facilities as far away as Kentucky, may we suggest they write the municipalities or private clubs involved and ask for photographs and reports? They could send a self-addressed, stamped envelope. The mailing costs would be a lot less than sending four people there on an airplane.

And if there is some absolutely compelling reason why someone has to see these structures first hand — a reason that certainly hasn't been given to the public yet — how about council sending one person and letting him bring back a report to the other three?

Councils that agree to such trips by aldermen and staff have nobody but themselves to blame if the taxpayers' revolt becomes as much a reality here as it has in California.

TOM WICKER

1980 Awaits Ronald Reagan

LOS ANGELES — Before two visitors had a chance to knock, the door of Ronald Reagan's comfortable house in Pacific Palisades swung open as if triggered by an electric eye. But it was Reagan himself who peered out at his startled guests.

"I do this by magic," he said, with his familiar smile.

That's the casual level at which the former actor, governor and presidential candidate is operating these days — a good many notches down from the tension and excitement of the 1976 campaign in which he failed by only a few delegate votes to seize the Republican presidential nomination from the incumbent — if unelected — Gerald Ford.

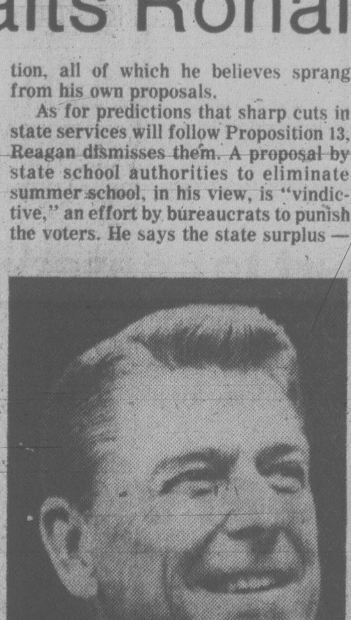
Can Have Top Spot

Some analysts believe those few lost delegates prevented Ronald Reagan from defeating Jimmy Carter by denying Carter Texas and one or more of the southern state victories on which his election depended. And although Ford recently ran ahead of Reagan in a Gallup poll, Republicans all but unanimously ranked the Californian as the frontrunner for the 1980 presidential nomination, if he seeks it.

At first glance, it's hard to see why he would. Relaxed in a knit shirt, slacks and blue espadrilles, he obviously enjoys the low, rambling house he built 20 years ago on a secluded hillside, with a swimming pool just outside the living room and the considerable comforts of California all around. After eight years of governing the nation's largest state, and two shots at the presidency, another man might be content to settle in with Nancy Reagan and enjoy the good life.

In fact, Reagan talks eagerly and knowledgeably about Proposition 13, the property tax-limiting initiative recently approved by a landslide vote. He sees it as a direct descendant of his own tax-limitation initiative, which Californians rejected only a few years ago; and he proudly points to numerous other state efforts to limit taxes, as well as to the National Committee on Tax Limitation, all of which he believes sprang from his own proposals.

As for predictions that sharp cuts in state services will follow Proposition 13, Reagan dismisses them. A proposal by state school authorities to eliminate summer school, in his view, is "vindictive," an effort by bureaucrats to punish the voters. He says the state surplus — resulting from the combination of inflation with a progressive income tax passed during the Reagan administration — is more than ample to prevent such dislocations, if properly used.



RONALD REAGAN
. . . eager as ever

If Reagan thus sees himself as something of a prophet ahead of his time, and tax limitation as the wave of the future, it would seem natural for him also to seek personal political vindication. And he's staying busy on the Republican fundraising and political lecture circuit, putting particular emphasis on inflation; what he sees as President Carter's "vacillation" in foreign policy and "selectivity" in applying his human rights policy; and the Kemp-Roth tax reduction bill, a popular Republican cause.

About Carter and Republican prospects in 1980, Reagan is cautious. The president obviously is in trouble politically, he concedes, but adds: "He can read the polls, too." The implication is that he expects Carter to begin shaping his actions to improve his standing with the voters.

Ronald Reagan is generally considered the master of television campaigning, and he professes no worries that the medium so dominates politics today. Rather, he believes, "television revives the stump," by taking candidates directly to the people. And he adds: "One thing I learned as an actor: you can't come over on the camera unless you really believe the lines you're speaking."

A Rare Bird

That may be the key to his effectiveness as a campaigner and to the fervor he inspires in so many followers. Reagan appears to be that rare bird, an American politician with a political philosophy — not just a set of positions on a given list of issues, but a genuine conviction that that government is best which governs least. Critics argue that as governor he did not always act on that conviction, owing either to expediency or political necessity. Others term it simplistic, but Ronald Reagan leaves little doubt — in person or on television — that he holds his philosophy sincerely.

If that's the case, will he be guided in deciding whether to run for president in 1980 more by his personal wishes or by his concept of duty? "Some of both," he replies, talking at length about past decisions and future considerations, but leaving the strong impression that he does believe there sometimes is an obligation "to fill a spot if you're the right person to do it."

Taxes Up 37.6%!

I would like to add my concern over increasing property taxes. My property taxes are up this year $169.22, with an out of pocket increase (after the grant) of 37.6 per cent.

This is really heavy for a homeowner 77 years old. I see no justification for that kind of spending by our elected representatives. Remember, oldsters! — E. Reial, 2661 Estevan Avenue.

AIB Salaries

I was distressed by your recent editorial (Setting an Example, June 16) criticizing the Anti-Inflation Board for allegedly proposing larger pay increases for its own employees than will be granted other public servants. While inferring that the editorial was based on an erroneous Canadian Press report which was later corrected, I nevertheless feel that your news judgment should have questioned an allegation that the government's AIB was proposing to breech its own pay guidelines. Perhaps you have now received my news release of June 19 in which I point out the misrepresentation of the facts in the news stories concerning the AIB's proposed spending estimates for 1978-79.

"The fact is that this is no aberration of the anti-inflation guidelines. The salary or wage increases proposed for the AIB staff are totally and completely within the guidelines. There is no special treatment. There are no extraordinary circumstances. In short, what was presented to the public by the news media as a bid for salary increases was, in fact, a review of the AIB's main estimates submission to parliament for spending authority, with no attempt being made to differentiate between the two. It ignored the whole budgetary process in a search for a sensational-type news story.

Let me add that AIB employees receive pay increases of exactly the same amounts as employees in other departments and agencies as we negotiate on an occupation-group basis across the public service of Canada. All such increases are within the AIB guidelines. If you have not already had an opportunity to correct the impression created by your editorial, I would suggest that out of a sense of fairness you consider doing so. — Robert K. Andras, President of the Treasury Board, Ottawa.

Garage Sale

The day of the handicapped person being shut in the house and senior citizens being put into old folks homes is now a thing of the past. The fact that it is a thing of the past is not entirely because the general public are gradually becoming aware of the fact that these persons do have all the same rights as anyone else, but a great deal because the handicapped and the seniors have themselves realized that they are not incapable of doing for themselves.

You may or may not have heard of Battin-Fielding memorial housing, but the persons who reside therein are seniors and handicapped. They have their own social club, formed years before the arrival of my husband and myself, and when we were fortunate enough to acquire our accommodation in the complex we became involved in the activities of the club. We hold the positions of president and secretary.

Each year it is the duty of those in office to think of ways to raise funds which are to be put to use in supplying the tenants with little extras that make our small community more enjoyable because we did it ourselves. The British Columbia Housing Commission encourages us to work for ourselves, by offering us a grant each year — each year we have been able to raise at the very least $1,000. We take great pride in our endeavours; however there comes a time we find we must ask for some help from you, the general public of Victoria.

This year we wish to hold a garage sale on Oct. 7. It is very difficult for the tenants to collect such items. This is where we would ask you to give us a helping hand. Anyone who is willing to donate articles, and anyone willing to collect them for us should contact Mrs. G. Hodgson at 383-0473.

We would especially appeal to the business community for the needed articles that we will be able to sell. We understand that in the past the business persons in Victoria have been more than generous in their contributions, and we hope your generosity will be as great this year.

It may not seem too important to the general public that the funds supply the tenant with a night out two or three times a year, but to the folks of Battin-Fielding those night outs are very much enjoyed and in our eyes very essential.

Thank you, all you wonderful people of Victoria. We know you will not let us down. — Mrs. R. E. Hodgson, Secretary, Battin-Fielding Memorial Social Club, 880 Vernon Avenue.

Need Referendum

The new Canadian constitution must contain a provision that the government goes to the people on major issues of new expenditures.

The only way in which the democratic system can work properly is for the people to be allowed a voice in the top level decision of their country. As the California experience has shown, you can push the people only so far.

Unfortunately, in Canada, we don't have a referendum system. It must be part of our constitution

Accepted at that level it then should be applicable at the provincial and municipal levels.

Canadians as with Americans feel an angry desperation that all input citizens should have is lost once government is elected. — Kay Lines, 829 Broughton Street.

Gov't Information

I write to compliment you on your excellent editorial of July 3, Freedom of Information. As you point out, the debate in parliament has escalated and seems to be focused increasingly upon the issue of who will be empowered under a freedom of information act to review government decisions which deny access to documents requested by the citizen. Most parliamentarians, both on the government and opposition side of the House, agree that a bill must contain the general principle of free access to government records, subject to certain obvious exceptions such as matters pertaining to national defence, cabinet deliberations, and law enforcement.

The bone of contention is now whether the minister should have the final say as to whether a document in his or her department or agency for which he or she answers should be released or whether an independent officer, such as an information commissioner or a judge, should decide. John Roberts, the minister responsible for freedom of information reform, thinks that such an independent review would be contrary to our parliamentary principles. Both the Conservatives and the NDP, as made clear in the House of Commons debates of June 22, think that such a review by a disinterested third party is essential to meaningful legislation of this kind.

It is heartening to note that on June 28, the parliamentary committee that has spent years of studying freedom of information tabled its report in the House. With admirable concision, the Standing Joint Committee on Regulations and other Statutory Instruments recommends a review process whereby an information commissioner is set up to review all contested documents in private and to advise the minister concerned of his or her decision. If the commissioner believes the document does not fall within the nine or 10 exemptions to the rule of total disclosure, the citizen requesting the document is so informed and then is allowed to appeal to a federal court judge. The committee concludes that if the minister has the unreviewable discretion regarding disclosure the law would be a "sham."

The Liberal government is committed to bringing forward freedom of information legislation in the next session of Parliament. The B.C. government will soon release a position paper on access to information possessed by the provincial administration. Unless there is some provision for independent review such as that recommended by the all-party Senate and House committee, then there is little hope that such legislation will do much to dispel official secrecy or bolster accountability in a "participatory democracy." — T. Murray Rankin, Assistant Professor, Faculty of Law, University of Victoria.

Elvis Benefit

Aug. 16, 1977, will remain etched in black in the heart of every Elvis Presley fan and friend in the world. Aug. 16, 1978 will be a day devoted to the memory of Elvis and his generosity, and is being sponsored by The Foundation (tcb), Inc., a non-profit organization of Elvis fans based in Boise, Idaho.

This date kicks off a five-city tour of fundraising concerts performed by the backup singers who appeared with Elvis during the last six years of his life; J. D. Sumner and The Stamps. All proceeds from these concerts are to be donated to muscular dystrophy, the heart association, glaucoma research, St. Jude's Research Center, and research in internal medicine. J. D. Sumner and The Stamps will be appearing in Nampa, Idaho Aug. 16, in Portland, Oregon Aug. 17, in Seattle Aug. 18, in Cheney, Wash., Aug. 19 and in Calgary Aug. 20.

The foundation requests that any of Elvis' former musicians, co-stars, technicians, co-workers, and friends living in the northwest — and it is understood that there are quite a few — come forward and join in making this fundraising tour a success in his memory. The Foundation may be contacted by writing P.O. Box 1635, Boise, Id. 83701, or calling (208) 344-1770. Elvis gave so much — now it's our turn. — The Foundation (tcb) Inc., Boise, Idaho.

Tom 'n Huck

When you find a story worthy of the front page (Tom 'n Huck Spark Search, June 19) it would be nice if you got the facts straight. Darren Kohler, my grandson and son of Valerie Kohler, Mortimer Street, and Darren Zuk were missing from 3:45 p.m. June 18. They were using two large inner tubes and got into fast water on Englishman River and could not return. They got ashore and walked six hours in the opposite direction as they could not return to their families who were swimming, because of the cliffs. They came out at Allsbrook Road and phoned their aunt who got a call to their parents who picked them up. They did not abandon the tubes and dragged them through the woods. The tubes are now in my back yard.

No newspaper mentioned that all of Errington's volunteer firemen were searching the provincial park and river area. Families of the boys wish to express thanks to all those who took part in the search. — Mrs. June Macrae, Box 134, Errington, B.C.

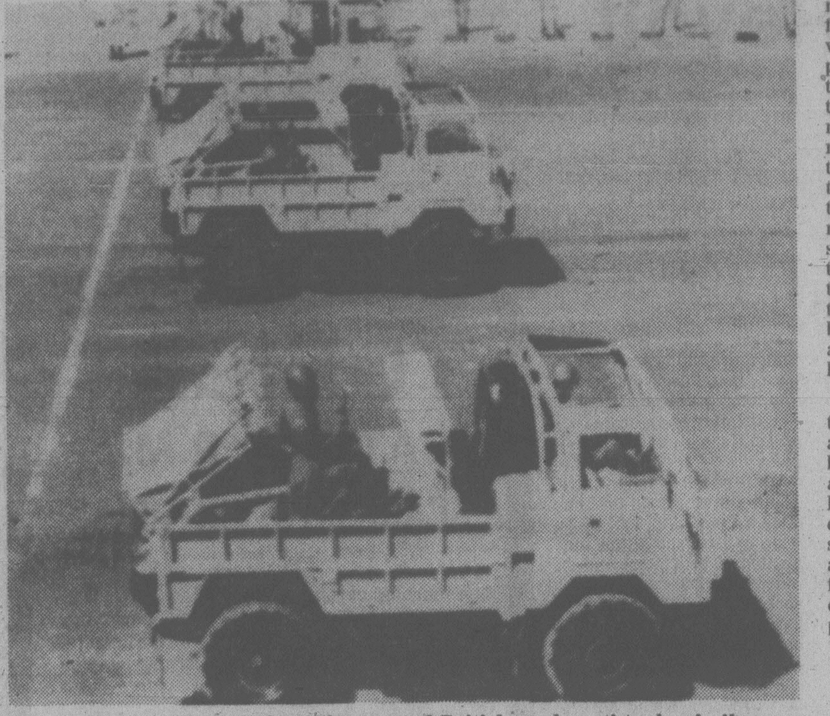
Britain's Two Faces On Arms Trade

By ANTHONY SAMPSON
London Observer



Egyptian Army trucks with mounted British-made anti-tank missiles

One day last month, while the Disarmament Conference was in session at the United Nations, the Duke of Kent opened a fairground in Aldershot with opposite ambitions: the bi-annual British Army Equipment Exhibition, whose chief purpose is to boost the sales of weapons to foreign countries, particularly to the Third World.

Britain's cross-purposes are well defined. In a carefully written speech at the UN two weeks ago, which was much praised by other delegates, Prime Minister James Callaghan spoke of Britain's central role in disarmament, and stressed that the suppliers of arms had a special responsibility to practise restraint. Yet only two weeks later teams of British salesmen are shouting their wares at an arms fair, to sell still more guns, tanks and ammunition to customers abroad. Where exactly does the "special responsibility" lie?

Little Protest

The public protest is certainly limited. A few left-wing MPs have complained about the arms fair, and the redoubtable Campaign Against the Arms Trade — a federation of churchmen, pacifists and liberals — organized demonstrations against "Death Sales Week". They scattered leaflets and paraded with posters, and four British monks fasted for four days. But most Members of Parliament are too worried about arms workers in their constituencies, or too bored by the whole subject, to concern themselves. With high unemployment and a history of export failures, few people are too keen to criticize one of Britain's most successful exports, worth about $2 billion a year.

Yet it would be a mistake to regard the opposition to arms sales as being confirmed to pacifists or Buddhists. Under the cloak of secrecy which always covers arms selling, there is now a very serious unease among many diplomats, strategists and even some generals at the extent to which the selling of weapons has got out of control. Recently, talking to some of the chief participants, I have been struck by the extent of the concern.

Many diplomats are increasingly worried by the consequences of the arms deals, and they see all too clearly how government arms salesmen in the field can stir up requests for weapons which become difficult to refuse. Theoretically the Foreign Office has a right of veto against all arms sales; and in a few cases (notably in selling guns to El Salvador) they have stood firm against the ministry of defence. But the major decisions go before cabinet, where the collective opinion usually favors any deal that offers more jobs; and the Defence Ministry makes much of the fact that the two senior Foreign Office ministers, David Owen and Frank Judd, both represent constituencies with naval dockyards.

Wider interest is effectively excluded by the closed circle by which each part of the government passes the buck. The arms salesmen argue that they are severely controlled by the ministry of defence and by Parliament. MPs are prevented even from asking relevant Parliamentary questions, on grounds of national security.

Thus any serious informed debate — of the kind that has been raging in the United States over the past four years — goes by default. The argument for greater restraint of arms sales — as opposed to the pacifist argument for total abolition — rarely reaches the public, or even Parliament.

'Wrong Side'

Of course the Soviet Union has been pushing arms into Africa, and increasing the insecurity and the demands for weapons. But the West is still way ahead of the Soviets in arms exports, and selling Western weapons is no guarantee of encouraging anti-Communist policies. Many Western weapons have ended up on the "wrong" side: American fighters from Ethiopia machine-gunning Somali hospitals; British equipment in the arsenal of Colonel Qadhafi; British tanks and missiles sent to Jordan and ending up in South Africa; Belgian guns used by rebels invading Zaire.

Yet the decisions about selling British weapons remain extraordinarily casual. The dominating motive is to provide jobs and profits, and so long as politicians remain ignorant and apathetic, the salesmen will romp in the vacuum, forming in effect their own foreign policy through their deals and special relationships with foreign governments.

The language of the British government arms salesmen is as zealous as that of any high-powered huckster, with an added element of military confidence; a recent hearty briefing note from Army Marketing urges customers to join "the club" by advertising in the official arms catalogue (kept secret from the public), and offers to rent space on the naval floating exhibition which will sail to Africa and Latin America in September.

Of course the British can always pass the blame to the Americans, who are responsible for more than half the world's arms trade. And it is true that under President Carter the U.S. is guilty of similar contradictions. The president came into office insisting that his country cannot be both the world's leading arms salesman and the leading spokesman for peace; but America is still both. But the U.S. has at least openly faced up to the problem; and has begun to refuse all sales to several unreliable countries, like Iraq or Libya — where Britain is still doing business.

And of course it is easy to pass the blame on to Third World countries, who resent, as an infringement of their sovereignty, any attempt by arms suppliers to control their exports, and who will always threaten to buy from the Soviet bloc. But this cannot absolve the supplying nations, as the prime minister admitted, from the "special responsibility for arms control, and still less can it justify Britain's role as the active salesman and promoter of weapons abroad. If Britain devoted half the energy to selling construction and development projects that it devotes to arms selling, the future of Third World countries could be appreciably altered.

As it is, the arms salesmen are helping to determine, not only the allocation of scarce resources, but the patterns of societies — complete with military-industrial complexes and military elites — for decades to come. For a nation with such a long and melancholy experience of the effect of wars in the Third World, it is a squalid aftermath.

How could the "special responsibility" which Callaghan promises be transacted into effective action? Only, in the first place, if the British government, together with the other Western Powers, can first remove the economic pressures from arms sales, to ensure that decisions are made on grounds of genuine security. It is not as difficult as it sounds; for many of the economic benefits turn out to be less convincing than they first appear. There are doubts (as the Public Accounts Committee has made clear) as to how many arms deals actually make a profit. There are further doubts about the benefits to our own defence production of foreign orders which may have quite different specifications. And some trade unionists are beginning to question what kind of long-term job security is provided by a business which fluctuates so wildly and which locks up so many engineers.

There is also growing skepticism about the underlying assumption that Britain must have its own independent arms industry. European collaboration would remove one of the chief justifications for selling British weapons abroad — that they help pay for our own defence and the extravagant American imports.

Blind Spot

But any change of direction away from the arms-sales race depends on a major act of political will: and this in turn will depend on a far greater measure of public debate, so that the doubts and worries can be brought to the surface, to be aired in Parliament. If the British government, having made a bold stand at the UN, allows the whole problem to slip back into secrecy, they will have shown that they are not prepared to face up to their "special responsibilities."

Every generation, it has been said, has its own blind spots, which are incomprehensible to future generations: the eighteenth century slave traders, the employers of child-workers of the early nineteenth century, the Western leaders who decided to drop the bomb on Hiroshima — they all later seemed unimaginable to their grandsons' generation. Among the images of the 1970s which may look most incomprehensible to our grandsons could be an arms fair under Royal patronage, enthusiastically selling weapons to the Third World.

MORRISSEAU . . . entertains in style

Garden Party With Tomtoms

By ROBIN GREEN

When Ojibway artist Norval Morrisseau bought an antique silver tea service and a set of Royal Crown Derby cups and saucers during a visit to Toronto last month, his friends knew something unusual was afoot. Jokingly, someone suggested he give a garden party, just like the Queen does at Buckingham Palace. That, it turned out, was exactly what Morrisseau had in mind.

So it was last Sunday morning 21 friends, colleagues and admirers of the artist chartered a DC-3 aircraft for $3,300 and flew 750 miles to an isolated landing strip near Beardmore, north of Thunder Bay, where Morrisseau lives and stood waiting on the tarmac to receive his guests with gifts for each of them of rare American buffalo nickels.

"It was the most extraordinary day of my life," says Toronto gallery owner Jack Pollock, who had arranged for one of the guests to stay up half the night and then inject oranges with vodka for the passengers to suck on during the flight. "All of us agreed we had never seen or heard of anything like it".

Guests, who included Robert Houle, curator of contemporary native art in the National Museum of Man in Ottawa, architect Spencer Royle Higgins, lawyer Richard Baker, artists Madeleine McDowell and Helen Duffy, and House of Commons recording secretary Barbara Stimpson, all wore their best garden party attire — flowered hats and long, flowing gowns on the women, and elegant summer suits on the men.

Having reportedly assured good weather for the occasion by baring his loins to the sun goddess, Morrisseau blessed his guests in his chair-filled wilderness garden with smoke from a dish filled with burning herbs and cedar boughs. Then, to the sounds of tomtoms and Ojibway songs, the silver tea service of the Royal Crown Derby china were brought out and everyone sat down to a meal Morrisseau himself had prepared of bannock (unleavened Indian bread), wild rice, and tea brewed from raspberry roots, flowers and branches.

"When we left his house later to go into Beardmore for dinner — rather more mundane, but good country fare — Norval gave each of us a drawing," Pollock recalls. "And when we said goodbye, there wasn't a dry eye in sight. I'll never, ever forget it. Even Fellini couldn't have dreamed up anything quite so dream-like."

It's a Question of Free Will

By RICHARD COHEN
The Washington Post

I tell you now of a man named McCarthy.

He was a big man, a truly big man, standing well over six feet tall and weighing, I would guess, more than 250 pounds. He was once, I think, a cop, but at the time I knew him he was a social worker, a youth worker, a very important youth worker with hundreds of kids out there on the streets who were fighting and stealing and occasionally killing.

And McCarthy, who was also a teacher, would stand before his class and try to reconcile all of this with, would you believe, the doctrine of free will. He said it could not be done.

It was a lecture I will never forget. It took place a long time ago, in a place called night school, in a class where there were some nuns and priests, in a course called criminology, and McCarthy is discussing free will. He is a Roman Catholic, a graduate, I think, of Fordham University. The Jesuits believe in free will. McCarthy would like to be a good Catholic, but he has been out on the streets. McCarthy has his doubts.

Presidential Pardon

I bring this up now for a reason. I bring it up now because there are people writing once again about Patty Hearst. They are saying a number of things, but mostly it comes down to the contention that she was kidnapped, held, arrested, tried and sternly sentenced because she was this rarest of rare things, a Hearst — something over which she had no control.

Finally, it is said, she was not responsible for what she did anyway. She was brainwashed. Some of these people suggest Hearst should receive a presidential pardon. We are back, you see, more or less to the question of free will — free will as it applies to Patty Hearst. McCarthy would have loved it.

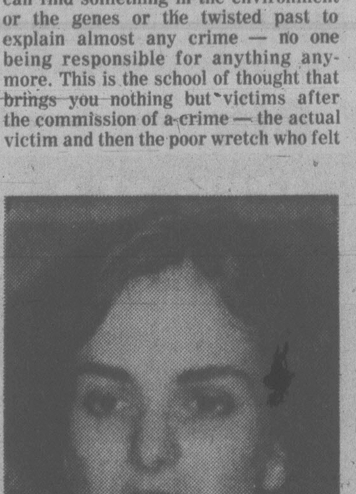
So do I. The whole idea of making Patty Hearst into a cause appeals to my columnist's heart. There is shock value there and entertainment value there and something to sink your teeth into — a matter well worth writing about. I mean, after all, there is something to be said about this and those who are saying it, I might add, are not your basic nobodies. One is Bob Green, columnist from Chicago and the other is the awesome William F. Buckley Jr., columnist and occasional spokesperson for God, who asked President Carter, in a recent column, to pardon Patty Hearst.

Buckley, like Green before him, argues that Hearst has had it rougher than your basic first offender bank robber and that, anyway, she clearly was not in control of herself when she helped the Symbionese Liberation Army rob that bank. Spring her, he suggests.

This brings us back to my old teacher, McCarthy. He was a criminologist and the concept of free will, upon which much of the law is based, troubled him greatly. He dealt all the time with kids who have very few options in life. They came from families mired in poverty and sometimes broken to smithereens, and crime was just a matter of time. This has been a tenet of liberalism, the notion that poverty and its consequences cause crime or, at least breed it. It makes a lot of sense.

Explain Any Crime

But it rankles also. It makes little allowance for the vast majority of the poor who are not criminals and it sort of holds no one responsible for anything. Things get even worse when you marry economics and psychology. Then you can find something in the environment or the genes or the twisted past to explain almost any crime — no one being responsible for anything anymore. This is the school of thought that brings you nothing but victims after the commission of a crime — the actual victim and then the poor wretch who felt compelled, for instance, to bop the other victim over the head. Clearly, this can be carried too far. Clearly the buck has to stop somewhere.



HEARST . . . responsible?

So now we come to Patty Hearst, to whom McCarthy's arguments on free will have been applied. She claims she was brainwashed. She claims that those nights in that closet, the days of unspeakable terror, the alleged rapes, the sweats and all the rest did her in — made something of an amoral vegetable of her. She relented. She caved. She took her rifle and joined her comrades in a bank holdup. She had the best of lawyers. She had a lot going for her. Nevertheless, the jury did not believe her. They felt there was evidence indicating otherwise. They felt she was accountable for what she did and they found her guilty. Not even a columnist can change a jury's verdict.

But there is still this matter of Patty Hearst's being a Hearst and in that sense a victim. There probably is something to that. Certainly she would not have been kidnapped if she were not the daughter of a multi-millionaire whose name has come to stand for privilege and conservatism, and maybe there is something to the contention that her sentence would not have been so stiff if she had been Patty Jones or Patty anything — your basic, run-of-the-mill first offender armed bank robber. I think at this point my old teacher McCarthy would slam his hat down on the desk and say that being rich is a bit different than being poor.

Best of Everything

He probably would say that your basic bank robber is someone with few options in this life — probably poor, probably ignorant, probably under-educated, probably a dummy to boot. If anyone deserves a break, he's the one.

Patty Hearst, on the other hand, had the best of everything, not the worst. She had all the options, all the perks, all the advantages. That is why the judge looked at her and said rehabilitation is not what she needed. She was not, after all, going to rob another bank. Instead, he said, she needed to be punished.

If you think that by now the punishment has been enough, I won't argue with you one way or another. But if you argue that Patty Hearst has suffered because she is a Hearst and that she should not be held accountable for what she did, then you have to ignore the jury's verdict and suspend the doctrine of free will on the grounds of wealth. My old teacher McCarthy would give you a fishy eye on that one and say what he said in a slightly different context years ago.

He'd say it could not be done

Heavy Registry Workload Touches Off Staff Revolt

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A small group of overworked civil servants has finally exploded in frustration and demanded an increase in staff.

Workloads which in some cases have doubled without an increase in staff are causing the revolt in the superior courts registry at the Victoria Law Courts.

The total staff of 16 has remained constant since 1973. In 1964 it was 11 and in 1970 it was 13.

Workload, measured by some actions, has doubled or tripled in the last 10 years.

Civil and criminal actions in county court have jumped from 513 in 1967 to 1,607 last year. In the same period, Supreme Court civil actions leaped to 1,962 from 934.

The registry staff must handle probate, divorces, bankruptcies and adoptions in addition to the general civil and criminal matters in county, Supreme and Appeal Courts and small claims which are heard in provincial court.

They must handle all the paperwork and record keeping in the office as well as being in court and make the arrangements for scheduling trials.

The staff has demanded, among other things, an immediate increase of three clerks — two for county court and one for Supreme Court — and have told their superiors the present situation has become "completely intolerable."

"The problem is that the volume of work is growing faster than the capacity of the registry to handle it," said David Wilson, president of the Victoria Bar Association.

"The number of judges and courtrooms and actions and applications of various kinds build up so quickly that the staff now are working in smaller quarters than before the courthouse renovations, working harder and harder and getting further and further behind."

He described the registry staff as extremely conscientious and hardworking, often staying on the job well past quitting time and even until 7 p.m. because of a sense of professional responsibility.

The situation will become critical in September when an extra county court judge will begin sitting in Victoria in an attempt to reduce the backlog of court cases.

This will mean three county court judges will be sitting (sometimes four) but there are only two regular county court clerks. In one week, there will be two Supreme Court justices presiding but there is only one regular Supreme Court clerk.

In one week, seven of the 14 registry staff (excluding the registrar and deputy registrar) will be needed in court and three will be on vacation, leaving four to serve the public.

Wilson said the staff has approached court administration and it has been indicated that permission has been obtained for one more employee at some future date, but this won't relieve the problem because the extra judge arriving in September will need a court clerk.

The bar association's past president, Dean Wilson, said the difficulty is that B.C. is locked into an austerity period and the number of court registry staff throughout the province has been frozen.

But he said this is a false economy in which the public ultimately suffers because of delays.

When provincial court was moved to the Law Courts from Fisgard Street, there was to be an integrated registry and training was to be provided so there could be some flexibility of staff, said David Wilson.

But this hasn't happened and, as well, the two staffs remain separated by a large storage room in the middle of their office which hasn't been used and which no longer has shelves.

He has been told an organizational change for an integrated registry has been before Treasury Board for approval since January.

He also said the appointment of a Master, to handle pre-trial civil matters in chambers without tying up a trial judge, which often produces delays in trials, has been held up for months in the ministry of the attorney-general.

When that step is taken, he said, there will be less wasted time, better service and a lower cost to the public, and it would improve co-ordination of trials by cutting down delays.

While the immediate solution to the workload problem is more staff, in the longer term Wilson suggested integration of provincial and superior courts registries, a speeding up and/or simplification of record procedures, and computer storage of information be considered.

But if there is to be a study, he warned, it would have to be done by someone wth substantial knowledge of court functions and documents.

CASS NAMED TO TRANSIT

Saanich Ald. Ian Cass, chairman of council's public transportation committee, has been named to represent the municipality on the soon-to-be-created regional transit commission.

Saanich council agreed Tuesday that if a second municipal representative is required on the body, Mayor Mel Couvelier should serve in that capacity.

Commuter Links Urged

The Greater Victoria area's most urgent need in public transportation is the provision of an adequate commuter service to the Saanich Peninsula and the Western Community, according to Saanich Ald. Ian Cass.

Addressing the Institute of Transportation Engineers of Vancouver Island at its meeting in Victoria, Cass said there is no commuter service on the Patricia Bay Highway and he described the existing service to Sooke, Colwood, Langford and Metchosin as a "joke."

Cass, chairman of Saanich council's transporation committee, said politicians at the provincial and federal level must be convinced that residents are not prepared to continue tolerating years of neglect in public transit.

He urged the engineers to prepare a comprehensive brief to senior governments, detailing public transit options for Greater Victoria.

COWICHAN RAIL LINE TO BE ABANDONED

OTTAWA (CP) — Abandonment of an 88-kilometre portion of the Cowichan subdivision rail line in B.C. from Victoria Wye to Deerholme was approved Wednesday by the Canadian Transport Commission.

In its decision the commission authorized the abandonment within 35 days of the branch line from Victoria Wye to Leechtown and, by June 30, 1979, the remaining portion of the line.

The commission said the line is uneconomic and is likely to continue to be uneconomic and that the operation thereof should be abandoned.

Canadian National Railway said it lost $129,191 operating the branch line in 1975 and lost $180,024 the year before.

Hat Creek Coal Clears a Hurdle

B.C. Hydro's proposed Hat Creek thermal generating plant came a step closer to development Wednesday with an announcement that a test burning of the coal had brought positive results.

In a press release, Hydro said 25,000 tons of Hat Creek coal have been tested at the Battle River power plant of Alberta Power Ltd.

Opponents of the Hat Creek project have argued that the coal is of a poor quality for burning and because of its special qualities should be utilized in sewage and waste treatment — not thermal generation.

Tests have shown the coal is highly effective in removing toxic wastes from effluents.

But Hydro executive Charles Nash said in a recent interview that the Alberta test burn showed that "the coal was satisfactory (as a fuel) and lived up to our expectations of calorific value and content."

Critics of the Hat Creek project have said serious environmental problems would result from coal dust if Hydro mines the coal in an open pit operation.

Oak Bay Riding Academy Slated for Development

Oak Bay council voted Wednesday night in favor of developing the former Victoria Riding Academy-leased municipal land covering 9.3 acres on Cedar Hill Cross Road beside Henderson Park.

Mayor Brian Smith and Aldermen Doug Watts, Shirley Dowell and Neil Swainson favored the development and Aldermen John Goult, Isabel Craig and Peter Bunn were opposed.

A bylaw which authorizes development not to exceed 29 single-family houses or 64 townhouses or 48 townhouses and 70 apartment units was given first and second reading with a 5-to-2 vote. Craig voted in favor saying the bylaw reduces the current high-rise zoning on the property.

Next step will be to set a date for a public hearing on the rezoning bylaw.

The majority on council left little doubt that of the three options contained in the bylaw, the favored one is a cluster development of 64 townhouses which a consultant has said should yield Oak Bay a net profit of $2 million. If this were applied to debt retirement, together with the increase in taxation from the development, municipal taxes would go down six mills, said Smith.

Timing of the development will be another consideration. Building contractor George Wheaton told the meeting he expected Oak Bay would have problems finding developers to submit bids because of the poor market for housing and the size of the project. He thought the development would have to be phased.

Ald. Watts was the principal speaker in favor of development. He said the land was purchased from the Hudson's Bay Company as an investment and it had been his intention that it be a source of funds for the Recreation Centre.

He also said it wasn't the last piece of green space in the area because there were 120 acres of golf course, 22 acres of Henderson Park, 75 acres of Uplands Park, 100 acres of wilderness at the University of Victoria and nine acres at Uplands elementary school.

"That area has the greatest percentage of open space of any part of the urban area of Greater Victoria," he said.

Ald. Goult was the principal speaker against development, noting that although the general concept of some sort of development had been before the public for some years, the specific proposals in a consultant's report had only been public for 10 days.

He said vast expanses of green space have gradually disappeared throughout the area in recent times and this is the last nine acres held by Oak Bay in one block. There is no need to rush into a decision and the market is poor, he said.

As the council members spoke, the issue was divided three-to-three and Ald. Swainson cast the vote in favor of development.

"This is a classic public policy issue," he said. "You can never go wrong arguing to keep your options open." He said there was a cost in doing nothing because of the loss of compounded interest from the profit of the scheme.

He said it was not possible for council to ignore the reality of annual budget problems and almost 40 per cent of Oak Bay residents were retired and not living on indexed pensions and they have said they are being squeezed.

CLUB HOUSE EXTENSION APPROVED

Saanich council has decided to go ahead with a proposed addition to the club house at the Cedar Hill golf course, despite the provincial government's refusal to pay one-third of the capital cost.

Council Tuesday authorized the project at a cost of $118,286, of which $50,000 will be contributed by club members.

Saanich will finance its $68,287 share through short-term borrowing.

The extension will provide an additional 860 square feet of space, with improved lounge, catering and other facilities.

Skateboard Park Set

Two young entrepreneurs obtained Saanich council approval Tuesday to build a proposed skateboard park on 1½ acres of municipally owned land adjoining the Cedar Hill golf course.

Several aldermen expressed concern that the principals of Saanich Skatewave Inc. — Tim Galavan and Bill Leninger — had not provided detailed drawings showing what the skateboard structure would look like.

They also wondered whether the whole idea should be aired at a public hearing of neighborhood residents, and whether skateboarding is waning in popularity.

But council finally approved a five-year lease agreement under which the firm would pay $6,000 a year plus five per cent of gross revenue.

Galavan said later the skateboard attraction, including ramps, pro-shop and skateboard rental facilities, could be completed in about six weeks. He estimated the cost would be about $100,000.

The firm plans to erect a bubble over the course this fall, to enable it to be used during the winter months.

Higher Grants For Day-Care

The provincial government plans to increase subsidies to privately-operated day-care centres and to close the remaining government-operated centres at the end of the month.

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Wednesday in an interview the government does not want to be involved in operating day-care centres because it is too costly. Day-care centres should be operated by private groups or societies, he said.

There are only six government day-care centres, all in Vancouver. Each is licensed for 20 children.

Vander Zalm said higher rates for privately-operated centres will be announced shortly. The present government subsidy for day-care operations by private groups is $140 a month for each child.

Bank Debits Increase Here

Debits to bank accounts in Victoria totalled $3,298 million in May, up from $3,124.3 million the previous May, the Canadian Bankers Association said.

The total in April had been $2,903.9 million.

The figures include all funds in bank accounts in the Greater Victoria area.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A revival in oil issues left the Toronto stock market mixed in active mid-afternoon trading.

Ashland Oil Canada Ltd. jumped $3.25 to $30.25 a share on its resumption of trading shortly before 2 p.m. after a halt issued at the opening.

Kaiser Resources Ltd. has announced it will offer $32.50 a share for the 84-year-old interest held by the United States parent company, Ashland Oil Inc.

The resumption was co-ordinated with those of the Montreal Stock Exchange and the American Stock Exchange at New York.

Great-West Life Assurance dropped 1¾ to $94, Asbestos Corp. ⅞ to $42¾, Molson Cos. B ⅝ to $16¼, Inco A ½ to $17¼ and Dylex Ltd. A ½ to $13.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined in moderate trading following a White House forecast for worsening inflation and slower economic growth this year.

Several casino-related stocks that rose sharply in earlier sessions fell back in active trading. Del E. Webb lost 1⅞ to $23½; Caesars World fell 1¼ to $26; Playboy Enterprises was off 1⅜ to $24⅜; and Bally Manufacturing slipped ¼ to $39¾.

Union Carbide, off ⅞ to $36⅜, led the NYSE-active list as of 2 p.m.

On the American Stock Exchange, Resorts International Class A, which gained 12¾ points as the most active issue Wednesday, fell 1¾ to $84¼.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices moved fractionally higher in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Volume at 2.30 p.m. EDT was 339,900 shares, compared with 397,300 shares traded up to the same time Wednesday. Imperial Oil A climbed ⅜ to $18¾, Molson A ⅛ to $18⅜, Carling O'Keefe five cents to $4.80, Alberta Gas Trunk Line A ⅛ to $14⅜, Consolidated Bathurst A ⅛ to $27⅝, Husky Oil 1½ to $39¼ and Pacific Petroleums 1⅛ to $36⅜. Inco A dipped ½ to $17¼, TransCanada PipeLines ¼ to $15⅝, Bank of Montreal ⅛ to $22⅜, Moore Corp. ⅛ to $37 and Seagram ¼ to $25⅝.

London

LONDON (CP) — Early gains were reversed near the close of light trading on the London stock market. The Financial Times index was unchanged at 452 an hour before the close. Leading industrials cut back on advances, while gold issues eased. Canadian stocks were mixed.

Lloyd's Okays

LONDON (Reuter) — For the first time since Lloyd's, the world's leading insurance community, started business 300 years ago a firm of U.S. brokers has gained access to the formerly exclusively British club.

Frank B. Hall and Co. Inc., the third-largest insurance broker in the United States, has obtained what amounts to Lloyd's seal of approval for a proposed $45-million takeover of brokers Leslie and Godwin, one of the oldest members of Lloyd's.

Lloyd's dominates the world insurance business, which now runs into billions of dollars every year. More than half of Lloyd's business comes from the United States, a Lloyd's spokesman said.

With the probable takeover of Leslie and Godwin, Frank B. Hall and Co. Inc. has secured direct access to the Lloyd's market.

inches: could've been the length of Cyrano's nose.
feet: would be a creditable high jump.
size: might've been Cinderella's glass shoe size.
interest: is an outstanding savings interest rate.
(paid semi-annually)

Noses and shoes are an uncommon combination in a savings ad.
In fact, it isn't very often that you see both an attractive rate of high interest and liquidity these days.
Come on in (before the carriage turns back into a pumpkin) and open an account. We'll help you get a jump on savings interest.

This Divorce Comes from Love

DALLAS — A 78-year-old man is reluctantly divorcing his sick wife after 45 years — so that she can continue to receive nursing home care.

C. W. King says he has been told by Medicaid officials that money he saved for burial expenses for himself and his wife Ruth exceeds the limit on assets and that Mrs. King's benefits may be discontinued.

Herb King, one of the couple's three children, said his mother is totally incapacitated with Huntington's Chorea, which deterioriates both the mind and body. Her entire social security cheque goes to the nursing home each month to pay her expenses and Medicaid pays the balance of about 60 per cent, King said.

About two months ago, he said, Medicaid sent a form to his father asking his financial status and noted that the maximum assets a couple is allowed is $2,250.

"He has $2,715 that he has scrimped to save for their burial," King said. "That's about $300 more than he's allowed. So they threatened to cut off his Medicaid.

He said his father will not talk about the situation because he is "scared to death."

It was this fear, he said, which caused his father to see a lawyer who advised him the best solution would be to divorce his wife.

That way, Mrs. King would have no assets in her name and her Medicaid would continue to pay for the nursing home.

The only other option would be for his father to sign over all his savings to someone else, which "he doesn't want to do."

Nude Photos Murder Clue?

LOS ANGELES — Actor Bob Crane, bludgeoned to death in a still-unsolved slaying in Arizona last week, was buried Wednesday.

Scottsdale police were investigating several leads, including a collection of photos of nude men and women found in the apartment where he was staying.

Among mourners were cast members of his long-running Hogan's Heroes.

Hiroshima Man Dies

HOUSTON — The man who spotted targets for the U.S. plane that dropped the atomic bomb on Hiroshima in August 1945 has died of cancer. Claude Eatherly was a 24-year-old U.S. Air Force pilot who picked out Hiroshima through a hole in the clouds that Aug. 6 and radioed the Enola Gay to bomb the city.

Van Houten escorted from court

MANSON GIRL FOUND GUILTY

LOS ANGELES — Leslie Van Houten, a former homecoming princess who became a murderer for Charles Manson, was sent back to prison Wednesday after being convicted for a second time on murder-conspiracy charges in the 1969 Tate-LaBianca killings.

A jury of six women and six men, although admitting sympathy for her, rejected Miss Van Houten's claim of diminished mental capacity and convicted her after a four-month trial and 34 hours of deliberation during nine days.

"She was upset, of course; extremely upset," said her lawyer, Maxwell Keith. "But she was brave as usual."

Moments earlier, Miss Van Houten, 28, sat frozen with shock as the jury announced its decision at her third trial in nine years.

In a hushed courtroom, three verdicts were read: guilty of first-degree murder in the slaying of Leno LaBianca; guilty of first-degree murder in the death of Rosemary LaBianca; guilty of conspiracy in the killings of actress Sharon Tate and four others.

In California, first-degree murder carries a mandatory life sentence with eligibility for parole after seven years. Miss Van Houten has already served eight years in prison.

CHINA VISIT FOR DIEF

PEKING — Former Canadian prime minister John Diefenbaker is planning on making a major trek to the Peoples Republic of China next autumn — providing a federal general election isn's called.

It was learned Wednesday that Diefenbaker has been formally invited by the Chinese government to visit this country as an honored guest and that he has accepted with the proviso that an election may mean postponement.

Smokers May Cause Angina in Others

BOSTON (AP) — A U.S. research team says heart disease sufferers who sit near cigarette smokers are more susceptible to the sometimes crippling chest pain called angina.

The findings give new ammunition to opponents of cigarette smoking who want to ban or at least segregate smoking in lobbies, restaurants and other public places.

"Since there are millions of people who have angina who are adversely affected by smoking, it is a definite health hazard," Dr. Wilbert Aronow, who directed the study, said in an interview.

The study found that men with heart trouble could not exercise as long as normal after they sat in a room with cigarette smokers. Some of them also had premature ventricular heart beats, a disorder associated with fatal heart attacks.

The results, gathered at the U.S. Veterans Administration hospital in Long Beach, Calif., were published in the latest issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Aronow tested 10 men who had suffered in the past from angina. He measured the effects on their bodies of sitting in 11-by-12-foot rooms for two hours with three people who each smoked five cigarettes.

Ordinarily, the men could exercise for four minutes before chest pains set in. But after breathing in the smoke-filled room, their average exercise limit fell to 2½ minutes.

And because of the smoke, their heart rates increased, their blood pressures rose and three of them had irregular heart beats.

Aronow said that breathing other people's cigarette smoke, or "passive smoking," is not as bad as smoking directly. "An active smoker is a worst risk, but nevertheless, a passive smoker is still at significant risk," he said.

Aronow said the carbon monoxide in cigarette smoke cuts down the amount of oxygen in the blood. But at the same time, the nicotine in the smoke increases the heart's demand for oxygen.

The situation is aggravated in angina patients. The vessels of their hearts can supply less oxygen than normal because they have been damaged by disease.

The symptoms of angina vary from a vague ache to a crippling, crushing pain. It is usually triggered by physical activity.

Earlier studies have linked cigarette smoking with heart attacks, cancer, respiratory ills and other diseases.

Ranjit Gets His; Ron Has Lead; Norm on Move

NORM BAKER
. . . enjoys a big night

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Veteran Ranjit Dillon of the Shamrocks took only 20 seconds to reach a couple of milestones in the Western Lacrosse Association;

The Shamrocks took a little longer, but not much, to dispose of Vancouver Burrards 24-8;

Ron MacNeil of the 'Rocks is the new WLA scoring leader;

Norm Baker made a bigmove on the point leaders;

And Dennis Somner broke loose.

All that as the Shamrocks took their fourth straight decision from the Mann Cup champions and moved five points ahead of the field in a penalty-filled game at Memorial Arena Wednesday night.

Dillon got his glory when he assisted on Charn Dhillon's goal on the first offensive play of the game. That assist gave him 700 lifetime assists and 1,100 points in his 13-year career.

Later, Dillon scored four goals and had three more assists for an eight-point evening. That moved him into a tie with former Shamrock star, Whitey Severson, with 1,107 points, sixth on the all-time point list, and only six points behind retired Mike Gates. It also tied the all-time club record.

Only two players have more assists. They are the former New Westminster star, Paul Parnell, who has 880, and Wayne Goss, who is still playing for the Salmonbellies, and has 808.

The Shamrocks blew the game open early against the defending league champions.

Scoring four power-play goals, they led 8-1 after the first period and 16-4 after two.

MacNeil took advantage of the occasion to get two goals and three assists for five points and now leads Brian Evans of Nanaimo Timbermen, 99 to 96, in the point derby.

Norm Baker also had a strong game for the 'Rocks. He led all pointmakers with four goals and seven assists and is only three points behind Kevin Alexander of Nanaimo Timbermen. Baker has 26 goals and 65 assists for 91 points.

Somner, who took the longest time to get untracked this season, contributed his first hat trick, while Rick Baker ran his goal output to 25 and his career total to 100, also with three.

Other scorers were Dhillon with two, and Gerry Cadwallader, Jerry McKenna, Larry Bell, Gord Lyons, Dan Green and Chris Hall with singles.

Ron Pinder scored four goals for Burrards, three coming in the final period.

Bill Rawson, Rico Bellusci, Terry Bingley and Dale MacKenzie scored the others.

The Rocks drew 56 of the 101 penalty minutes, while Ward Sanderson of the visitors led everybody with 17.

Shamrocks outshot Burrards, 59-48, with Larry Smeltzer going the distance for the 'Rocks in goal and Brad Berrow and rookie Leo Pearolini, just 16, dividing the duties for Burrards.

Coach Ross McDonald of Burrards suggested that one reason for the Shamrocks' rout can be explained by the toughness of the league race this year.

He pointed to the parallel that last week the Shamrocks, in winning, had a tough game against Burrards on the Tuesday night in Vancouver before getting blown out by the Salmonbellies the following night in Victoria. This week Burrards had a rugged test against Coquitlam on Tuesday and just didn't have the legs to keep up with the Irish Wednesday.

Shamrocks next meet Nanaimo Timbermen at Nanaimo, Saturday.

Jimmy Gains Final

LONDON (Reuter) — Second-seed Jimmy Connors of the United States bludgeoned his way into his fourth Wimbledon Men's tennis final in five years here today with a 9-7, 6-2, 6-1 semi-final victory over fellow American Vitas Gerulaitis.

Connors, champion in 1974 but losing finalist in 1975 and 1977, took two hours to tame third-seed Gerulaitis, who wilted against a rampaging opponent.

This was Connors at his best. He served magnificently—one double fault in the second set was his only lapse—and he struck a stream of volleys with murderous finality.

For a period in the first set it seemed Gerulaitis might make a fight of it. But with Connors making only a handful of errors, his game became increasingly ragged. In the end Gerulaitis was a dejected and dispirited loser.

In the second men's singles semi-final, defending champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden held a 5-3 lead in the first set over unseeded Tom Okker of the Netherlands when rain stopped play.

If Okker can upset top-seeded Borg today, he will be the first unseeded player to reach the final since Wimbledon went open in 1968.

The women's semi-finals Wednesday went according to seedings, but had their share of drama with No. 1 Chris Evert of the United States and No. 2 Martina Navratilova, the self-exiled Czechoslovak, winning through.

Evert, chasing her third title, dethroned 1977 champion Virginia Wade of Britain 8-6, 6-2 on one of the coldest days players and spectators could remember.

Navratilova, however, appeared in danger of losing until Australian Evonne Cawley, the 1971 title holder, hurt a leg as she went into a 4-3 lead in the third set.

Cawley turned sharply to hit a ball wide on her forehand, scrambled out in pain and dropped to her knees behind the baseline as her shot floated over Navratilova's head for a winner.

Navratilova asked in vain for the point to be replayed, telling the umpire she had stopped when she heard Cawley's anguished cry.

It made no difference. The disconsolate Australian was virtually immobile, lost the next three games and hobbled off the centre court in tears, defeated 2-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Carnegie Blisters Par

VANCOUVER (CP) — Herb Carnegie, the defending Canadian senior golf champion, let it be known in no uncertain terms to the record field of 332 Wednesday that he has every intention of making it two in a row.

He won the 54-hole event as a 57-year-old at Winnipeg's Glendale Golf Club last year and blistered Marine Drive Golf Club in the first round Wednesday with a three-under 68, for a one-stroke lead over Nick Weslock, his Ontario team-mate.

Carnegie, of Summit Golf and Country Club in Richmond Hill, Ont., had a four-hole string on the back nine of eagle, bogey, birdie, birdie.

His eagle came on the 458-yard, par-five 13th.

Carnegie and Weslock propelled the Ontario team to what would appear to be an insurmountable 15-stroke lead over second-place Manitoba in the interprovincial team matches.

Alberta is two strokes back of Manitoba at 229, one stroke better than Quebec, and B.C. is fifth at 234.

The only sub-par round at Point Grey was a one-under 71 carded by Bill Thompson of Victoria Golf Club.

Canada Downs Aussies To Gain Lacrosse Final

STOCKPORT, England (AP) — Canada held off a late rally from Australia Wednesday to win 16-13 and reach the final of the World lacrosse championship.

In the final Canada faces the United States, which beat them by a record international score of 28-4 in an earlier round.

Against Australia, the Canadians ran incisively in attack and although they ended the first quarter 4-3 behind, they were up 10-6 at the half and ahead 14-9 at the end of the third quarter.

Stan Cockerton of Oshawa scored four times to bring his total for the tournament to 12.

John Grant of Peterborough, the 6-foot-6 attacker who is the biggest man in the tournament, scored three times while Dave Huntley of Toronto scored twice.

Three Hits Are Enough

Lou Vermette slugged a homer, Gord Rutherford doubled and Bob Bugslag singled to drive in one run each as Victoria Athletics nipped Ingraham Hotel 3-2 in Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League action at Central Park.

And those three hits were all the Athletics got as Ken Fox threw a four-hitter to take the victory in a tight pitching duel against John Barnes.

In the Victoria Senior Women's League, Victoria Skylarks edged Strawberry Vale Juniors 8-7 and MacDonald's Furniture posted a 7-6 decision over Ingraham Hotel at Hyacinth Park.

At Heywood Avenue Park, winning-pitcher Bob Dalziel, Dwayne Robinson and Roland Tice smacked home runs to lead Remco Office Systems to an 8-7 victory over Victoria Athletics in a nine-inning Heywood Men's League game.

Farmers Accept Greaves' Favors

Farmer Construction utilized two errors in the last inning Wednesday to edge Greaves Movers 2-1 in a Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League game at Lambrick Park.

Movers were holding a 1-0 lead with one out in the bottom of the frame when Ian Hood of Farmers gained a second chance after his pop foul was dropped. He went on to single and advanced to second when Ken Ball drew a base-on-balls and scored when Bev Cooper hit a single to centre. Ball scored the winning run when the centrefielder misplayed the ball.

Terry Painter struck out 11 batters and yielded only one walk while boosting his pitching record to 7-2.

Colwood Leads Juniors

Jon Mahovlic scored a hole-in-one on the fourth hole of his home course Wednesday to help Royal Colwood take a lead in the annual Pepsi-Cola junior team golf championship.

Mahovic, who carded his ace on the par-three, 165-yard hole, finished with 75. Clubmate and city champion Glen Barlow chalked up a 76 in the competition which involves six-member teams. Only the top two gross and top two handicap scores are added for the team total.

Bruce Barlow (74-12 — 62) and Neil O'Leary (84-12 — 72) were the top handicap scorers for Royal Colwood, which finished with 285, 12 strokes ahead of second-place Gorge Vale.

The tourney was scheduled to wind up today at Cedar Hill.

Other scores:

GORGE VALE (297) — Brian DeGirolamo (76), Sheldon Strattord (79), Steve Holroyd (81-12 — 69), Don Singlehurst (81-8 — 73).

UPLANDS (299) — Rick Gibson (74), Kerry Taylor (76), Darryl Pynn (82-8 — 74), Mark Callan (84-9 — 75).

GLEN MEADOWS (310). VICTORIA (314).

Mussel Owners Getting Tough

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

The honeymoon is over between management and players with Victoria Mussels.

Field boss Jim Chapman and pitching coach Don Rogelstad, both part-owners of the fledgling Northwest League baseball club, laid it out in plain language Wednesday night after a 5-1 loss to Eugene Emeralds at Royal Athletic Park.

"We're going to make some heavy changes," Chapman promised. "We can't go on like this. Right now this club should be playing at least .500 ball (Mussels are 4-11 and mired in last place in the Northern Division) but there are four or five players who just aren't putting out. They know who they are."

The changes have already begun. Pitcher Bobby Watkins was given his walking ticket and two newcomers were signed just before Wednesday's contest, played before a CJVI promotional night crowd of 464, second-largest of the season at Athletic Park.

The new faces are outfielder Steve Kasunic, a 21-year-old rookie pro from Euclid, Ohio, and lefthanded pitcher Dave Watson, another 21-year-old first-year pro from Bolingbrook, Ill. Watson pitched in the NAIAA (small college) championship finals last year for Lewis College near Chicago.

Mussels also were scheduled to take a look at an infield candidate today.

Watkins' departure and the two additions beef Mussels' roster to 21, leaving Rogelstad with five starting pitchers.

One player who definitely is not a problem is homegrown pitcher Roy Moretti, who got his first starting assignment as a professional Wednesday and went the distance.

"He's the best pitcher on our staff right now, that's all there is to it," Rogelstad said. "He's done the job every time he's gone out — long relief, short relief, as a starter. He should have won tonight."

He didn't because of some lethargic support and one mistake on his part — a grooved fastball on a two-and-two count to outfielder Tad Venger in the third. Venger parked it on Pembroke Street beyond the left field fence, scoring two runners ahead of him.

Morretti yielded four runs in the third. He walked winning pitcher Rick Arnold to lead off the inning, gave up a single to Adolpho Feliz (his first of three for the night), then watched what should have been a caught fly ball fall into centre field for a double by Dave Hoenstine.

Chapman, who relinquished his shortstop role to Dave Morganti Wednesday so he could direct the team from the bench, inserted Kasunic in centre after the third.

Emeralds' fifth run came in the ninth and was unearned. Third baseman Dave Gans dropped a throw from catcher Vito Lucarelli in what should have been an out on Feliz, who took off from second on a ball-three pitch to Mark Cauley. The ball squirted into left field and Feliz scored.

Mussels' run in the second came when Lucarelli walked, stole second and scored on Paul Kirsch's single to left.

Moretti, mixing a good fastball and curve, scattered 10 hits, walked six and struck out nine in absorbing his first loss against two wins. Arnold, meanwhile, handcuffed Mussels on four hits, walked two and fanned four in eight innings. Jeff Lahti set Victoria down in order in the ninth.

EXTRA BASES: Chapman may get back into action tonight, moving over to third base when the same clubs play the second of a three-game series at Athletic Park beginning at 7 . . . Dave Cheadle will be Victoria's starting pitcher . . . Rogelstad has taken himself out of the starting rotation, which now comprises Moretti, Cheadle, Frank Lucarelli, Scott Harding and Dale Mohorcic . . . Venger joined Feliz in the three-hit circle for Eugene Wednesday while the only Mussels to solve Arnold were Kirsch, Gans, Al Alpaugh and Mike Carey, all with singles.

BAYS IN SEMIS

Paul Gubbels bashed out a grand-slam home run Wednesday to help Oak Bay to a 24-12 victory over Hampton in Greater Victoria Little League baseball championship tournament action at Ambassador Park.

The win moved Oak Bay into the semi-finals of the single-loss elimination tourney.

Bays face National at 6:30 p.m. Friday. Layritz and Lakehill meet in the other semi at the same time tonight.

The final is scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday.

Juniors Best Behaved In Times Tennis Meet

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

It's Get-Tough Time again in the fifth annual Victoria Times Public Parks tennis tournament.

All that sunny weather keeps on coming but still competitors have been very slow in getting their matches played, particularly in the mixed doubles event.

Best behaved, in fact, are the junior boys who have marched through in their singles to the quarter-finals and have only one round to play before our gala windup Aug. 19 and 20 at Oak Bay's Henderson Park.

The huge men's singles draw has been whittled down to 34 players from a starting field of 128. That should be down to 32 after two full rounds but there are still two results to come in.

We've had no result from matches involving Robert Janicki and Perry Evans, nor Doug Grainger and Gary McLaren. Robert Spanier and Dave Wingate are waiting to play the winners of those two games and unless they are played this weekend with a result in to us by first thing Monday morning, Spanier and Wingate will go through to the last 16 by default.

There are 17 players left in the women's singles after two rounds. Again, that should be 16 but there's a last game still to come in.

Charlene Joe versus Cindy Majocha is the second-round result we don't have. Unless that one is in by Monday morning, too, next-round opponent Liz Eveleigh will win by default.

Mixed doubles scores have been trickling in slowly and there are still two results to come.

Closing Fast .. Is Linton

... making his move

Keith Linton is setting a blistering pace among drivers during the harness-racing meet at Sandown Park.

Linton drove three winners for the third consecutive day Wednesday to bring his total for the year to 138. His count now at Sandown is 17 victories, seven behind Dave Jungquist, who won once Wednesday.

Two veteran standardbred geldings also have a winning streak going at the Sidney track.

Deacon Brodie, an 11-year-old, owned, trained and driven by Willie Urquhart and Dobbie Joe, a nine-year-old owned by Linton's wife, Rosemary, both won fourth consecutive races Wednesday to join Lennies Choice and Stop Watch as five-time Sandown winners.

The mutuel handle of $79,595 was almost $9,000 more than the previous Wednesday and the best nine-race total of the meeting.

Results and entries below.

Armstrong Back With Marlboros

TORONTO (CP) — George Armstrong has been signed for a seventh season to coach Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Major Junior Hockey League.

Armstrong coached the Marlboros to Memorial Cup championships in 1973 and 1975.

Whitecaps Draw A Record Crowd

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Whitecaps got two goals from defender John Craven to double Detroit Express 2-1 in North American Soccer League action Wednesday night.

Vancouver got brisk passing throughout the game from midfielders Jon Sammels and Steve Kember, who nullified the fast Detroit attack led by British national team member Trevor Francis.

The Whitecaps opened the scoring early in the game when Craven guided an Alan Hinton cross that was deflected off Vancouver's Bob Lenarduzzi.

The Express tied the game at the 54-minute mark when Graham Oates headed a pass from Alan Brazil.

The Whitecaps pressed and four minutes later Craven scored with a header. Craven was named first star of the game, attended by 18,625 fans, the largest home crowd of the season.

In Other games Wednesday, New England defeated Cosmos 1-0, and Memphis downed Colorado 1-0.

B.C. Lions Trimmed to Fit

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions traded two players—Jesse O'Neal to Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Charles Anthony to Ottawa Rough Riders—in making several moves Wednesday to reduce their Canadian Football League roster to 35.

Head coach Vic Rapp also released three other imports—quarterback Joe Paopao, tight end Richard Appleby and running back LeRoy Moss—put offensive tackle Layne McDowell on the injured reserve list and announced the retirement of Ted Dushinski, a veteran Canadian defensive back.

O'Neal, 24, was sent to Hamilton for future considerations from the Tiger-Cats. Rookies Drew Taylor and Louie Richardson will open the regular season at defensive end for B.C. here July 11 against Winnipeg Blue Bombers..

The Lions had obtained O'Neal, an import defensive end, before the 1977 season from Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Bill Baker trade. He is in the option year of his CFL contract.

Anthony, 23, joined the Lions early last season as an import free agent after being released by Edmonton Eskimos. He was beaten out for the middle linebacker job by veteran import Sam Britts, obtained in a trade last week with Hamilton.

B.C. owed Ottawa a player as part of a deal earlier this year in which the Lions obtained the negotiation rights to running back Larry Key of Florida State from the Rough Riders. The Lions signed Key and he is expected to start the season at halfback.

Dushinski, 34, joined the Lions in 1976 in a trade with Saskatchewan after being a Western Football Conference all-star three times with the Roughriders.

He was a starter with the Lions until late in the 1977 season when Rapp replaced him with Larry Uteck to get more speed into the lineup. Uteck was traded earlier this year to Montreal Alouettes for John Beaton, now a starter for the Lions in Dushinski's old spot.

McDowell suffered torn knee ligaments in a game here a week ago against Saskatchewan and underwent surgery. He is expected to be out for 12 to 14 weeks.

Paopao was beaten out for the backup quarterback position by veteran Gary Keithley, although both had poor exhibition season performances. Jerry Tagge will be the Lions' starter against Winnipeg.

Tagge didn't play Tuesday in Edmonton when the Eskimos beat the Lions 46-1 in the final exhibition game—B.C.'s only loss in four exhibition games.

Riders Rally To Edge Stamps

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders came from behind with a fourth quarter touchdown to break their pre-season jinx by defeating Calgary Stampeders 16-11 Wednesday night in a Canadian Football League exhibition game.

A 20-yard touchdown pass from veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster to rookie flanker Frank Russell late in the fourth quarter was the insurance the Riders needed to bring their exhibition season to a close with a 1-3 record. Calgary finished the pre-season with an identical record.

Calgary held the lead for the first three quarters but the superb play calling of Lancaster, who played the entire game, led to the only Saskatchewan touchdown after a scoreless third quarter.

Saskatchewan may have found a much-needed running threat with the acquisition of B.C. Lion cast-off Mike Strickland, who rambled for 108 yards on 20 carries.

Uplands Pair Keeps Buttons

John Pierpoint and Norman Wallace of Uplands staged a fourth straight successful defence of the Victoria senior golf buttons Wednesday, downing challengers Joe Carday and Fred Craig of Royal Colwood 1-up at Gorge Vale.

Skating Dates

DAVOS, Switzerland (Reuter) — The International Skating Union has announced that the 1979 world figure skating championships will be held March 13-18 in Vienna and the 1980 championships March 11-15 in West Germany.

The 1979 calender for world speed skating events includes women's world championships Feb. 3-4 in The Hague, men's world championships Feb. 10-11 in Oslo and world sprint championships Feb. 17-18 at Inzell, Austria.

The 1980 speed skating calender has women's world championships set for Jan. 12-13 in Oslo, world sprint championships Feb. 9-10 in Keystone, Colo., and the men's world championships March 1-2 in Heerenveen, The Netherlands.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 34-year-old woman who underwent a seven-day psychiatric examination last month was committed for a 30-day observation period Wednesday in provincial court.

Sharon Sammis, no fixed address, appeared before Judge Lawrence Brahan and was charged with attempted assault causing bodily harm and mischief causing bodily harm.

Victoria city police arrested a woman Tuesday after an apartment at 2310 Wark was heavily damaged by an axe.

Crown counsel Don Laughton made the application for a psychiatric remand. He told Brahan the woman had a one-week examination last month before Judge William Ostler gave her a suspended sentence and six months probation on a conviction for a June 15 assault on a ministry of human resources official.

Sammis, who declined any legal assistance, said she understood the proceedings when Brahan, the former chief provincial court judge of B.C., asked her if she did.

"I'm not schizophrenic," she told Brahan, "I've just got a pure-hate temper."

Brahan remanded her until Aug. 4 so that the evaluation could be done on the Lower Mainland.

Judge Blake Allan committed an 18-year-old for higher court trial on three charges.

Allan ordered Wesley James Kennedy, no fixed address, to stand trial for theft of $1,366 from the Young Men's Christian Association, 880 Courtney, on or about May 25, possession of stolen money, and mischief causing wilful damage to a unit at the Swiftsure Inn, 427 Belleville.

A 22-year-old woman who never appeared in Victoria provincial court for a trial in 1975 was given a suspended sentence and six months probation after changing her plea to guilty on a charge of theft under $200.

Defence lawyer Robert Metzger entered the change of plea on behalf of 22-year-old Kathryn Ann Carter, now of Matsqui.

Laughton informed the court the woman had taken cutlery, plates and a frying pan from a unit of the Jolly Knight Motel, 246 Gorge Road, on March 5, 1975.

Metzger said his client never showed up for her subsequent trial because someone had misinformed her that if she was convicted her then-11-month-old child would be taken away from her. Metzger said Mrs. Carter ran away to Toronto to live.

Fined for drinking-driving were: David Robert Malcolm, 33, of 2507 Wark, $500; William Laverne Lust, 56, of 414 Craigflower, $500; Paul Joseph Syrette, 44, of 1311 Chan Place, $400; Stephen William Davies, 20, of 2911 Sooke Lake Road, $400; Curt William Nielsen, 24, of 2566 Fifth, $300; and Lois Marie Perrin, 40, of 2734 Peatt, $100.

In addition, Mrs. Perrin was ordered to perform 50 hours of community service work by Judge Harold Alder.

They're Flocking To Coastal Beauty

Long Beach in Pacific Rim National Park and the West Coast and Cape Beale trails already are drawing record numbers of visitors, say Parks Canada officials.

Howey Hambleton, chief of visitor services, said 70,206 people visited the park's Long Beach area in June compared to 55,113 in the same month last year.

Since the start of the year, 270,738 visited the park, compared to 236,930 in 1977 — an increase of 33,805, he said.

An estimated 3,000 have so far have waklked the West Coast trail between Bamfield and Port Renfrew.

Park superintendent Frank Camp predicts by the end of the year at least 7,000 will have used the 45-mile trail.

"If this weather keeps up, we are in for a record number of trail-users," he said. "The trail has two wardens, plus a work crew restoring the south end of the coastal footpath."

Ron McKee of the Shantymen's Christian Association at Camp Ross who keeps trail statistics for Parks Canada, said since January 2,200 trail-users have registered at Pachena Bay, near Bamfield, the northern end of the trail.

"We estimate about 25 per cent don't bother to register," he said.

No record is kept of people entering the trail from Port Renfrew and Nitinat Lake, but it is estimated at least 800 have used these points of entry.

Not all people walk the entire length of the coastal footpath. Many camp at beauty spots along the wilderness coast, such as at Tsusiat Falls, Clo-oose amd Carmanah River.

McKee said in addition to Americans, more Europeans have walked the trail this year.

"We have had Swiss, Germans and Italians," he said. "Most are impressed with the beauty of the natural coast."

No count has been taken of people who walk the Cape Beale trail starting from Bamfield.

But the growing number of visitors to the northern entrance of the trail and Cape Beale is creating problems for the fishing community of Bamfield which has no camping facilities.

The problem is that this section, which is in the third development phase of Pacific Rim National Park, has not yet been turned over by the provincial government to the federal parks branch. Until this happens parkland acquistion for camping at Port Renfrew and Bamfield can't begin.

B.C. Growers Fear Heavy Grape Losses

VANCOUVER (CP) — Representatives of British Columbia grape growers say they are afraid the provincial government's use of the herbicide 2,4-D in the Okanagan Lakes could cause disastrous crop losses.

Bill Drinkwater, chairman of the B.C. Grape Marketing Board, said B.C. might suffer the same fate as Washington State where grape growers claim million-dollar losses because of the herbicide.

"I'm totally opposed to 2,4-D," he said. "I wish the bloody stuff was never invented."

He said pressure from the Okanagan tourist industry and lakefront residents is responsible for the government's program of chemical control of Eurasian milfoil, a rapidly-spreading aquatic weed.

Gavin Young, president of the Association of B.C. Grape Growers, said the association has sent a letter of protest to Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt and plans to hold the provincial government financially responsible if 2,4-D causes any damage in vineyards.

He said vineyard owners are concerned because their irrigation intakes are in areas where milfoil is growing and where herbicide use is planned.

Gary Scrimsher, vineyard manager of the Snake River Vineyards in Pasco, Wash., said the company lost half its $1 million crop last year because of the herbicide.

He said vineyards are particularly vulnerable when blossoming. Poisoned plants have difficulty maturing because their leaves are smaller and curled up, affecting photosynthesis, he said.

Charlotte Steel, who with her husband owns another vineyard in Pasco, said their crops have decreased by half since the introduction of 2,4-D in the area seven years ago.

"Generally we used to get 12 tons of grapes per acre and now its six tons," she said. "We have a 2,4-D problem and we've had it for years. We're losing our grape vines because of the damage."

Benton County agricultural officer Frank Anderson agreed there is a serious 2,4-D problem in the southern part of Washington State which has resulted in smaller grape harvests.

The herbicide is used primarily in spraying of wheat crops in the state.

The B.C. government's herbicide program was cut back last week by a B.C. Supreme Court ruling that the pesticide control board must hold further hearings on its use.

'COPTER FORCE CUT BY MISHAP

COMOX(CP) — An accident at the Canadian Forces Base here has left the search and rescue team temporarily short one Labrador helicopter, but has not affected the team's capabilities.

Capt. Gordon Kruger said the helicopter will not immediately be missed because one helicopter is normally grounded for routine maintenance. A replacement aircraft may be needed later, he said.

Kruger said its engine was being tested Tuesday by armed forces personnel when the aircraft partially lifted and its rotors struck the tarmac. The helicopter suffered major damage and five people were slightly injured, he said.

The mishap will be investigated by a board of inquiry, said Kruger.

Guilty Plea On Indecency

SURREY (CP) — A federal civil servant has pleaded guilty in provincial court to committing a gross indecency with a 14-year-old male prostitute in Vancouver last October.

Robert Wyber, 57, a systems analyst for the enterprise development branch of the federal department of industry, trade and commerce in Ottawa, pleaded guilty Friday and is to be sentenced July 28.

While Wyber was sleeping in a hotel room, the boy stole his car and Wyber's subsequent complaint to the police resulted in the boy's arrest by RCMP. Further investigation led to the charge against Wyber.

Therapists Sue Minister

VANCOUVER (CP) — A libel suit by seven Greater Vancouver and Yukon women was filed against Health Minister Bob McClelland in British Columbia Supreme Court Wednesday.

Speech therapists Sharon Adelman, Barbara Berhardt, Christine Harrison, Margaret Roberts, Ingrid Jeffrey and Virginia Tupper, all of Vancouver, and Lorraine MacDonald of Whitehorse, seek damages for libel or slander they allege was contained in the Vancouver Sun March 7 and in a CKVU television interview March 16.

France Curbs Laos Links

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — France has reduced its diplomatic and cultural presence in Communist Laos, leaving only a token delegation at the embassy in the capital of Vientiene, embassy officials said Monday.

The exodus follows the expulsion from Laos last week of a French counsellor and the cultural attache. The French say the expulsion of the two representatives was in retaliation for the French policy of granting asylum to Laotian political refugees.

UFAWU Judgment Reserved

VANCOUVER (CP) — Province court Judge Douglas Hume reserved judgment Thursday in the trial of seven members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (UFAWU) charged with impeding an anti-combines inquiry.

Judge Hume will deliver his decision Aug. 31 about the December, 1976, incident.

The seven — including three officers of the union — were charged under the Combines Investigation Act after the inquiry was adjourned indefinitely by commissioner Frank Roseman of Ottawa.

The fishermen had demanded that all the inquiry hearings be held in public and, the Crown alleged, disrupted hearings by their unauthorized presence at closed sessions in the Pacific Centre building.

The charges carry a maximum penalty of a $5,000 fine and/or two years in prison.

Pickets Banned

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Burnaby trucking firm has been granted a British Columbia Supreme Court injuction banning picketing of its warehouse by members of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers (CAIMAW), Local 1, who are on strike against Phillips Cables Ltd.

Peter Cameron, CAIMAW regional vice-president, said the decision forced the union to remove pickets from Alltrans Express Ltd., which he said is trucking cables into B.C. and delivering them to Phillips' customers.

He said the court ruling was based on the fact that Alltrans is under the jurisdiction of the federal Labor Code which does not recognize the legitimacy of picketing allied enterprises.

Prisoners Rap Report

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Some women prisoners at the Prince George Regional Correctional Centre say they were misrepresented in a report which will result in the closure of the co-educational correctional program at the provincial prison.

Justice Patricia Proudfoot's royal commission into women's jails in British Columbia recommended removal of women prisoners from the predominantly male institution.

Centre director Barry Rafuse said that as a result of the report, females will be removed by July 15.

Justice Proudfoot of the B.C. Supreme Court had said that all female prisoners favored the phasing-out of the program. She cited as reasons for her recommendations sexual frustrations, conflicts and jealousies, and intensified emotional depression among prisoners caused by the presence of both sexes.

However, Leslie Sullivan, one of 13 female prisoners at the centre, said Justice Proudfoot's investigation was shallow and only three female prisoners were asked if the program should be abandoned.

"I think she had her mind made up before she walked in here," said Sullivan. "We discussed sexual frustrations, but we told her we could handle them.

"We told her many of us had people (spouses, boyfriends or girlfriends) on the outside and relationships here were just friendships.

"People on the outside seem to think we are sex maniacs who grab everything we can get our hands on. We are adults, we are the same as those on the streets, and some of them are worse than we are."

Sullivan said the presence of the other sex and a busier schedule made life at the centre more bearable than at the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre (Oakalla) in Burnaby, where the sexes are not allowed to mix.

Prisoner Laura Carra said that if Justice Proudfoot "had talked to us, she would have had no reason to close it down because all of us like it."

She said Justice Proudfoot had not talked to her about the future of the program.

Allmand Pushing Volare Action

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Warren Allmand has asked Chrysler Canada Ltd. president, C.O. Hurley, for a meeting to resolve a growing list of complaints about the company's 1976-78 Volare and Aspen models.

Allmand said in a telegram to Hurley the meeting should include representatives of the Automobile Protection Association, a Montreal-based consumer group, and of the Aspen-Volare Owner Association, representing about 500 dissatisfied owners.

"Over the last several months, I have become progressively more concerned about the mounting number of consumer complaints relating to stalling, transmission and differential seizing, recall procedures and other problems relating to Chrysler products and in particular your Aspen and Volare models," Allmand said in his telegram.

Chrysler has issued four major recalls of the Volare and Aspen, affecting more than 150,000 models.

The company has announced recalls to repair faulty front hood latches that could allow the hood to fly up at high speeds, to repair a design defect in the carburetor that causes chronic stalling, to protect front brake lines from possible corrosion by battery acid and to correct possible defects in the front suspension.

A consumer affairs department official said most of the complaints relate to the four recalls but there have also been other problems with the cars that owners have not been able to resolve.

He said the department and the protection association have identified about 850 individuals who say they have not been fairly treated by the company.

Chrysler officials were not available for comment.

Escaper Charged

TORONTO (CP) — A 31-year-old U. S. citizen, who police say declared himself the nephew of a leader of organized crime, has been charged with second-degree murder in the shooting death of a Hudson's Bay Co. employee during a March robbery at a Toronto shopping centre.

Police said Wednesday that Frank Eugene Lukes, originally was arrested May 18 under the name Anthony Vito Genovese.

At the time, he was an escaper from William Head prison near Victoria.

Two other men were charged last month in the case. John Glendon Flett, 29, was arrested in Victoria, and Dennis William Dubinsky, 20, was charged in Chemainus.

ANIMAL STERILITY LINKED TO PCBs

OTTAWA (CP) - A National Research Council report says polychlorinated biphenyls could have their most detrimental environmental effect on wildlife reproductivity.

J.R. Roberts, an NRC chemist, says scientists are still not sure whether reproductive failure in a variety of animals is the result of contamination by PCBs alone or by a combination of chemicals. Roberts was one of four scientists who prepared the report.

PCBs, widely used in North America for more than 40 years, are permitted for use only in certain electrical equipment under carefully controlled conditions.

The report said reproductivity of birds and mammals lessens as dietary levels of PCBs are increased.

"Evidence from laboratory and field studies indicates that PCB residues in the order of 2.5 to five milligrams per kilogram may be associated with impaired reproductive success in some fish species," the report says.

"Fish from a number of locations in Canada have been reported to contain PCB residues at or above this range."

For example, levels of the pesticide DDT and PCBs found in striped bass in New Brunswick's St. John River may be responsible for their reproductive failure in recent years. DDT is no longer used in Canada.

But further detailed studies on the reproduction of fish species are not available.

"Reproductive failures have been reported in wild populations of merlins and prairie falcons in western Canada, and in herring gulls, common terns, cormorants and bald eagles in the Great Lakes regions."

The report says that in all cases, high levels of DDT and PCBs were found in the fat of the birds.

Thorson Dies at 89

OTTAWA (CP) — Joseph T. Thorson, 89, minister of national war services in the Mackenzie King cabinet during the Second World War, died in hospital Wednesday of injuries suffered in April in an auto accident.

Thorson, made legal history battling the Official Languages Act drafted by his son Donald.

He suffered a broken back in April when his car accelerated in reverse into the Austrian Embassy across the street from his Rockcliffe residence.

He was taken unconscious to hospital Wednesday, where he revived long enough to grin with pleasure when told his only son had been appointed to the Ontario Court of Appeal. He died a few hours later.

English Signs Protested

HULL, Que. (CP) — Two days after the Quebec government banned unilingual English signs, four complaints had been received by the Office de la Langue Francaise in Hull about infractions of the new law.

Louise Lapointe, office manager, said she had received four complaints by Wednesday.

Mrs. Lapointe would not discuss the nature of the complaints but stated that "there will be a period of tolerance." She did not anticipate any action until autumn against merchants displaying unilingual English signs. Then, government officials would further brief erring businesses.

Within the Hull region, just across the border from Ottawa, most opposition to the language legislation came from residents of Aylmer, Que.

One of the law's opponents, Helen Bergeron, owner of an Aylmer beauty salon, said she has no intention of changing the sign — Beauty Bar — on her shop.

Mrs. Bergeron said she believes the law violates her "rights as a Canadian citizen" and her right "to conserve English culture."

By the end of 1980, bilingual signs will be banned and only unilingual French signs permitted.

Camera Casing In Bank Heist?

LAVAL, Que. (CP) — Police say it will take "at least two or three days" to determine how much money was taken by thieves during a weekend robbery at a branch of the Toronto Dominion Bank in this city just north of Montreal.

Before making a getaway, the thieves altered the combination of the lock on the vault door leading to the deposit boxes. When bank employees arrived for work Tuesday morning the lock mechanism appeared to be faulty.

The bank called in the vault manufacturers who, after unsuccessful attempts throughout the day to open the door, finally drilled through the concrete wall of the vault and discovered the rifled boxes at about 4 a.m. Wednesday.

Meanwhile the Gazette quotes unnamed sources as saying the burglars hid two remote-control closed-circuit television cameras inside the bank to learn the lock combination.

"This must have been done within the last 10 days because the combination to that vault was changed 10 days ago," the Gazette quotes a source as saying.

The newspaper also says the source expected the amount stolen to exceed $1 million.

FEWER TRAVEL OVERSEAS

OTTAWA (UPI) — More Canadians travelled to other countries than there were visitors to Canada during May but the number of Canadians going abroad declined from a year ago, Statistics Canada said Wednesday.

Preliminary figures for the month showed the number of Canadians returning from visits to the United States declined 6.8 per cent during the month to 3.1 million. At the same time, the number of U.S. visitors to Canada dropped 4.9 per cent to 2.6 million.

The number of visitors entering Canada from countries other than the United States rose 15.5 per cent to 145,700. But the number of Canadians returning from those countries fell 1.8 per cent to 121,000.

In the first five months of 1978, 8.6 million Americans visited Canada, a decline of 3.2 percent from January to May 1977. In the same period this year 13.7 million Canadians returned from visits to the United States, down 2.2 per cent from a year ago.

But travel between other countries and Canada was up in the five-month period: by 9.8 percent for foreigners visiting Canada and by 4.5 percent for Canadians coming back from foreign countries.

Grit Sweeps Quebec Riding

men told happy supporters in a sweltering riding headquarters that Quebecers in general are turning away from the PQ.

They based their claim on the fact that a tiny French-speaking enclave of the riding, called Ville St. Pierre, gave Scowen a narrow plurality. In the 1976 general election it went narrowly for the PQ, bucking the Liberal trend in the rest of the riding.

Scowen said his victory was a "total rejection" of the extremism of both Parti Quebecois language policies and the freedom of choice position.

"Mr. Levesque has always said he still has a majority among francophones, but they are addressing a first message to the government," Ryan said.

Worried Liberals were also relieved that a protest movement for freedom of choice in the language of education fizzled out. Support for freedom of choice candidate David DeJong was less than expected.

"I intend to protect our rights but also our responsibilities," Scowen told English-speaking campaign workers. "We have a lot of responsibilities as anglophones in the evolution of Quebec."

Scowen conceded that "many troubled anglophones" were attracted by the freedom of choice option because they felt the "Liberal party had not done a good job for them."

But he promised to pay close attention to his constituents. Bryce Mackasey, the former Liberal MNA for the riding who resigned his seat last spring, was frequently criticized for neglecting local concerns.

Liberal leader Ryan drew a cheer when he pledged to abolish provisions in Quebec's language law probibiting unilingual English commercial signs. And he repeated a promise to open English schools to all children whose mother tongue is English.

He also challenged Premier Rene Levesque to hold his promised referendum on independence this fall.

In Scowen, the Liberals have acquired an articulate man with an impressive background in public service.

The 47 year-old, soft-spoken redhead has served as executive director of both the federal Anti-Inflation Board and the Pepin-Robarts Task Force on Canadian Unity.

He will bring some economic muscle to the Liberal caucus, having studied at Harvard Business School and the London School of Economic as well as building up a successful paper company business.

Standings in the 110-seat Quebec national assembly remain unchanged at Parti Quebecois 71; Liberal 26; Union Nationale 10; Creditiste 1; Popular National Party 1; Independent 1.

$60 Million Icebreaker Off Monday on Her Maiden Arctic Voyage

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The Canadian Coast Guard's new $60 million icebreaker Pierre Radisson leaves Victoria at 10 a.m. Monday on her maiden voyage through the western and eastern Arctics to her home port of Quebec City — more than 12,000 miles.

All but three of her crew are Francophones. They are her master, Capt. Patrick Toomey, third officer Fern Walker, 24, a native Victorian, and an oiler from Vancouver. The only other woman in the crew is nurse Freda Huber.

Pierre Radisson and her sister ship, Franklin, were built at Burrard's shipyard in North Vancouver and fitted out to be the workhorses of the north.

They can crash their way through three feet of solid ice and their hulls are built with steel frames 16 inches apart, making them virtually uncrushable.

Toomey says his new ship is the only one of the coast guard's fleet of 14 icebreakers that is fitted with a gymnasium.

"She is totally self-contained. We can do all our own repairs and maintenance.

Her engines can produce 13,600 horsepower and the largest of the three winches in her stern easily towed the weathership Vancouver at 12 knots during a recent sea trial.

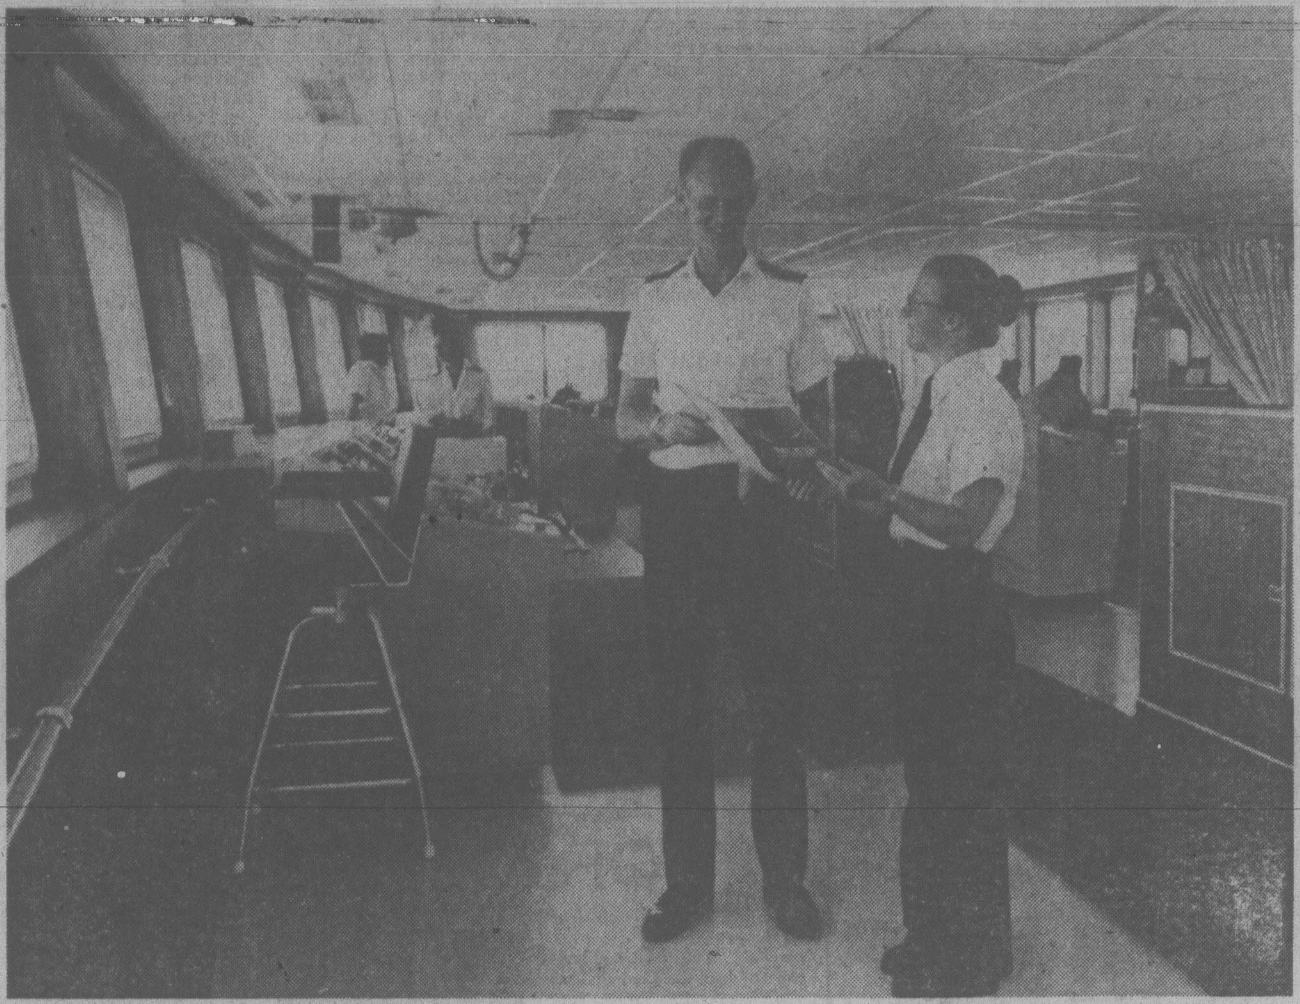
This will be Toomey's 11th season in the eastern Arctic and the second for third officer Walker. She graduated as a deck officer in 1977, making her first tour last summer.

Toomey says his ship has 56 sensors wired to various pieces of equipment to monitor their performance, surveys of which will help designers of future government and commercial vessels to be used in the north.

Ecologically clean, the Pierre Radisson will process all garbage except cans and bottles. These will be kept until they can be put ashore.

Toomey estimates, depending on ice conditions, the Pierre Radisson will reach Quebec City in October.

Although they could be relieved and leave the ship before that time, Toomey said every member of the crew has opted to stay with the Pierre Radisson all the way.



HUGE WHEELHOUSE is checked by Capt. Patrick Toomey and Third Officer Fern Walker, a Victorian going on her second Arctic voyage. But she won't be alone among all those men. Nurse Freda Huber will be along. (Bill Halkett photo)

SIX SMALLER SHIPS CONFIRMED

Lone Eagle to Perch Here

It's official: there will be only one tall ship in Victoria for the July Capt. Cook festivities but the number of Class B vessels has been increased to six.

American Sail Training Association president Barclay Warburton of Newport, Rhode Island, said in Victoria today the tall ship, Eagle, and six smaller vessels are confirmed for the festival.

"They will begin arriving this weekend and all will be here by 1600 hours (4 p.m.) on July 20."

First here will be the Greybeard of Vancouver and Oriole of Victoria, racing from Hawaii.

Haliburton said the winner should arrive by Saturday. At present the Greybeard is in front, being 432 miles from Victoria while the Oriole is 555 miles out. But on corrected time Oriole is winning by 154 miles.

Next week the other class B vessels will begin arriving. All will be under sail and they will berth in the Inner Harbor.

Confirmed, in addition to Greybeard and Oriole, are the American yachts Lady Frei, Adventuress and Lene-Marie along with the Victoria yacht the Robertson II.

Listed as possibles are an American vessel Norden and the local sea cadet vessel the Rainbow.

Haliburton said the vessels will have their sails up when they arrive but will have to lower them while docked.

There will be a parade of sail for all vessels when they depart for Vancouver on July 24.

Haliburton said a highlight will be the arrival of the U.S. tall ship, the Eagle at 4 p.m. July 20. The captain will be asked to bring the vessel into the Inner Harbor, if possible, to dock at the former Coho site but otherwise it will dock at Ogden Point.

The Eagle is 266 feet long and has a mast 148 feet high.

Lengths of the class B vessels are Robertson II 119.5 feet, Adventuress 104.4 feet, Oriole 102 feet, Lene-Marie 85 feet, Greybeard 72 feet and Lady Frei 71 feet.

The 47-foot Gungha, which is acting as a communications vessel during the Greybeard-Oriole race may stop briefly in Victoria next week on its way home to Vancouver.

The Japanese tall ship Osprey, which was to come here, was damaged in Acapulco and is heading home to Japan for further repairs.

A regatta and various other programs will be held in Victoria from July 20 to 24.

A tall ship from Argentina will visit Victoria in October.

Nurses Carrying On But Don't Count On It

The 11 federal nurses employed in the Greater Victoria area and elsewhere on Vancouver Island have not joined — yet — a work-to-rule action involving federal nurses across the country.

But the option to take some similar action remains open, a spokesman for the nurses said Wednesday.

She said four of the 11 nurses are engaged in public service health visits to dockyard employees, Post Office staff and other federal public servants, while the other seven work on Indian reservations throughout the island.

Many of the 1,900 federal nurses across Canada reported for work Wednesday wearing T-shirts and jeans, put up informational picket signs and circulated petitions among patients and hospital staff, said Charles Levy, information officer for the union, the Professional Institute of the Public Service of Canada.

The nurses want wage parity with provincial nurses, and overtime pay for those on 24-hour call in the North.

A three-member conciliation board has recommended a 10.45-per-cent wage increase retroactive to December, 1976.

Treasury Board President Robert Andras said six per cent is the maximum increase the government can offer under federal anti-inflation guides. Treasury board negotiates for the federal government.

Talks with the treasury board broke down Sunday and have not resumed, said Levy.

"We waited all day Tuesday for a call from the board, but there was no word."

The 1,900 nurses work in veterans' hospitals, outpost nursing stations in the North, on Indian reservations, at major ports of entry, and on government-operated ships.

An exception to the general pattern of work-to-rule action Wednesday was Frobisher Bay, where 10 of the 22 nurses were on strike.

Sunday Closing Backoff

Victoria city council's downtown economic development committee today backed away from tackling the Sunday closing dilemma.

The issue came up for debate but after a brief exchange of views aldermen agreed to take no action.

The debate centres around whether the city should allow all stores to open for business on Sundays, or whether restricting bylaws should be drawn up.

"Each time we get down to a list of stores that should be open or closed this becomes extremely difficult," said Ald. Murray Glazier.

But Glazier added that council "must deal with it sooner or later."

Tourist Hike Goal Within Reach, Says Manpower

Victoria is close to reaching a goal announced by Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy of a 25 per cent increase in tourist revenues, Canada Manpower officials said today.

"Some businesses are already reporting increases of 25 per cent over last year," regional manager Stan Purdy said.

"Most Victoria merchants in the hospitality industry are predicting increases from 15 to 20 per cent. The goal of a 25 per cent increase is within reach."

Purdy said that, despite troubles with the Princess Marguerite, Victoria is having a banner tourist season.

"American licence plates are everywhere and there is a big increase in Canadian visitors as well. I have never seen so many cars from Manitoba, Ontario and even New Brunswick."

During June about 900 people were hired by the service industry to handle the tourist surge and additional hiring is expected this month.

Hotel occupancy rates in June averaged a high 87 per cent while restaurant and bar receipts in hotels increased 12 per cent.

However, Purdy said Victoria will have to consider this summer's high level of tourist activity as the new norm.

"We must begin planning now for next summer or we could have a serious setback."

Purdy and assistant manager Doug Yearwood, in a joint statement, urged Victoria to consider a naval pageant for next summer, stressing the history of the service.

Their proposal includes a parade of ancient naval weapons, including tiny cannons, as well as relay races with participants carrying naval equipment.

"The prize should be the traditional keg of rum," Purdy said. "Victoria is a naval town and something like this would be ideal. The point is we better start now and get something going or we could have a slump next year."

A survey of the Victoria economy, conducted by local Canada Manpower information officer Dan Bowes, showed the three main strengths in the local economy during June were, in order: tourism, the forest industry and retail trade.

Local sawmills are operating close to full capacity and orders are brisk.

Retail sales in June were up eight per cent from the previous June, due in part to heavy tourist spending.

Weak points in the economy during June were construction where almost one out of three workers is unemployed and in metal fabrication, which is operating at only 30 per cent of capacity.

There are indications of marginal improvement in the construction industry over the summer.

Yarrows Ltd. shipyard employed 460 workers during June but with no major projects in view this total is expected to decline before the end of summer.

The number of jobs listed at the Manpower farm labor office is up 26 per cent from last year.

In all, there were more than 8,000 people registered as looking for work during June, down from 10,592 in May.

Canada Manpower received about 1,200 job openings in June.

Yearwood said Victoria had a work force of 117,000 during June, up from 100,000 in May.

The increase is due in part to university students coming into the work force but is also the result of many people moving to Victoria looking for work related to the tourist industry, he said.

Strip Teaser

Double-take sign doesn't mean what it says. Well it does, really, but not in the way some people think.

The stripping is being done by workmen at the University of Victoria but the workmen aren't stripping if you get the drift. They're removing material from building and only things coming off are bits of the structure.

Kim Stubblefield can't figure out what's going on.

N. Saanich Blackout Puzzling

A power failure in North Saanich plunged the area into darkness for just over an hour Wednesday night but caused no serious mishaps, a spokesman for B.C. Hydro said today.

Sections of North Saanich including the west portion of Victoria International Airport, which has its own emergency generator, and Deep Cove were without power between 11:50 p.m. and 1:04 a.m., according to the spokesman.

Hydro employees could find no cause for the outage, indicating that it was probably caused by a bird flying into the power line, she said.

60-MINUTE GOURMET

Beyond That French Mystique

By PIERRE FRANEY

I have noted that there is a great deal of mystique in the public mind about the complexity of preparation of some of the most widely ordered dishes in French restaurants. There are numerous dishes, excellent creations, which, made at home or in a professional kitchen, do not demand long-simmered sauces, a complicated series of steps and legerdemain on the part of a chef.

There is steak au poivre, for example, which delights many American palates. It has a lot going for it — the piquant flavor of freshly crushed peppercorns and a light sauce made of butter, shallots, white wine and cream. The steak should be of first quality, and a boneless shell steak is my choice. The peppercorns should — must — be freshly cracked and although a flat, heavy, metal mallet works well for this, you can improvise by using the bottom of a clean, heavy saucepan.

There are endless combinations of foods that go well with steak au poivre, two of which are outlined here.

One of these is Vichy carrots. To prepare them the carrots are cut into thin rounds and cooked briefly with butter and only a couple of tablespoons of water. They are ready for the table in about five minutes total cooking time. The other is duchesse potatoes, which take longer but may also be prepared in advance if they are brushed with melted butter to keep a crust from forming.

Because of the quick-cooking nature of the carrots and steaks, it would be best to approach them by first preparing all the ingredients that go into them. Set them aside until ready to cook.

Start the cooking process with the potatoes. Before cooking the steak, start the carrots.

Follow the main course with salad and cheese, if you wish, and a simple purchased dessert.

STEAKS AU POIVRE

4 boneless shell steaks, about 10 ounces each
Salt to taste
1 tablespoon peppercorns
3 tablespoons peanut, vegetable or corn oil
5 teaspoons butter
2 tablespoons finely chopped shallots
½ cup dry white wine
½ cup heavy cream

1. Sprinkle the steaks with salt.
2. Using a mallet or the bottom of a heavy saucepan, crush the pepper corns but not too finely. Sprinkle the steaks with equal amounts of pepper on both sides. Press down with the hands to help the peppercorns adhere to the meat.
3. Heat the oil in a heavy skillet and when it is hot and almost smoking, add the steaks. Cook about three minutes and turn. Cook about two minutes or longer, if you wish your steaks well done, and remove to a warm platter.
4. Pour the fat from the skillet and add two teaspoons of butter. Add the shallots and cook, stirring, until wilted. Add the wine and cook, stirring with a wooden spoon, until wine has almost totally reduced. Add the cream and cook over high heat about one minute. Swirl in the remaining butter and pour the sauce over the steaks.

Yield: 4 servings.

DUCHESSE POTATOES

6 medium potatoes
Boiling salted water
3 tablespoons butter
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 whole eggs
2 egg yolks

1. Peel the potatoes and boil in salted water to cover until soft but still firm.
2. Put through a food mill and then beat with a wooden spoon until smooth.
3. Add the butter, salt, pepper, nutmeg and eggs, which have been lightly beaten with the egg yolks. Whip until fluffy.

Yield: 4 servings.

VICHY CARROTS

5 to 6 carrots, about three-quarters pound
3 tablespoons butter
Salt to taste
¼ teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons water

1. Trim off and discard the ends of the carrots. Scrape the carrots. Cut the carrots into rounds about one-eighth inch thick.
2. Place the butter in a heavy saucepan and add the carrots, salt, sugar and water. Cover closely and cook over high flame about five minutes. Serve hot.

Yield: 4 servings.

Freezing Problems

If you experienced a few disappointments with your home-frozen produce from last year's harvest, don't be discouraged from trying again this year. Take a look at what mistakes you made, and this year make an effort to correct them. As much as you may think your home-freezing problems are unique, they really are not.

Here is a list of some common problems and how they can be solved:

Problem: Soggy, rubbery vegetables (particularly asparagus, corn, carrots, wax and green beans) are usually a result of over-blanching, not blanching at all, over-mature vegetables or freezing a vegetable variety that is not suited to freezing.

Solution: Follow proper blanching procedures; use a reliable up-to-date blanching guide. Freeze only young, tender vegetables. If growing your own, select seeds that indicate on the package "suitable for freezing".

Problem: Vegetables and fruits which have lost color and are dry and tasteless, because of improper packaging material or from being stored for far too long a period.

Solution: Freeze produce in moisture-resistant plastic freezer bags. Bread, sandwich and general utility bags are too thin for long-term freezing.

Check a reliable freezer guide to determine the optimum storage time for frozen foods.

Problem: Mushy, watery tomatoes, zucchini and pears.

Solution: No matter what you do, the results will be the same. Tomatoes, once frozen should be used only for cooking. Zucchini is best shredded and used in bread or in a casserole. If you must freeze pears, use a sugar syrup made from one part honey, one part sugar and two parts water.

Still have a problem? Write to the "Glad" Home Freezing Information Centre, 165 University Avenue, Toronto, Ontario M5H 3B8 for a solution.

THE PERFECT DISH FOR MONTH-END

Mary Moore

Food and money are running low. You have not had time to read the food ads for your weekend shopping. You do not want your provider or the children to feel the pinch so you make this different, economical, uncommonly attractive Wiener Cornbread with Green Pea Sauce.

WIENER CORNBREAD WITH GREEN PEA SAUCE

(serves 6 to 8)

1-lb. pkg. wieners (12 wieners)

Cornbread Ingredients:

1 cup yellow cornmeal
1½ cup unsifted cake-and-pastry flour
7 tsp. baking powder
1½ tsp. salt
1½ cup milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten
5 tbsp. melted butter or margarine
½ cup corn syrup
⅓ cup FINELY chopped onion (or 1½ tsp. minced bottled onion)
3 tbsp. FINELY chopped green pepper

Green Pea Sauce Ingredients:

one 12-oz. pkg. fresh frozen peas
½ cup boiling water
one 10-oz. can condensed cream of celery soup

NOTE: When onion and green pepper are omitted the remaining ingredients make a simple cornbread (or Johnny Cake). However, HALF of the butter or margarine should be melted in pan before cornbread batter is added to make ordinary cornbread.

To make Cornbread into a bowl measure the cornmeal, flour, baking powder and salt and stir to combine. Add the milk, beaten eggs, melted butter and corn syrup and blend thoroughly. Stir in onion) and green pepper. Pour into buttered 9-by-13-inch pan.

On each wiener make four deep diagonal slits. Arrange wieners in four rows of three each, spaced lengthwise, starting on 13-inch side of pan, scored side up. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 25 to 30 minutes. Batter will rise and cover wieners.

Make the Green Pea Sauce: cook the peas in the boiling water for 5 to 7 minutes. DO NOT DRAIN. Stir in soup until blended and heated through. (NO salt is required when cooking peas. The soup contains ample.)

HENS WORK HARD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. agriculture department says that egg production is increasing because there are more hens around and because they are working harder than a year ago. As of June 1, about 274.1 million hens were in egg flocks, two per cent more than a year ago, and the hens on June 1 produced an average of 66.5 eggs per 100 layers, compared with 65.4 a year ago.

Hot News on Burns

your health

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Severe burns present life-threatening situations. Many patients who were destined not to survive are now being saved by the intensive treatment centres that are being established all over the world. Highly trained specialists and paramedical personnel are geared to all of the emergency techniques so necessary for survival.

At the University of Texas Health Science Centre in Dallas, an emergency "hot line" service is being offered around the clock for doctors, nurses and other health workers who are involved in a treatment of severe burns. The telephone, manned by burn specialists, gives information and direction to callers when any burn emergency arises.

Dr. Charles R. Baxter, professor of surgery and director of the burn project, working in conjunction with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, expects that similar programs will soon be functioning in all areas of the United States.

Another well-organized, lifesaving plan is now emerging. Large, 40-feet long buses are now being converted into mobile emergency rooms in several large cities in the United States. So well-equipped are these vans that they are virtually "hospitals-on-wheels," ready for emergencies of all kinds. They actually contain air-conditioned operating rooms and even a recovery room, completely equipped with the most exact surgical instruments and monitoring equipment.

Doctors and nurses who staff these units can be called into action by civil defense paging systems. When summoned, the van hospital can be set up and functioning within minutes.

At the Lutheran Hospital in Fort Wayne, Ind., such a van can transport burn victims, heart patients and newborn babies to the hospital within minutes. En route, all emergency care can be immediately instituted.

In New York City, there are five mobile emergency room vans which are staffed by two or three doctors and nurses. Victims are treated at the scene of an accident, thus offering them the greatest chance for survival.

Cystic fibrosis, a severe disease that usually begins in infancy, is a genetic disorder that affects the pancreas, the sweat glands and the respiratory system. Much information about this disease has been gathered in the past 25 years, but the puzzle is not complete.

Now, for the first time, research workers at the Emory University's Yerkes Primate Centre have been able to reproduce cystic fibrosis in the rhesus monkey. This unusual occurrence is still being observed with cautious optimism. It is hoped that if the disease can be reproduced regularly in experimental animals, it may hold the clue to its eventual eradication.

Food Dehydrators Become Newest Buzz in the Homes

By PATRICIA WELLES
New York Times

Put this in your calculator and ponder it. Millions of homes buzz to the tune of electric blenders, microwave ovens and electric food processors. What else could possibly come along to hike domestic electric bills?

If some manufacturers have their way, food dehydrators could become the next appliance many will be convinced they can't live without.

The dehydrator or food drier is about the size of a microwave oven and is already in many homes, where enthusiasm for one of man's oldest forms of food preservation is on the rise. Food drying has "natural" appeal to those interested in food preservation and greater self-sufficiency, and everything from herbs to meats are sliced, chopped and cubed to dry on a simple arrangement of stacked screens.

Both non-electric and electric models are available. Non-electric models, which can be built by anyone handy with a hammer, nails and saw, are great "starters" for those who want to experiment.

But with some electric models drawing as much as 1,000 watts in power and bearing a price tag well over $200, dehydrators can be a major investment in more ways than one. Some models can cost as much as five cents per hour to run as they heat or cycle on and off to maintain tempertures ranging from 85 to 145 degrees. The cost adds up when one considers that the machine can run for as long as 36 hours to dry a full load of juicy fruit.

In recent tests of 10 major food dehydrators and dryers on the market — two non-electric and eight electric — we found that although some of the units produced delicious, zesty and attractive dried pineapple, apples, bananas and strawberries as well as assorted vegetables and herbs, the cost would make them indeed precious home appliances. In general, foods took longer to dry than the manufacturers suggested, even though drying was done under warm and nonhumid conditions conducive to more economical drying.

All this is not meant to scare off those interested in food drying, but to warn anyone purchasing an electric dehydrator that they may want to calculate energy costs into the overall cost of preserving.

Drying does have advantages over the other preservation alternatives of freezing or canning. Dehydrated fruits and vegetables are practical for campers, hikers or those who just enjoy the concentrated taste of dried foods. In drying, the moisture that causes bacterial growth and decay is removed, so once food is dehydrated it is stored for "free," a definite advantage over freezing. Dehydrated food also takes up less room: Dried foods shrink considerably and are very lightweight.

Fruits are easier to dry than vegetables, since they contain a large percentage of sugar, a natural preservative. Vegetables, because of their low-acid content, are more susceptible to spoilage if not properly dried. In general, however, there is less danger in dehydrating than canning: There is almost no risk of botulism or other food poisoning, and spoiled foods are easily detected by mold or an off odor.

CHILDREN AND VEGETABLES

Nutrition Buyline

QUESTION:
I have a child who not only doesn't like the proverbial carrot, but she doesn't like any vegetables. What can I do?

ANSWER:
The thing is not to panic! When we insist that a child eat a particular food simply because it is nutritious, we may be creating a confrontation situation. Encourage your daughter to try just a spoonful of vegetables to help her get used to new flavors and textures. She also may prefer raw vegetables to cooked ones. The more familiar a child is with a particular food, the more likely she is to eat it. Allow your daughter to help with meal preparation. If she is old enough, she may even be able to prepare, for example, tossed salad. The fact that she has created the salad will stimulate her to eat it.

The thing to avoid is confrontation. If your daughter "knows" that she is the one in the family that "doesn't like vegetables," then she may want to play this role long after she really likes them!

QUESTION:
My family is fond of foods made with chocolate or cocoa. Can I substitute carob powder for cocoa?

ANSWER:
Carob comes from the pods of the carob tree which is found in the Mediterranean countries. These pods are ground to produce carob powder. The flavor is similar to that of cocoa, however, the composition is quite different. Carob powder is high in carbohydrate, so less sugar is required when substituting it for cocoa. Carob's fat content is much lower than cocoa so you may want to increase the amount of fat in a baked product to get a similar result. People who are unable to eat chocolate because of allergies find that carob is an acceptable substitute.

QUESTION:
I have heard that a woman's nutritional needs can differ when she is taking an oral contraceptive. Is this true?

ANSWER:
The hormone levels in the body are similarly high during pregnancy and period of oral contraceptive use. The body handles some nutrients differently at these times. Research has suggested that some women need more folic acid, Vitamin B12, B6 and other B-complex vitamins, Vitamin C and some minerals. However, if you eat regularly a diet containing foods as outlined in Canada's Food Guide, any increased nutritional needs will be met. Three nutrients: iron, calcium and vitamin A will actually be retained better from your foods because of "The Pill." As a general rule, foods which are good sources of the B vitamins are whole grain cereals, organ meats, pork and lean beef, fish, peas, beans and leafy vegetables. A good way to obtain Vitamin C and folic acid together is to have an orange or a cup of orange juice daily.

Pigeons Start Early

Rice Piles Up As Japanese Copy Western Eating Styles

TOKYO (Reuter) — Millions of Japanese sit down every morning to a traditional breakfast — a bowl of rice covered in raw egg, pieces of black-green seaweed and dried raw fish, with a bowl of soya bean soup on the side.

But with Japan's increasing wealth, more and more people are travelling abroad and one of the results is that foreign, especially Western, food is making steady inroads on the Japanese palate.

An increasing number of Japanese start their day with tea and toast and jam instead of rice and miso soup.

Pizza parlors, French bistros, Chinese, Greek, Turkish, Scandinavian, Russian, German and American restaurants abound in Tokyo and, to a lesser degree, in Japan's other main centres.

The result is a dramatic fall in consumption of rice, the staple of Japan for thousands of years.

And that in turn has produced a gigantic surplus. Government warehouses are bulging with 2.6 million tons of rice.

As part of the relentless Westernization, marked changes in drinking habits have contributed to the rice mountain.

Where Japanese once drank warm, yeasty sake rice wine, now more and more are tossing back whisky and beer.

Technical advances and agricultural improvements have helped make it possible for farmers to outstrip the declining demand for rice made by Japan's 114 million people.

Here's Four-Part Plan For Pooped Adults

Food for Thought

Have you heard the one-liner about the wife who was asked whether her busy executive husband believed in life after death? "I don't know," she replied, "but as far as I can tell, he doesn't believe in life after dinner!"

Sad to say, this description can be applied to a great many hard-driving people who find themselves running out of steam at the end of the day.

If you or your spouse are one of these "no life after dinner" types, we would like to offer a four-part plan to put new life into the after-work hours. We believe that, once converted, the formerly "too tired" executive — or housewife — should not only be healthier but happier.

— Take a long hard look at your alcohol intake. Many people rush home from work, have a drink or two, and are then too groggy to do anything more than eat and watch a bit of television for the rest of the evening. Instead of cocktails, a walk before dinner may prove an invigorating and interesting alternative, especially now that the days are longer and warmer.

— Take a look at your exercise patterns. Many people, including those who watch what they eat, pay no attention to the amount of exercise they get. Yet regular physical activity is just as important to good health as good nutrition is. This is particularly true if you are striving to achieve or maintain proper weight. Summer is an ideal time to step up your exercise to at least one hour of vigorous activity a day. For starters, try an hour's walk each day. If you have access to a pool or the beach, a regular swim is an ideal way to exercise. Bicycling, tennis, weekend hiking all are good possibilities. Discover what you enjoy most and practise it regularly. You'll soon find you have more energy — and fun!

— Take a look at your food consumption. Did you put on a few extra pounds over the winter? If so, now is the ideal time to take them off. Just a few dietary adjustments may be sufficient. For example, if you drink your coffee with cream and sugar, you can save 30 to 50 calories per cup by switching to unsweetened iced tea with a dash of lemon juice. Limit desserts to fruit — a painless way to cut calories and still enjoy tasty and nutritious seasonal favorites, such as melon, grapes, cherries and peaches. Purposefully reduce the serving size of meats and other main dishes while increasing the portion size of the salads and fresh vegetables you serve. Most of us tend to eat less during the warm summer months, and a little extra attention to menu planning can result in an easy approach to dieting.

— Take a look at your smoking. Many people find that summer is the best time to stop smoking. There are more diversions during June, July and August, which makes smoking seem less important. Also, many people hesitate to stop smoking for fear that they will eat more and gain weight. But since we tend to eat less and exercise more during the summer, the stop-smoking weight gain is less likely to occur.

Besides providing for a more enjoyable life, this four-part regimen also promises big dividends in improving your health. Take the middle-age executive who is often overweight and is also likely to have elevated blood pressure, for example. A number of studies have shown that simply by losing weight and increasing exercise, many cases of mild hypertension can be brought under control. And, as a recent Swedish study has clearly shown, those people who take preventive steps to bring their blood pressure under control early in the game have a markedly lowered incidence of coronary artery disease — and live longer and are far happier — than those who do not take preventive measures.

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle:	You feel the vastness of the unknown. Fight fear and activate positive perception.
6-10 Neutral Cycle:	A little distance between you and another may be the antidote right about now.
11-15 Positive Cycle:	You tend to throw yourself over-zealously into a small project. Keep your perspectives in line.

We all fall prey to bending the truth a little now and then. The problem is, temptation seems much stronger when we're on a low cycle — particularly a low intellectual cycle. Half truths, or silence while others misconstrue, may seem an easy way out at the moment, but in the end the truth will be out, and you may be worse off.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®

HUSH PUPPIES!

A traditional Southern fish fry or barbecue never seemed complete without a gaggle of hounds hanging around the edges of the action. Naturally, the dogs always set up a horrendous din when the folks began to eat, and this prompted the diners to throw something cheap and filling to shut the hounds up.

Over a period of time, dogs and humans compromised on thumb-sized cakes of corn bread deep-fat fried in whatever grease was handiest. The improvised chow was good enough to quiet the hounds (hence the name "hush puppies"), and many Southerners soon learned that it also went well with whatever they were eating.

To prepare your own hush puppies, follow this recipe:

2 cups fine cornmeal
2 tablespoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup of finely chopped onion
1¼ cups milk
½ cup water
cooking oil

Mix the first three ingredients then stir in the onion. Blend in the milk and water, adding more cornmeal as necessary to make the dough stiff enough to be handled. Shape the batter into small round or elongated cakes, drop them into deep, hot fat (360 degrees) and turn them occasionally until they're well browned.

Hush puppies are the most flavorful when fried together with fish and served piping hot.

July's Best for Salmon

craig claiborne

July remains the finest month for contemplating the uses and virtues of salmon, luxury though it may be.

Salmon, it would seem, has always been a prized fish. There is said to be an etching on a cave wall in southern France that dates back more than 12,000 years. To Pliny is attributed the observation that in southwestern Gaul "the river salmon is preferred to all the fish that swim in the sea."

Perhaps for genuine salmon fanciers, the ultimate time to have lived was in an era described by Sir Walter Scott, who lived from 1771 to 1832.

"Salmon," he wrote, was in that age "caught in such plenty . . . instead of being accounted a delicacy, it was generally supplied to feed the servants, who are said sometimes to have (protested) that they should not be required to eat a food so luscious and surfeiting . . . above five times a week."

Remember the legend of Jonah and the whale? There is a painting in the Smithsonian Institution, executed by an American Indian of the Northwest a century or so ago. So awed was the artist by the salmon that it shows Jonah in the stomach of an enormous salmon.

The delectable nature of salmon is not to be denied. One of those most curious traditional dishes in America, to my mind at least, is the lomi-lomi of Hawaii.

Salmon, I have been told, does not exist in the Pacific waters a thousand miles from Hawaii, and yet lomi-lomi, made with salted Chinook salmon, is one of the national dishes. The origins of the dish date from the time of the trading vessels that anchored in the islands en route from the United States or Europe to the Orient.

The vessels, of course, carried stores of salted foods that would not spoil easily. They traded salt salmon to the Hawaiian natives for fresh fruit. The Hawaiians soaked the salmon, worked it with their fingers (the word "Lomi-Lomi" derives from the way the salmon is prepared with the fingers) to the desired texture, and served it with tomatoes and scallions.

In North America today, the kinds of salmon available commercially throughout the years are, generally speaking, four. There is Atlantic salmon; Pacific Chinook or king salmon; Pacific silver or coho salmon, and what is called "fall" salmon, which arrives in autumn.

According to John von Glahn of the U.S. Fishery Council and our favorite authority on such matters, the vast majority of the fresh salmon consumed on the East Coast arrives from the Pacific by air freight. Predominant is the Chinook salmon.

Nearly 850,000 pounds are sold each year. Some 58,000 pounds of coho salmon satisfy the appetites of gastronomes. Another 23,000 pounds of Atlantic salmon arrive by truck from Canadian waters. In addition to which 1,137,000 pounds of frozen salmon are directed to those who smoke fish commercially; supermarkets and fish markets; and for canning purposes. Salmon is, of course, one of the most versatile of fish and wears many guises. There is, indeed, a place for canned salmon on the connoisseur's shelf and fresh salmon is the basis for many elegant dishes.

Here is a sampling of basic and elegant salmon dishes.

POACHED SALMON

The Court bouillon:

6 quarts water
1 bottle dry white wine
1½ cups coarsely chopped carrots
1½ cups coarsely chopped celery
3 cups chopped onion
4 cloves garlic, unpeeled but cut in half
1 hot red pepper
10 dill sprigs
6 sprigs fresh parsley
Salt to taste
1 bay leaf
1½ cups coarsely chopped leeks

The salmon:

1 whole, cleaned salmon, up to seven and one-half pounds, or use one large section of salmon such as the tail section or centre cut, about three to three and one-half pounds.

The garnishes:

Tarragon sprigs
Cherry tomatoes, halved
Boston lettuce
Hard-cooked eggs, quartered
Small tomatoes, quartered
Lemon wedges
Mayonnaise sauce and cucumber salad with dill (see recipes).

1. Combine all the ingredients for the court bouillon in a fish cookery or a kettle large enough to hold the fish. Bring to the boil and simmer, covered, about 20 minutes. Let cool.

2. Wrap the whole salmon or salmon piece in cheesecloth or a clean towel and tie neatly with string. Lower it into the fish cooker or kettle and cover. Bring to the boil and simmer gently exactly 20 minutes. The cooking time will be the same for a whole salmon or a large centre section. Let stand briefly and serve hot or let it cool completely until ready to use if it is to be served at room temperature.

3. Remove the salmon and untie it. Remove the cheesecloth or towel. Place the salmon carefully on a flat surface and pull and scrape away the skin. Scrape away the thin dark brown flesh that coats the main salmon pink flesh.

4. Decorate and garnish the salmon as desired. As a suggestion, drop large tarragon sprigs in boiling water and drain immediately. Chill instantly in ice water. Pat dry. Garnish surface of salmon with halved cherry tomatoes and tarragon leaves. Arrange around the salmon small lettuce cups from Boston lettuce filled with quartered hard-cooked eggs wedged neatly between quartered small tomatoes. Serve with lemon wedges and mayonnaise sauces.

Yield: 12 to 24 servings, depending on size of salmon and whether served as an appetizer, buffet item or main course.

SAUMON GRILLE MIRABEAU

(Grilled salmon steaks with anchovy butter and olives)

The salmon:

6 one-inch thick slices fresh salmon, with bone in Oil
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

The anchovy butter:

8 flat fillets of anchovy, chopped (about one and one-half tablespoons chopped)
8 tablespoons butter at room temperature

The garnish:

6 lemon slices, seeds removed
6 jumbo pitted green olives
6 flat fillets of anchovy
6 tiny sprigs fresh parsley

1. Prepare a fire of charcoal or wood for grilling the fish. Or preheat the broiler to high.

2. Place the steaks in a flat dish such as a jelly roll pan and brush lightly with oil on all sides. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Set aside.

3. Add the chopped anchovies to a small mixing bowl and add the butter. Blend well. Put the mixture through a fine sieve. Spoon it into a small serving bowl. Let stand at room temperature, unless the room is exceedingly hot, in which case keep the mixture in a cool spot.

4. Prepare the lemon slices and set them aside.

5. Wrap each olive with one fillet of anchovy around the middle like a belt. The olives should be bottom up. Make a small hole in the bottom of each olive and stick the stem of one small sprig of parsley in each olive. Set aside.

6. Grill the salmon about four or five minutes per side until cooked but not dry. Turn and cook four or five minutes longer. To test for doneness, insert the point of a knife somewhat firmly into the centre of each small salmon bone. If the knife can be withdrawn removing the centre bone, the fish is done.

7. To serve, place the fish steaks on a hot platter. Place one anchovy-wrapped olive in each piece where the bone was removed. Garnish with one lemon slice. Serve hot with anchovy butter on the side.

Yield: 6 servings.

LET BIOSCAL®
HELP KEEP YOUR HAIR!

Finnish scientists have developed a scalp treatment that can halt baldness and even start new hair growing in many cases.

Among volunteers who applied the formula to their scalp for 28 weeks, hair growth resumed in 60 per cent of the cases and hair loss decreased within four weeks.

The product, called Bioscal, contains a synthetic detergent, which clears away dead hair and other dirt clogging the follicles — the tiny sacs in which hair grows.

Another ingredient, a compound, then sets in motion a process which has resulted in the growth of new hair. If not available (at your hairdresser or stylist, obtain yours at

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I went out of town for one night, leaving our 17-year-old son without supervision for the first time. With our approval, he had a friend stay with him. He asked us to trust him and we felt we could.

All went well — as far as we know. The problem? Our 21-year-old son, who attends college near home, showed up unexpectedly with a young lady (a freshman in college), and they spent the night in our guest room!

After learning of this, my husband confronted our 21-year-old son, who apologized with tears in his eyes, saying he realized he shouldn't have done it, but nothing happened. He swears that they both slept on top of the covers with all their clothes on. (This is hard for me to believe.)

My husband believes the boy and tells me that "times have changed," and I am overreacting. I cannot accept this. I am disgusted with our son, and ashamed of the example he has set for his younger brother. Also, I can't imagine a decent girl putting herself in this position.

To top it off, a few days later our son brought this girl over, and I was expected to smile as though nothing had happened.

Must I go along with my husband's "times have changed" attitude? I feel bitter and betrayed. — UPSET MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: It's possible that your son was telling the truth when he said "nothing happened." Granted, he showed very poor judgment in bringing his date home for the night, but what will you gain by being bitter, suspicious and unforgiving?

Even "decent" girls have been known to do foolish things, so try not to hold it against her. Whether "times have changed" is not as important as maintaining a good relationship with your son. He obviously regrets the incident. Don't mention it again.

DEAR ABBY: My aunt brings her two kids (ages five and seven) over to our house whenever she feels like it, then she and my mom take off, leaving me to baby-sit with the kids for maybe half a day.

I never get paid a penny for this, and believe me, those brats are a handful.

I am sick of it, and I told my mom that I was going to ask my aunt for a dollar an hour for each kid, like I charge everybody else. Mom said if I opened my mouth she'd punch me out.

I am 14. Is this fair? What is your advice? — MAD.

DEAR MAD: It isn't fair, but I wouldn't advise you to open your mouth — unless you want to get punched out.

DEAR ABBY: Please print my letter. It might keep some other girl from making the same mistake I made.

I went with a boy all semester. The only place he ever took me was out to park. He told me he "loved" me, and I flipped for him, but when it came time to ask a girl to the prom, he asked someone else. I felt so hurt I wanted to die.

When my girlfriend asked him how come he didn't ask me, he said, "Oh, she's OK for a make-out, but a guy likes to be seen with a girl he respects." — USED.

Shoal Bay Sewer Passed to Oak Bay

The Shoal Bay sewer project — centre of a controversy for two years — will be debated by Oak Bay council on July 17, Mayor Brian Smith said today.

The Capital Regional District's public works committee decided Wednesday to let Oak Bay recommend a solution after the committee found itself facing escalating costs.

The committee was faced with the prospect of a $9 million expenditure to avoid placing sewage pump stations in Oak Bay. Members felt the price too high and too big a burden on taxpayers.

Oak Bay will be asked to decide where it will accept a pump station.

Oak Bay alderman Shirley Dowell, who is not a member of the committee but is allowed to attend meetings, questioned the $9 million price tag.

"This is just ridiculous," she said. "We're not going to pay for any more monuments to engineers."

Victoria alderman Murray Glazier told her the gravity line proposal is dead and Oak Bay should now decide where a pump station should go.

"I'm not going to be put on the spot by you and answer that question," she replied.

She was defeated when she proposed the matter be tabled until a written report from Oak Bay council is received.

A spokesman for Willis, Cunliffe Tait and Company told the committee it had a choice between $1.01 million, $622,000 or $383,000 in annual costs, depending on the method it chose to dispose of sewage from the northesat trunk.

Regional engineer Norman Howard, however, said annual costs would be about $1 million whatever route is taken.

The regional district has wrestled with the problem for two years after Oak Bay residents protested having a pumping station built in Shoal Bay to continue the trunk from Gonzales to the Clover Point outfall.

About a year ago the regional board decided to try a short outfall at McMicking Point, monitoring the shoreline for pollution. Diversions were planned in two stages if pollution continued.

Chairman Jim Campbell, however, concerned at the prospect of another showdown with taxpayers, insisted on a report on the need for a pumping station.

Last week consultants reported that a 40-foot square pumping station, to be two feet above road level, would be needed for any kind of outfall off McMicking.

In addition, the board was told $600,000 would be needed for monitoring and the outfall might have to be abandoned if pollution persisted.

Howard suggested at that time a gravity sewer could divert the flow at McNeil and Transit, eliminating the need for a pumping station.

Nature House Open to Public

The Freeman King nature house in Goldstream Park is open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays to Saturdays, and from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. on Sundays.

Naturalists will also be on hand throughout the summer months for nature walks, talks and slide shows.

Nature walks are at 10 a.m. daily starting behind campsite 75. Talks are at 7:30 p.m. behind the campsite Mondays and Fridays.

Also behind the campsite are slide shows at dusk on Tuesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

B.C. Buys More Tel Shares

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial government has bought an additional block of ordinary shares of B.C.Telephone Co., raising its holdings in the company to 1,202,346 shares, finance minister Evan Wolfe said Wednesday.

Wolfe confirmed reports that the government's Public Service Superannuation Fund picked up 200,391 ordinary shares under a June 9 rights offering to B.C. Tel shareholders.

The government exercised its rights to buy one new share for every five held, and paid $14.30 a share, or a total of $2,865,591.

B.C. Tel's ordinary shares closed at $15.75 on the Toronto Stock Exchange Wednesday.

Wolfe said the purchase, authorized by cabinet, was made on a recommendation by the pension fund investment committee "to enhance investments in B.C. Tel already held by the superannuation fund."

Five years ago, the New Democratic Party government bought 1,001,955 B.C. Tel and placed them in the pension fund.

B.C. Tel spokesman Keith Matthews said Wednesday the share transaction shortly after June 9 leaves the pension fund holding five per cent of ordinary shares.

The government's interest was reduced earlier this year when a preferred share conversion increased the number of ordinary shares by about 600,000, Matthews said.

Wolfe said the June purchase wasn't an "attempt to exert any greater ownership or control."

"It was too sound a deal to pass up," he said. "We would have been criticized for not taking advantage of it."

NDP house leader Bill King noted, however, that Premier Bill Bennett said during the 1975 election campaign that a Social Credit government would sell the B.C. Tel shares and use the money for social services.

Portable Dump Eyed

The Capital Regional Board will consider creating a portable garbage dump for Sooke.

The public works committee decided to recommend the action Wednesday after hearing complaints of garbage dumping in isolated spots, particularly of such large items as mattresses which are not normally picked up by the private collector.

People would be charged a small fee to dump such items as stoves and refrigerators in a packer truck which would be available every Saturday. The additional $8,000 a year would be picked up by the region.

City alderman Bob Wright, however, said this was preferential treatment for Sooke residents, saying Victoria and other municipalities have to shoulder the entire cost of collecting garbage and hauling it to the Hartland Road dump.

Board chairman Jim Campbell replied all areas had agreed to share the cost of the Hartland Road dump and since the dump was a long way from such places as Sooke and the Gulf Islands the regional district had agreed to pay for satellite dunps when they were needed.

The committee will recommend a Saturday garbage truck drop-off depot be established in Sooke, similar to that operated by Saanich.

Cloud Seeding Ends Drought

TOKYO (AP) — Artificially-induced rainfall has ended a serious drought on about 800,000 acres of farmland near northern China's Tienshan Mountains, Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency says.

The agency said a third of the state farms in the region use cloud seeding.

"My peas are tryin' to get away."

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Generally speaking, a lead away from a king is apt to be costly more often than not. But many situations arise where a defender's only hope is to lead away from a king. Such was the case in today's deal, which came up in a duplicate game.

Both sides vulnerable.
West deals.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
Pass	Dble.	Pass	3 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

Had the game been rubber bridge, a vulnerable North would have passed (instead of doubling for takeout) at his second opportunity to bid. But, by experience, one learns to make every effort not to sell out to the opening side at the one or two level in duplicate bridge, for when one does, he usually gets a poor score. So North chose to "balance" with a double; and South's three-heart call became the final contract.

After West's ace of spades had won the opening lead, West perceived the futility of continuing in this suit for he knew that if he did, South would discard a loser on dummy's spade king. This was simple reasoning: East had raised to two spades on his response on, obviously, the J-x-x of spades. Thus South had been dealt a singleton spade.

Looking at the dummy, West saw that the best hope for his side was in the club suit. To lead a heart or a diamond instead was hopeless, since declarer could not now be prevented from discarding a losing diamond or a losing club on the board's spade king. But if East-West had club tricks coming to them prior to trick one, they were still available.

So, at trick two, West led the six of clubs, away from his king — and things turned out gorgeously. East won the trick with his ace and returned a club, West making two tricks with his king and jack. The defenders now had their "book." In time, West made a diamond trick and declarer was down one. Had West led any suit other than clubs at trick two, declarer would have been able to fulfill his contract, since he would be able to discard one of his losing clubs on the board's king of spades.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, July 7
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You have chance to express, create, to deal successfully with children, questions of discipline and matters of speculation. Aquarius, Taurus, Leo figure prominently — and so does the number 4. Be wary of one very willing to take a gamble just so long as you take the risks.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Get down to business; get money's worth, make necessary changes, get commitments, promises in writing. Reject the flimsy, go after what is original and solid. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons could play key roles.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Relatives, close neighbors, the acquisition of luxury item, or activity connected with home improvement — these are likely to dominate. One who is diplomatic deserves attention. Be gracious. You could actually realize a profit if receptive. You'll see!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on money, what to discard, what to retain — Pisces, Virgo persons figure in scenario. Key is to know difference between the real article and a counterfeit. Someone wants something for nothing — from you.

LEO (July 23-August 22): This is your power-play day. Know it, take initiative, insist on your own style, policy. Responsibility, authority and money are part of your personal scenario. Capricorn, Cancer individuals are in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Let go of past — the future beckons and is bright. Take cold plunge! Fears, doubts are groundless; you're capable, vibrant and can make waves. Know it and act as if aware of it. You get what you want if you let powers-that-be know you've made a decision.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Spark of adventure, romance dominates — welcome chance to express concern and love. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. Popularity increases. You are active, caring, expressive, dynamic and you could hurt your back if you lift heavy objects. Know it and act accordingly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Build, dig, construct, investigate, examine — probe deep and you'll get answers. If lax, you get empty promises. The choice is your own. Hunch could pay dividends. You're capable of leaping above and over red tape. Do so!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good Moon aspect coincides now with travel, communication, educational projects, rare insights, special invitations. Gemini is part of scenario — so is another Sagittarian. You have legitimate chance to expand, to distribute, to display and to earn more money for your efforts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Practical matters dominate — you have rewarding time if you state case in realistic manner. Affairs concerned with secret meetings, romantic liaisons, property arrangements are featured. You could meet someone who is "submerged" in the occult.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lie low, go slow, get a good look at legal papers. Partnership, public responses, marriage also command spotlight. Be ready for unusual encounters, changes, messages from afar, variety, travel, "confessions" from the opposite sex.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Pace is moderate, but progress is possible if you are determined. Accent on service, nutrition, work, balance. Eschew sensationalism. Flashy individual is whistling in the dark. Know it and adhere to values which last rather than flit, fly, flirt, intrigue.

IF JULY 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY — You are spiritual, emotional, introspective, independent, unique, temperamental and have a tendency to brood. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. In September, social life accelerates. You are in process of making valuable contacts. In August, you are provided with information long sought. You are loyal and often lonely. You have a big heart but often those around you are "small" people. You have chance, before July is finished, to meet someone who will be your friend for life.

Keeping Mint in Check

Having a supply of good mint on hand for the first pickings of garden peas and the new potatoes scrabbled from under the plants is something worth planning. It is also one of the essentials for the gracious hostess when temperatures rise in summer.

Just about the time we need mint in increasing amounts the plants are sporting flowers and ceasing to produce the new growth which contain the best flavor.

It is not difficult to avoid this condition with a little planning in advance.

In the small home garden mint has to be controlled in some way to prevent rapid spreading. This means some kind of a container from which the roots cannot escape.

The simpliest containers will be five gallon cans with the bottoms cut out, or odd pieces of galvanized iron set fourteen inches into the soil and well overlapped at the corners or joins.

Start with two cans or metal enclosures set into the soil with about one inch of metal above soil level. Fill the containers with a mixture of soil and well rotted compost and set a good root of mint in the centre of each.

Cut all top growth on one plant at about one inch above soil level, and the stems on the other plant to one half their present height. The second plant should show a few good leaves for cutting within a week or ten days while the first plant is making new growths.

As soon as the first plant has a number of new stems suitable for a steady supply of mint leaves, cut the stems of the second plant to one inch above soil level.

Continuing this alternate cutting back assures an abandance of new growths and the plants never reach the stage of making flowers.

Cutting-back of mint can be done during winter if the plants are in a sunny spot sheltered from north and northeast winds. It will not be done as frequently as in spring or summer, only as necessary and according to the rate of new growth.

The growth rate varies with the different kinds of mint, and each home gardener seems to have a distinct preference for what is called the true mint flavor.

When growing in containers be sure that water is supplied directly into the container because the enclosed soil has no contact with the surrounding soil for the exchange of moisture.

After a few years the plants within containers will deteriorate, indicating the soil nutrients have been depleted.

The root in one container is then lifted, the container refilled with a soil and compost mix, and the newer outside growths from the old plant are removed and replanted.

The second container receives the same treatment as soon as the first container is in full production.

In most gardens mint is relegated to some out-of-the-way corner because of its invasive character, which is the plant's only means of searching for new soil in which to flourish.

Good mint requires good soil and moisture, in full sun, and the soil needs frequent renewal and the replanting of young strong pieces taken from the old plants. Given this small amount of attention it will produce the supply of good flavored mint we are seeking while occupying a minimum of space.

DEAR XAVIERA

A short note to tell you about this extraordinary property we have found in the Highlands. Would you believe a 3 bedroom house on 1.13 acres at the riduculous price of just $39,900, and the honest salesmen tell us it must be sold within the week, so they are even looking for offers. Looking forward to hearing from you.
Sincerely Yours

China Dancing into a New Era

By JOHN FRASER
Special to the Times

PEKING — Now that women have started to wear skirts again in China, it seems fair to ask what the next big social change is going to be. It turns out to be dancing, according to reliable sources — not ballet or ethnic steps (which never died out) but old-fashioned, body contact dancing to records and the promise of live Chinese bands.

Dancing was one of many things attacked as decadent and bourgeois during the cultural revolution, but most Chinese know that up to 1965 their leaders enjoyed tripping the light fantastic to live band music at such places as the Xin Qiao Hotel in central Peking. They also know that during the Yenan period in the early 1940s, even Chairman Mao-Tse-tung himself could be enticed onto a dance floor for some fast two steps.

It appears that Western social dancing already is being tried out at private Chinese parties and it was learned Wednesday that last Saturday some dancing went on in public at a popular social club in the city.

Unfortunately, say Chinese sources, the experiment ended badly because six male youths got out of hand and treated a young woman so roughly that police had to intervene.

Dancing in earnest is expected to be officially permitted sometime in the fall, perhaps around the Oct. 1 celebrations. Sources add that for foreigners, a whole new dimension to night life in Peking may begin if the Chinese go ahead with a provisional plan to stage regular dance evenings at the international club.

Whatever emerges, the dancing is expected to be of "the old school." Rock music is still considered decadent here, although foreign students in several parts of China tell stories of their classmates at university asking to hear rock "just so they understand the nature of its decadence better."

Vesco Barred

SAN JOSE (AP) — President Rodrigo Carazo has taken steps to keep Robert Vesco out of Costa Rica despite a court order requiring the fugitive U.S. financier to return by July 10.

Judge Juan Jose Quiros allowed Vesco to leave the country in May and told him he had to return within 75 days. That period is up July 10.

Carazo this week ordered all airports and other ports of entry to keep Vesco out if he tries to come back.

Blackmail Victim?

MONTREAL (CP) — Dalila Maschino, allegedly kidnapped and flown from Montreal to Algeria on April 25, is reported to have said she left her husband of her own free will because he blackmailed her into marriage.

"I repeat, I feel free because my marriage was no more than a farce which I accepted since I was a victim of blackmail," Dalila, 26, is quoted as saying in a copyright story published today in La Presse.

Dalila's brother, Algerian millionaire Messaoud Zeghar, was with her during an interview at his home in Algeria with Swiss journalist Pierre Pittet. In his story, Pittet describes Dalila as smiling and relaxed.

Her French husband, Denis Maschino, who has asked the Algerian and Canadian governments and the United Nations to help reunite him with his wife, says she was drugged and kidnapped by Zeghar and taken to Algiers on his private plane.

The story said Maschino had taken "daring" photographs of Dalila in 1975 while they were students in Paris and used the photos "as blackmail" to force her to marry him and follow him to Montreal.

Pittet reports that Dalila supported her brother's comment saying she had lived in constant "fear" that her family would learn about the nude photos and had asked Zeghar to come and get her as soon as her university studies ended here last April.

Reserves Fall Again

LONDON (AP) — Britain's gold and foreign currency reserves fell by $119 million during June to $16.542 billion, the treasury announced today.

June was the fifth successive month in which the reserves declined since peaking at $20.868 billion in January. But the drop of $119 million was the smallest this year.

During the month, Britain repaid a total of $174 million in foreign debts, the treasury said, and fresh borrowing by nationalized industries amounted to $104 million.

This left a relatively modest underlying outflow for the month of $49 million, significantly less than the underlying outflow for May of $728 million.

The underlying outflow is the amount of money that leaves the country through such means as Bank of England support for the pound or the withdrawal of funds by overseas investors.

SECRET CHINESE OIL DEALS?

TOKYO (AP) — China is using major Western oil companies to ship Chinese crude oil to non-Communist countries, one of Japan's biggest newspapers reported today.

Mainichi Shimbun said Caltex, the Texaco subsidiary, and Royal Dutch Shell, the British-Dutch giant, shipped secretly between 220,000 and 230,000 tons of Chinese crude to major Japanese oil firms last year.

A spokeman for Nippon Oil Co., Japan's leading oil company, said his company imported Chinese crude through Caltex last year, but he refused to give details.

Solomons Islands Gain Independence

HONIARA, Solomon Islands (UPI) — Royalty and statesmen from the four corners of the world have converged on Guadalcanal, the largest main island of this South Pacific archipelago, to attend the birth of the independent Solomon Islands on Friday.

The ceremonies on Guadalcanal, scene of the bloody victory of U.S. forces over the Japanese Imperial Army that turned around the war in the Pacific in 1942, will mark the end of 83 years of British colonial rule over the tropical islands.

Four warships — the U.S. Navy's Preble and Shipple, Australia's Vendetta and the Monowai from New Zealand — will rendezvous for the occasion in Solomon Island waters northeast of Australia, an area that saw some of the fiercest fighting in the Second World War.

U.S. Sen. John Glenn (D-Ohio), England's Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, Australian Foreign Minister Andrew Peacock and New Zealand Labor Minister John Gordon will speak at a simple one-hour ceremony as official representatives of their countries.

Each studied pidgin English — the only semblance of a universal language among the Solomons' 40 dialects — for the occasion.

Gordon flew Hudson bombers from Henderson Airfield on Guadalcanal in 1942 and 1943.

The fledgling nation's first visible sign of life was the changeover from Australian dollars to an indigenous currency July 1 — probably a good indication of how dramatically independence will affect the 200,000 islanders.

The new nation of Prime Minister Peter Kenilorea will remain heavily dependent on foreign aid, notably including $46 million in grants from Britain.

Refugees Arrive

MONTREAL (CP) — Sixteen families who fled Vietnam by boat and were picked up by a Greek freighter arrived at Mirabel airport here Wednesday from Mombasa, Kenya, after being accepted as refugees by the Canadian government.

An immigration department spokesman said the families are the first large group of Vietnamese "small boat" refugees to be received under a program which will provide homes for 50 families each month.

Flying Blind Raise Cane

Blind persons, some with guide dogs, picket FAA building in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Hey, hey, whatta you say? Please don't take our canes away!"

That was one of many chants raised by about 1,000 blind persons on Wednesday as they demonstrated outside U.S. Federal Aviation Administration headquarters against a regulation that requires blind passengers to surrender their white canes during airliner takeoffs and landings.

The demonstrators, some led by guide dogs, others helping one another, marched in an orderly circle, tapping their canes on the pavement and carrying signs proclaiming: FAA Unfair to Blind Travellers, Fly Me, Cane and All, and Canes Are Not Baggage.

"We think the FAA is overregulating," said James Gashel, chief of the Federation for the Blind's Washington office. "It should stick to regulating on the more important issues and let blind people have their canes on airliners.

"A cane is part of us and would be our means of getting out of an aircraft if there is an accident," he said.

FAA spokesman Pete Clapper defended the rule that requires flight attendants to stow long rigid canes during takeoffs and landings. He said that if there is turbulence or an accident, canes might be a potential hazard as projectiles, and that they might block exits or puncture escape chutes during an evacuation.

"It is the typical bureaucratic nonsense we get out of the FAA," Gashel said of the meeting. "There never has been a case where a cane hurt anyone on an airplane. Blind people have a right to hold onto their canes."

The issue might eventually be settled in court.

The federation earlier this year asked a federal court to declare the cane regulation null and and void, but the judge said it was a lawful and enforceable regulation. The case now is before the U.S. Court of Appeals here.

Ghana Chief Ousted In Bloodless Coup

Washington Post

Ghana's chief of state, Gen. I.K. Acheampong, was ousted in a bloodless palace coup Wednesday and replaced by his deputy on the ruling military council.

The sudden changeover was seen by U.S. officials as a response to Ghana's growing economic difficulties.

It is not expected to result in any foreign or domestic policy changes. It appeared to be an effort to deflect criticism of the military council's management of the economy.

Ghana is experiencing severe foreign currency problems that have led to shortages of consumer goods and energy. The country's oil refinery ran out of crude last week.

An official Ghanaian statement said Acheampong, 46, who took power in a bloodless coup six years ago, resigned as head of state and simultaneously retired from the armed forces.

"This decision has been taken to ensure the unity and stability of the nation," the statement said without providing other details.

The new leader was identified as Lt.-Gen. Fred Akuffo, Acheampong's deputy on he six-member military council and chief of Ghana's defense staff.

American officials said Accra, the capital, was taken by surprise by the military council's announcement. But they said the city was calm.

I.K. ACHEAMPONG

Apart from responding to popular unhappiness with the council's economic policies, these officials said, Wednesday's move also indicated disagreement among senior military officers over Acheampong's plan to move gradually toward civilian government.

The plan to devise a new African political system capable of reconciling the military and civilian claims to power was put to a referendum last March but won the support of only slightly more than half the voters. A secret ballot count led to charges by the civilian opposition that the results were rigged.

Heath, Thatcher Make Up

LONDON (Reuter) — Former British prime minister Edward Heath on Wednesday formally ended a three-year personal feud with Conservative leader Margaret Thatcher.

In a long-awaited speech, Heath pledged loyalty to the woman who surprisingly toppled him as leader of the Conservative party in 1975.

Speaking during a by-election meeting, Heath wished his old rival success and promised to campaign vigorously for the Conservatives in the forthcoming general election.

CHURCH RAIDS RULED PROPER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal judge ruled Wednesday that FBI raids and seizure of documents at two Church of Scientology offices were "reasonable and properly limited."

U.S. District Judge Malcolm Lucas said FBI agents conducting the extensive search of the Los Angeles offices last summer could not have known exactly where certain documents were without looking around for them.

"The court finds that the searches, even though directed at a church, were reasonable and properly limited under the circumstances," Lucas ruled.

Lucas imposed a 24-hour stay on his ruling to allow church lawyers to appeal to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Gregory Layton, a Washington spokesman for the Church of Scientology, said the church will appeal.

The raids were conducted as part of an investigation of alleged conspiracies to infiltrate government agencies, burgle government offices and "bug" federal property, the government has said.

Individual church spokesmen have said they know nothing of any illegal acts.

The church claims four million followers and lists active organizations in 17 U.S. cities and a dozen other countries. It calls scientology "the spiritual heir of Buddhism in the Western world."

Electric Cars Soon In City: GM

NEW YORK (CP) — By the middle of the next decade, city dwellers may find themselves wheeling downtown in quiet, pollution-free cars that would be plugged in instead of filled up.

General Motors Corp., the world's largest automaker, is hard at work developing a reliable, long-lasting battery to power electric cars, a task the corporation says might put these exotic vehicles into customer showrooms by the mid-1980s.

Barring some major advance in battery technology, a fast, long-range electric car is not feasible. But GM says it hopes to produce a car for city use. Urban conditions would require a car with a range of about 170 kilometres between charges and a top speed of perhaps 80 kilometres an hour.

GM is working on different kinds of batteries in the quest for a reliable model that can be marketed.

Normal car batteries are of the lead-acid type, but work is also progressing on zinc-nickel oxide batteries that could double or triple the range available from conventional cells. Possibilities are seen for lithium-iron sulfide batteries, although they are as much as 10-to-15 years away from practical application.

GM says it does not see the electric car of the 1980s replacing conventional gasoline-fueled vehicles, but has high hopes for their application to city use where most trips are short and at low speeds.

Battery technology is the key to the program, says the corporation. Design features of the electric car depend on the batteries used.

The conventional golf-cart designs for prototypes are dictated by the need to carry the bulky, present-day lead-acid cells. New batteries will lead to a more attractive car, the engineers say.

Some GM engineers aren't really concerned about appearances. They have been using various test vehicles in evaluating new batteries and a group of them even put together a car from mail-order plans offered by a technology magazine.

"That was not a company program," a GM spokesman commented.

One experimental prototype, a converted Chevette nicknamed the Electrovette, is already purring along test tracks. The GM engineers say its 920 pounds of lead-acid batteries give it a one-charge range equal to a gallon of gasoline.

Trigger Pulled For Laughing

NEW YORK (AP) — A 13-year-old Harlem youth was upset when he thought a 15-year-old seminary student was laughing at him. The youth allegedly pulled a pistol, put it to Hugh McEvoy's temple and pulled the trigger.

The gun misfired, but the youth, undeterred, "calmly adjusted the cylinder, put the gun to McEvoy's head again and fired a bullet into his head," police said.

McEvoy clings to life, kept alive by a respirator at St. Luke's Hospital. One doctor described him as "brain dead."

The 13-year-old was arrested Wednesday and charged with the shooting. A 16-year-old companion also was taken into custody.

McEvoy, 15, and a long-time friend, Peter Maher, also 15, were sitting on a railing outside the Columbia University campus Sunday evening when the two other teenagers passed by.

"What are you laughing at?" one of the alleged assailants demanded.

"We're not laughing at anything," Maher replied.

Thereupon, both drew guns, which Maher initially mistook for toy pistols.

"It was really a senseless thing," said Sgt. John Loehner. "He was the victim of circumstance. He happened to be at the wrong place at the wrong time."

Detente Facing Test: Gromyko

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko told the Supreme Soviet today that detente faces trials from "loud and hysterical" anti-Soviet circles in the West.

With President Leonid Brezhnev and other top Communist party leaders looking on, Gromyko described critics of detente as "unscrupulous and irresponsible."

The accommodation between East and West is an "edifice that has been erected and is now undergoing trials for solidity and for firmness from its enemies," Gromyko said.

Gromyko spoke to the the Supreme Soviet, the U.S.S.R.'s parliament, in support of a draft law on conclusion and abrogation of international treaties which the members will approve before their summer session ends today or Friday. The session began Wednesday.

The foreign minister said the Soviet Union will "follow to the letter and spirit" all treaties it signs, including the strategic arms limitations treaty (SALT) now being negotiated with the United States.

He said critics in the West were trying to prevent the conclusion of a new SALT accord and to harm Soviet-U.S. relations as a whole.

Dam Cost Jumps $300M

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Hydro's Revelstoke dam now is expected to cost $1.5 billion or $300 million more than originally estimated, Elwood Veitch, chairman of the legislature's Crown corporations committee, said Wednesday.

He said that the new estimate for the dam comes from preliminary investigations of costs and other factors related to the project by staff members hired by the committee.

The committee is expected to resume hearings into the Crown corporation within a few weeks, Veitch said.

The chairman said $13 million in extra Revelstoke dam costs, run up in a little more than a year's work, "are certainly cause for concern."

Veitch said he could give no breakdown of the $300 million increase but said the figure, as well as other information on current Hydro operations, has come to the attention of staff members.

A subcommittee meeting likely will be held next week to plan summer activities, and "I hope the committee will agree to go up to Revelstoke as soon as possible to look at the problems there," he said.

4 DROWN IN ELEVATOR

Thousands Flee Rochester Flood

ROCHESTER, Minn. (UPI) — A flash flood sent water surging through streets and buildings today, killing at least five persons and forcing 4,000 persons to flee their homes.

Authorities feared the death toll could mount as rescue teams searched flooded buildings for more victims of the flooding Zumbro River.

The National Guard was ordered to duty to aid in evacuations and protect evacuated areas.

Power lines were down in many areas and telephone service to the southeastern Minnesota city was, at best, intermittent.

Police said four persons drowned in a short-circuited elevator that went down into basement flood waters at a nursing home. The fifth confirmed victim was a women whose car was swept off an Olmsted County road south of the city.

All five bodies were recovered.

Olmsted County Sheriff Charles Von Wald said he also has received "unconfirmed reports of some cars swept off the road and I fear there may be some accuracy to that but we're not sure."

Roy Aune, assistant director of Minnesota's Emergency Services Division, said he heard "uncomfirmed reports that as many as nine may be dead."

Three elderly patients in wheelchairs and a nurse's aide drowned at the National Health Enterprises Centre, a nursing home.

Authorities said the four got onto an elevator and the nurse's aid pushed a button to go up but the elevator, short-circuited by the flood, went down into the basement instead and filled with water.

Gov. Rudy Perpich called out 50 members of the Army National Guard in Rochester at the request of the sheriff. The guardsmen were helping with security and also with evacuation, including 120 persons from a nursing home.

A BITING DELIVERY

FRANKFURT (AP) — A 4½-foot python wriggled out of a package in a post office today and bit a worker, sending him to the hospital, West German postal officials said.

The 44-year-old man, who was not identified, was reported in no danger.

Officials said the reptile was being sent by a dealer in Bavaria to another dealer in Berlin.

Only 'Guts' Will Solve Tank Peril

Victoria should expect to continue living with the safety risk of oil tanks dotted around the Inner Harbor because "there are not the politicians around with enough guts to move them," Capital Region Board chairman Jim Campbell said Wednesday.

Campbell was explaining why, after five years of trying to relocate the scattered tank farms to a single location outside the city, the regional board is still no closer to a solution.

He said the stumbling block to relocation is that nobody wants them.

"Every time some kind of rational decision is made to relocate them the protesters march forward to prevent any change," he said.

"This is a symptom of the basic problem of society, when political office seems to be such an exciting reward that very few politicians are prepared to offend the vocal electorate."

Campbell echoed the comments of Victoria Mayor Mike Young and city aldermen that Wednesday's early-morning waterfront blaze in James Bay underlines the need to move the oil tanks out of the highly developed urban area.

He said society cannot afford to be constantly prevented from finding solutions to pressing problems by the protests of a vociferous minority.

"If James Bay burns down because of this totally negative response by people in the outlying communities I know where the blame lies," he added.

Campbell and Young both said they had arranged to meet Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis to discuss government assistance in moving the oil installations. The meeting had been arranged well before Wednesday's fire.

Meanwhile, city fire department officials were continuing their investigations into the fire, which caused an estimated $1.5 million damage to shipyards at 130 Kingston, adjacent to a Texaco oil storage plant containing about 1.2 million gallons of fuel.

Deputy fire chief Mike Heppell, who earlier indicated the investigators had a "good idea" how and when the fire started, declined any further comment today.

"Anything I could say would not be in the best interests of the investigation," he said.

A spokesman for Capital City Shipyards said the fire would mean the loss of about 30 jobs for employees of the firm and of Western Boat Builders, also located on the property.

Liberal Sweeps In Que.

By PETER HADEKEL
Times Quebec Bureau

MONTREAL — Quebec Liberal leader Claude Ryan claimed a victory over "political extremism" Wednesday as Liberal candidate Reed Scowen swept to victory in a provincial byelection in the Montreal riding of Notre Dame de Grace.

In the first byelection held since the Parti Quebecois government took power 20 months ago, Scowen won 64 per cent of the vote in the predominantly anglophone suburb.

He picked up 12,797 votes to 4,983 for independent candidate David DeJong and 2,347 for Michel Gelinas of the PQ. Union Nationale candidate Albert Brulotte had 341 votes.

Liberal organizers were jubilant that a majority of the 25 per cent francophone voters in the riding voted Liberal.

Although the quiet residential riding is 75 per cent English-speaking and a traditional Liberal stronghold, both

PM, B.C. Talk Constitution

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau arrived here Wednesday for a one-day visit to hear feedback on his proposals to amend the Constitition.

Tomorrow he heads for Calgary for the opening of the Stampede.

Trudeau's officials said he wanted to explain his constitutional proposals to the people of the West.

Youth Welfare Eliminated Except in Special Cases

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Wednesday his ministry has cut off welfare for all persons aged 16 to 18 in B.C except in cases of special need.

Vander Zalm said, however, that if a young person has become destitute after leaving a home with irrevocable domestic problems or after a period of independent employment, he could still be eligible for benefits.

Vander Zalm said in an interview that giving social assistance to teen-agers only encourages them to leave home when they are involved family disputes.

The minister said the new policy has been in effect for about a month, but was not publicly announced.

Rosemary Brown (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard), her party's human resources critic, said she is opposed to the proposal.

"If he can demonstrate that it is being abused, it should be treated like any other fraud case," she said. "He has no right to make those kinds of arbitrary decisions."

She said most teen-agers receiving welfare are living at home and attempting to supplement their family's income.

"Is that man never going to stop scape-goating poor people?" she asked.

But except for emergency cases, regional human resources officers now must seek approval from Victoria to dispense welfare money to youtsh 16 to 18.

Hugh Miller, spokesman for the B.C. Association of Social Workers, said today social workers have always weighed carefully any decision to provide assistance to teen-agers, and such cases usually involve serious family difficulties or orphans.

He said as they will continue to exercise this discretion, he doesn't foresee any change in the situation.

"In no way, shape or form is it our policy to encourage kids to leave home," Miller said. "I think it's a case of the minister making it appear he is being really hard-nosed when there really isn't any change in policy."

Vander Zalm said there were about 100 under-18s collecting welfare, mostly in the Vancouver area, when the policy was instituted.

The minister said most of these youths have probably returned to their parents or found jobs, although it is too early to accurately assess the effects of the policy.

Vander Zalm said the policy wasn't publicly announced because he didn't think people would be interested.

"The whole family breakdown thing is a problem these days," he said. "We hope little changes like this might have an effect on improving family unity."

MAGGIE TALKS LOOKING GOOD

A spokesman for the Canadian Merchant Service Guild said today he is optimistic a settlement can be reached today in a dispute which has idled the B.C. government-owned Princess Marguerite.

"Some progress has been made and we are optimistic," he said.

Guild negotiators, representing 17 officers including the captain, resumed talks this morning with officials of the B.C. Steamship Co., which operates the Marguerite for the province.

The officers walked off the job at noon Wednesday when the vessel arrived in Victoria from Seattle with 967 passengers aboard.

The Marguerite was scheduled to make a return trip at 4:30 p.m., but it had to be cancelled because of the work stoppage.

The officers said they would not go back to work until a new contract with the company had been signed.

Some of the passengers stranded in Victoria as a result of the dispute were flown back to Seattle while others were put on buses for a trip home via the Sidney-Anacortes ferry.

It is not clear exactly what the issues are. Management says the crew wants increased leave time rather than more money while the officers say they want year-round employment or some special arrangement which would provide them with an annual wage.

The Marguerite doesn't run during the winter months and as a result the officers' season lasts 146 days. They work six days on and six off and currently get 1.24 days off for each day worked.

Meatmen Vote Strike

Meatcutters in Victoria and the Lower Mainland have voted 70 per cent in favor of strike action to back demands in a dispute with the major supermarkets.

George Johnston, spokesman for the meatcutters' local of the Canadian Food and Allied Workers union, said the vote was 419-to-180 in eight bargaining units covering Safeway, Supervalu, Stong's, Mark It, Hi-Lo and Shopeasy in Victoria.

Meatcutters at Woodwards Stores have a separate contract.

Johnston said the B.C. Food Industry Labor Relations Council has applied for a mediator who, if appointed, would have a minimum 10-day term. A strike or lockout cannot be held until the mediator reports out.

The base rate for a retail meatcutter is $8.82 an hour.

The main issue, said Johnston, involves the extent of anti-inflation board controls. The union wants a second increase and more benefits after controls expired Dec. 31 but management wants a controlled settlement to extend for a full one-year contract which would expire next March 31.

Kootenay Townsfolk Keep Uranium Seekers at Bay

GENELLE (CP) — Residents of this tiny Kootenay town have vowed to barricade an access road 24 hours a day if necessary to halt uranium exploration in their area by a consortium of mining companies.

Exploration crews have been kept at bay for the last two days by protesters determined to prevent mining officials from reaching a drilling rig brought in when the barricade was dropped to allow road repairs.

The Genelle Concerned Citizens' Committee — 100-strong in a community of less than 500 people — agreed to relax its vigilance only under guarantees from the government that no exploration would go ahead during road reconstruction.

"Now we're going to make sure we stop them from reaching the drilling machinery because there's no way we want uranium mining around here," said group spokesman Tom McKenzie.

A consortium of mining companies claims it has discovered a large body of low grade uranium ore in the area which could be mined in an open-pit operation.

McKenzie said engineer Manny Amendolagine, of Vancouver's Manny Consultants Ltd., was prevented from reaching the site Wednesday and crews from Kootenay Drilling and Exploration Ltd. turned back voluntarily.

Fears that waste rock from drilling will pollute China Creek, which runs through this community 10 kilometres south of Castlegar, motivated local opposition but many residents now say they are opposed to uranium mining in general.

McKenzie said the consortium has frequently violated government exploration regulations, once dumping waste rock from the drilling directly into the creek.

"We will continue to act as policemen," he said. "If there are any violations of known regulations we will enforce them by passive, physical opposition."

But Bruce Lang, local inspector for the ministry of mines, said the citizens' fears are totally unfounded.

"There is nothing there that is dangerous to man," said Lang. "This thing has been blown all out of proportion. They're getting more radiation from the sun than they'll get from the exploration area."

McKenzie responded by claiming staff from the provincial mines ministry and Atomic Energy Control Board, which has been checking the air and water for contamination, is more concerned with promoting uranium than regulating health and safety.

He said the China Creek group is part of a province-wide grassroots movement against the development of uranium mining.

"We are giving an unqualified 'No' to any uranium development in the province. Leave it in the ground."

The China Creek consortium is made of a number of mining companies. Three — Stampede, Groundstar and Northwest Ventures — belong to Toronto stock promoter Earl Glick. Other companies are Nevex, Nomad, Tandem and Golden Granite.

In published reports in April, Glick termed the China Creek deposit "billions and billions of tons of ore with half a pound per ton — worth an awful lot."

Sarkis Ready to Resign To Force Beirut Truce

Times News Services

Lebanese president Elias Sarkis today threatened to resign to force an end to the worst fighting in Beirut since the 1975-76 civil war and a top Israeli official said his country would consider steps to halt the Syrian "massacre" of Christians in Beirut.

Lebanese sources said Sarkis tendered his resignation to Prime Minister Selim Hoss and other officials at a morning "crisis meeting." They said "intensive" efforts were under way to persuade him to reconsider.

The Israeli show of strength was seen as a warning to Syria to ease off the Christians, whose beleaguered positions came under the heaviest night of shelling since the end of the civil war.

In the capital, where fighting between Syrian peacekeeping troops and Christian militamen intensified overnight, seven Israeli warplanes made two low sweeps, shaking the city with deafening sonic booms.

Terrified residents ran for cover as the Israeli planes flew in from the sea and blazed over the capital in two swoops. The force of the sonic booms was so great they shattered glass in many sections of the city and some Beirutis obviously thought they were bombs.

In Tel Aviv, Eliahu Ben-Elissar, chief of military intelligence and one of Prime Minister Menachem Begin's top advisers, said, "We consider with profound concern and gravity the events in Lebanon.

The final is scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday.

Juniors Best Behaved In Times Tennis Meet

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

It's Get-Tough Time again in the fifth annual Victoria Times Public Parks tennis tournament.

All that sunny weather keeps on coming but still competitors have been very slow in getting their matches played, particularly in the mixed doubles event.

Best behaved, in fact, are the junior boys who have marched through in their singles to the quarter-finals and have only one round to play before our gala windup Aug. 19 and 20 at Oak Bay's Henderson Park.

The huge men's singles draw has been whittled down to 34 players from a starting field of 128. That should be down to 32 after two full rounds but there are still two results to come in.

We've had no result from matches involving Robert Janicki and Perry Evans, nor Doug Grainger and Gary McLaren. Robert Spanier and Dave Wingate are waiting to play the winners of those two games and unless they are played this weekend with a result in to us by first thing Monday morning, Spanier and Wingate will go through to the last 16 by default.

There are 17 players left in the women's singles after two rounds. Again, that should be 16 but there's a last game still to come in.

Charlene Joe versus Cindy Majocha is the second-round result we don't have. Unless that one is in by Monday morning, too, next-round opponent Liz Eveleigh will win by default.

Mixed doubles scores have been trickling in slowly and there are still two results to come.

MEN'S SINGLES

Second-round results: Peter Wilson def. Gregg Joe, 9-4; Ken Leung def. Yves Vial, 9-4; Arthur Hobbs def. Bob McMillan, 6-2, 6-0; Erik Lunde def. Chris Skuce, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2; Ronski Kosky def. KEITH LINTON
. . . making his move

Keith Linton is setting a blistering pace among drivers during the harness-racing meet at Sandown Park.

Linton drove three winners for the third consecutive day Wednesday to bring his total for the year to 138. His count now at Sandown is 17 victories, seven behind Dave Jungquist, who won once Wednesday.

Two veteran standardbred geldings also have a winning streak going at the Sidney track.

Deacon Brodie, an 11-year-old, owned, trained and driven by Willie Urquhart and Dobbie Joe, a nine-year-old owned by Linton's wife, Rosemary, both won fourth consecutive races Wednesday to join Lennies Choice and Stop Watch as five-time Sandown winners.

The mutuel handle of $79,595 was almost $9,000 more than the previous Wednesday and the best nine-race total of the meeting.

Results and entries below.

Whitecaps Draw A Record Crowd

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Whitecaps got two goals from defender John Craven to double Detroit Express 2-1 in North American Soccer League action Wednesday night.

Vancouver got brisk passing throughout the game from midfielders Jon Sammels and Steve Kember, who nullified the fast Detroit attack led by British national team member Trevor Francis.

The Whitecaps opened the scoring early in the game when Craven guided an Alan Hinton cross that was deflected off Vancouver's Bob Lenarduzzi.

The Express tied the game at the 54-minute mark when Graham Oates headed a pass from Alan Brazil.

The Whitecaps pressed and four minutes later Craven scored with a header. Craven was named first star of the game, attended by 18,625 fans, the largest home crowd of the season.

In Other games Wednesday, New England defeated Cosmos 1-0, and Memphis downed Colorado 1-0.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A revival in oil issues left the Toronto stock market mixed in active mid-afternoon trading.

Ashland Oil Canada Ltd. jumped $3.25 to $30.25 a share on its resumption of trading shortly before 2 p.m. after a halt issued at the opening.

Kaiser Resources Ltd. has announced it will offer $32.50 a share for the 84-year-old interest held by the United States parent company, Ashland Oil Inc.

The resumption was co-ordinated with those of the Montreal Stock Exchange and the American Stock Exchange at New York.

Great-West Life Assurance dropped 1¾ to $94, Asbestos Corp. ⅞ to $42¾, Molson Cos. B ⅝ to $16¼, Inco A ½ to $17¼ and Dylex Ltd. A ½ to $13.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined in moderate trading following a White House forecast for worsening inflation and slower economic growth this year.

Several casino-related stocks that rose sharply in earlier sessions fell back in active trading. Del E. Webb lost 1⅞ to $23½; Caesars World fell 1¼ to $26; Playboy Enterprises was off 1⅜ to $24⅜; and Bally Manufacturing slipped ¼ to $39¾.

Union Carbide, off ⅞ to $36⅜, led the NYSE-active list as of 2 p.m.

On the American Stock Exchange, Resorts International Class A, which gained 12¾ points as the most active issue Wednesday, fell 1⅜ to $84¼.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices moved fractionally higher in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Volume at 2:30 p.m. EDT was 339,900 shares, compared with 397,300 shares traded up to the same time Wednesday. Imperial Oil A climbed ⅜ to $18¾, Molson A ⅛ to $18⅜, Carling O'Keefe five cents to $4.80, Alberta Gas Trunk Line A ⅛ to $14⅜, Consolidated Bathurst A ⅛ to $27⅝, Husky Oil 1½ to $39⅝ and Pacific Petroleums 1⅛ to $36⅜. Inco A dipped ½ to $17¼, TransCanada Pipe Lines ¼ to $15⅝, Bank of Montreal ⅛ to $22⅜, Moore Corp. ⅛ to $37 and Seagram ¼ to $25⅝.

London

LONDON (CP) — Early gains were reversed near the close of light trading on the London stock market. The Financial Times index was unchanged at 452 an hour before the close. Leading industrials cut back on advances, while gold issues eased. Canadian stocks were mixed.

Lloyd's Okays

LONDON (Reuter) — For the first time since Lloyd's, the world's leading insurance community, started business 300 years ago a firm of U.S. brokers has gained access to the formerly exclusively British club.

Frank B. Hall and Co. Inc., the third-largest insurance broker in the United States, has obtained what amounts to Lloyd's seal of approval for a proposed $45-million takeover of brokers Leslie and Godwin, one of the oldest members of Lloyd's.

Lloyd's dominates the world insurance business, which now runs into billions of dollars every year. More than half of Lloyd's business comes from the United States, a Lloyd's spokesman said.

With the probable takeover of Leslie and Godwin, Frank B. Hall and Co. Inc. has secured direct access to the Lloyd's market.

$60 Million Icebreaker Off Monday on Her Maiden Arctic Voyage

Times Staff

The Canadian Coast Guard's new $60 million icebreaker Pierre Radisson leaves Victoria at 10 a.m. Monday on her maiden voyage through the western and eastern Arctics to her home port of Quebec City — more than 12,000 miles.

All but three of her crew are Francophones. They are her master, Capt. Patrick Toomey, third officer Fern Walker, 24, a native Victorian, and an oiler from Vancouver. The only other woman in the crew is nurse Freda Huber.

Pierre Radisson and her sister ship, Franklin, were built at Burrard's shipyard in North Vancouver and fitted out to be the workhorses of the north.

They can crash their way through three feet of solid ice and their hulls are built with steel frames 16 inches apart, making them virtually uncrushable.

Toomey says his new ship is the only one of the coast guard's fleet of 14 icebreakers that is fitted with a gymnasium.

"She is totally self-contained. We can do all our own repairs and maintenance.

Her engines can produce 13,600 horsepower and the largest of the three winches in her stern easily towed the weathership Vancouver at 12 knots during a recent sea trial.

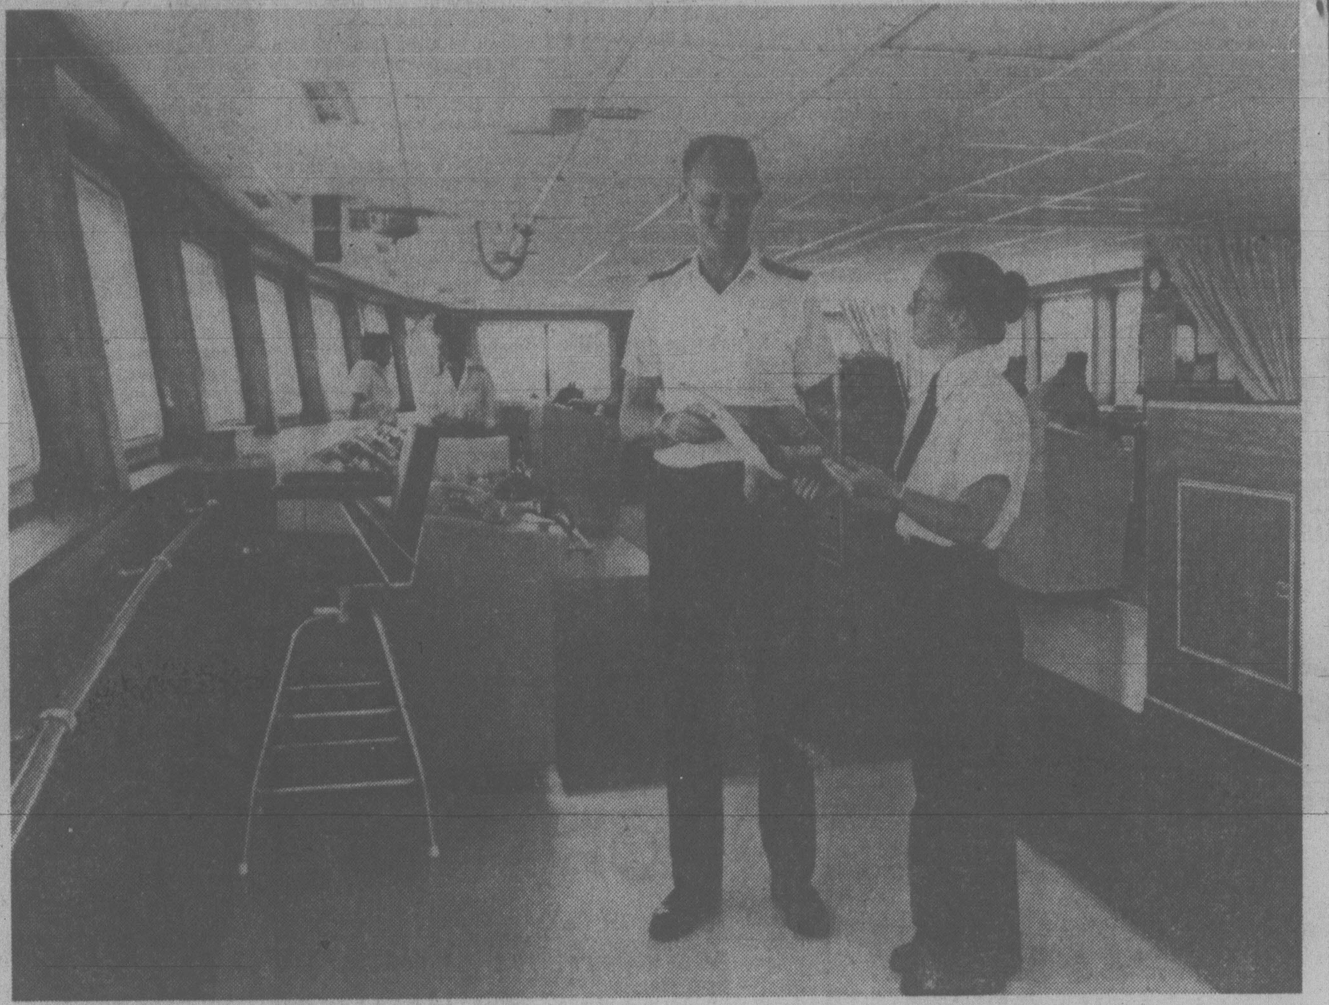
This will be Toomey's 11th season in the eastern Arctic and the second for third officer Walker. She graduated as a deck officer in 1977, making her first tour last summer.

Toomey says his ship has 56 sensors wired to various pieces of equipment to monitor their performance, surveys of which will help designers of future government and commercial vessels to be used in the north.

Ecologically clean, the Pierre Radisson will process all garbage except cans and bottles. These will be kept until they can be put ashore.

Toomey estimates, depending on ice conditions, the Pierre Radisson will reach Quebec City in October.

Although they could be relieved and leave the ship before that time, Toomey said every member of the crew has opted to stay with the Pierre Radisson all the way.



HUGE WHEELHOUSE is checked by Capt. Patrick Toomey and Third Officer Fern Walker, a Victorian going on her second Arctic voyage. But she won't be alone among all those men. Nurse Freda Huber will be along. (Bill Halkett photo)

SIX SMALLER SHIPS CONFIRMED

Lone Eagle to Perch Here

It's official: there will be only one tall ship in Victoria for the July Capt. Cook festivities but the number of Class B vessels has been increased to six.

American Sail Training Association president Barclay Warburton of Newport, Rhode Island, said in Victoria today the tall ship, Eagle, and six smaller vessels are confirmed for the festival.

"They will begin arriving this weekend and all will be here by 1600 hours (4 p.m.) on July 20."

First here will be the Greybeard of Vancouver and Oriole of Victoria, racing from Hawaii.

Warburton said the winner should arrive by Saturday. At present the Greybeard is in front, being 432 miles from Victoria while the Oriole is 555 miles out. But on corrected time Oriole is winning by 154 miles.

Next week the other class B vessels will begin arriving. All will be under sail and they will berth in the Inner Harbor.

Confirmed, in addition to Greybeard and Oriole, are the American yachts Lady Frei, Adventuress and Lene-Marie along with the Victoria yacht the Robertson II.

Listed as possibles are an American vessel Norden and the local sea cadet vessel the Rainbow.

Warburton said the vessels will have their sails up when they arrive but will have to lower them while docked.

There will be a parade of sail for all vessels when they depart for Vancouver on July 24.

Warburton said a highlight will be the arrival of the U.S. tall ship, the Eagle at 4 p.m. July 20. The captain will be asked to bring the vessel into the Inner Harbor, if possible, to dock at the former Coho site but otherwise it will dock at Ogden Point.

The Eagle is 266 feet long and has a mast 148 feet high.

Lengths of the class B vessels are Robertson II 119.5 feet, Adventuress 104.4 feet, Oriole 102 feet, Lene-Marie 85 feet, Greybeard 72 feet and Lady Frei 71 feet.

The 47-foot Gungha, which is acting as a communications vessel during the Greybeard-Oriole race may stop briefly in Victoria next week on its way home to Vancouver.

The Japanese tall ship Osprey, which was to come here, was damaged in Acapulco and is heading home to Japan for further repairs.

A regatta and various other programs will be held in Victoria from July 20 to 24.

A tall ship from Argentina will visit Victoria in October.

Nurses Carrying On But Don't Count On It

The 11 federal nurses employed in the Greater Victoria area and elsewhere on Vancouver Island have not joined — yet — a work-to-rule action involving federal nurses across the country.

But the option to take some similar action remains open, a spokesman for the nurses said Wednesday.

She said four of the 11 nurses are engaged in public service health visits to dockyard employees, Post Office staff and other federal public servants, while the other seven work on Indian reservations throughout the island.

Many of the 1,900 federal nurses across Canada reported for work Wednesday wearing T-shirts and jeans, put up informational picket signs and circulated petitions among patients and hospital staff, said Charles Levy, information officer for the union, the Professional Institute of the Public Service of Canada.

The nurses want wage parity with provincial nurses, and overtime pay for those on 24-hour call in the North.

A three-member conciliation board has recommended a 10.45-per-cent wage increase retroactive to December, 1976.

Treasury Board President Robert Andras said six per cent is the maximum increase the government can offer under federal anti-inflation guides. Treasury board negotiates for the federal government.

Talks with the treasury board broke down Sunday and have not resumed, said Levy.

"We waited all day Tuesday for a call from the board, but there was no word."

The 1,900 nurses work in veterans' hospitals, outpost nursing stations in the North, on Indian reservations, at major ports of entry, and on government-operated ships.

An exception to the general pattern of work-to-rule action Wednesday was Frobisher Bay, where 10 of the 22 nurses were on strike.

Ask The Times

Q. When was the Pacific cable between Canada and Australia completed? Who was mainly responsible for initiating the project.? D.B.

A. In 1902. Sir Sandford Fleming, engineer in charge of Canadian Pacific Railways. He fought for the scheme against strong opposition from rival cable lines.

Sunday Closing Backoff

Victoria city council's downtown economic development committee today backed away from tackling the Sunday closing dilemma.

The issue came up for debate but after a brief exchange of views aldermen agreed to take no action.

The debate centres around whether the city should allow all stores to open for business on Sundays, or whether restricting bylaws should be drawn up.

"Each time we get down to a list of stores that should be open or closed this becomes extremely difficult," said Ald. Murray Glazier.

But Glazier added that council "must deal with it sooner or later."

Tourist Hike Goal Within Reach, Says Manpower

Victoria is close to reaching a goal announced by Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy of a 25 per cent increase in tourist revenues, Canada Manpower officials said today.

"Some businesses are already reporting increases of 25 per cent over last year," regional manager Stan Purdy said.

"Most Victoria merchants in the hospitality industry are predicting increases from 15 to 20 per cent. The goal of a 25 per cent increase is within reach."

Purdy said that, despite troubles with the Princess Marguerite, Victoria is having a banner tourist season.

"American licence plates are everywhere and there is a big increase in Canadian visitors as well. I have never seen so many cars from Manitoba, Ontario and even New Brunswick."

During June about 900 people were hired by the service industry to handle the tourist surge and additional hiring is expected this month.

Hotel occupancy rates in June averaged a high 87 per cent while restaurant and bar receipts in hotels increased 12 per cent.

However, Purdy said Victoria will have to consider this summer's high level of tourist activity as the new norm.

"We must begin planning now for next summer or we could have a serious setback."

Purdy and assistant manager Doug Yearwood, in a joint statement, urged Victoria to consider a naval pageant for next summer, stressing the history of the service.

Their proposal includes a parade of ancient naval weapons, including tiny cannons, as well as relay races with participants carrying naval equipment.

"The prize should be the traditional keg of rum," Purdy said. "Victoria is a naval town and something like this would be ideal. The point is we better start now and get something going or we could have a slump next year."

A survey of the Victoria economy, conducted by local Canada Manpower information officer Dan Bowes, showed the three main strengths in the local economy during June were, in order: tourism, the forest industry and retail trade.

Local sawmills are operating close to full capacity and orders are brisk.

Retail sales in June were up eight per cent from the previous June, due in part to heavy tourist spending.

Weak points in the economy during June were construction where almost one out of three workers is unemployed and in metal fabrication, which is operating at only 30 per cent of capacity.

There are indications of marginal improvement in the construction industry over the summer.

Yarrows Ltd. shipyard employed 460 workers during June but with no major projects in view this total is expected to decline before the end of summer.

The number of jobs listed at the Manpower farm labor office is up 26 per cent from last year.

In all, there were more than 8,000 people registered as looking for work during June, down from 10,592 in May.

Canada Manpower received about 1,200 job openings in June.

Yearwood said Victoria had a work force of 117,000 during June, up from 100,000 in May.

The increase is due in part to university students coming into the work force but is also the result of many people moving to Victoria looking for work related to the tourist industry, he said.

Strip Teaser

Double-take sign doesn't mean what it says. Well it does, really, but not in the way some people think.

The stripping is being done by workmen at the University of Victoria but the workmen aren't stripping if you get the drift. They're removing material from building and only things coming off are bits of the structure.

Kim Stubblefield can't figure out what's going on.

N. Saanich Blackout Puzzling

A power failure in North Saanich plunged the area into darkness for just over an hour Wednesday night but caused no serious mishaps, a spokesman for B.C. Hydro said today.

Sections of North Saanich including the west portion of Victoria International Airport, which has its own emergency generator, and Deep Cove were without power between 11:50 p.m. and 1:04 a.m., according to the spokesman.

Hydro employees could find no cause for the outage, indicating that it was probably caused by a bird flying into the power line, she said.
